All But Two are Saved

MIAMI, Fla. AP – All but two of 496 persons aboard were saved when the sleek white cruise ship Viking Princess was swept by flames that were still enveloping her off Cuba today.

Passengers reaching Miami said the disciplined evacuation of the ship smothered panic.

Latest reports said two persons died of apparent heart attacks but the other 494 persons aboard were rescued.

"Every last one of the passengers has been accounted for," said a spokesman for the Flagship Lins Agency, operators of the ship, and none was missing. The spokesman, Stanley Thea, said 10 or 11 of the survivors flown into Miami on the last flight today were injured, but none seriously.

Earlier, the navy said 484 persons were rescued and 11 were missing.

Some passengers said the 536-foot Norwegian vessel had been plagued by engine trouble through much of the seven-day Caribbean cruise. The Good Friday fire apparently started in the engine room shortly after midnight and swept quickly through the ship.

Coast Guard search and rescue headquarters at Miami reported the hulk was still afloat and still ablaze today about 60 miles southeast of Guantanamo Ba, Cuba.

Coast Guard and Navy craft stood by the once sumptuous cruise ship, now just a wallowing menace to navigation; and a salvage vessel set out from Key West to take the Viking Princess in tow if the stem-to-stern fire doesn't sink her.

The captain, Otto Thoresen, a 52-year-old Norwegian who has spent 37 years at sea, praised the passengers who were picked up after less than an hour in lifeboats by three rescue ships and taken to the U. S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

Cab and Milk Prices Increase

The cost of living in Sikeston is on the increase.

This week, two cab companies increased fares 10 cents and 15 cents extra for handling of groceries and baggage. The increase was attributed to increased living costs and operating costs.

Last month, the cost of milk increased three to four cents on a half gallon.

Prices being paid to farmers are approximately 80 to 90 cents more per 100 pounds than during April last year.

Dogwood Tour April 17

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- April 17 has been selected by Cape Girardeau florists as the Sunday when area dogwood will be at its best for viewing.

The Trail of Tears state park has attracted more than 1,000 carloads of nature lovers during each of the four years the tour has been held.

The profuse bloom is rated by many as the heaviest 1 1/2 mile concentration of native dogwood in the midwest. The Trail of Tears State Park is eight miles north of Cape Girardeau.

Drive maps and copies of the "Legend of the Dogwood" will be given motorists by Jaycees at an information station set up on Cape Rock Drive near Wimpy's at the intersection of U. S. highway 61 and Cape Rock drive. The tour will be marked with orange arrows.

Buddhists United Against Ky

THE ANNUAL Easter egg hunt today brought children to Malone Park, this morning. Karen and Sharon Dyer, three-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dyer, 654 Park, teamed up and found the bunny had left a few eggs for them. The Junior Woman's Club sponsored hunts by three age groups. There were 165 dozen eggs for each.

Election Demanded 'In Short Time'

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Buddhist leaders of all factions united tonight against the military junta of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and demanded an elected civilian government for South Viet Nam "in a very short time."

In a proclamation read at Buddhist headquarters, the leaders announced they had formed a committee to lead the struggle against the government and appealed to "all the people wishing to show their opposition to the government" to contact the headquarters.

The move came after Ky appointed Maj. Gen. Ton That Dinh to command the 1st Corps area in an apparent attempt to reassert his government's authority over the country's northernmost regions. Dinh was one of the young officers who took part in the overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963.

Thousands of Buddhists, who have been demonstrating in the streets for the past eight days, heard the proclamation in the Buddhist compound.

It ordered the disorders to stop and said the Buddhist headquarters would take over the burden of the antigovernment cause.

The most important point in the document was the apparent unanimity of Buddhist leaders who previously had seemed split over their attitude toward Ky's junta and the war effort against the Viet Cong and Communist North Viet Nam.

Those assembled in the Buddhist compound danced with joy as the document was read. Buddhist monks in yellow robes poured into the streets of Saigon.

About 1,000 demonstrators started for the streets just before the proclamation was read but the senior monks called them back for the reading.

The document said:

"The United Buddhist Church reaffirms its position of joining the aspirations of the people. One of these aspirations is an elected congress in a very short time. This congress must be a platform where the people can speak about the sovereignty of their nation.

"Since March 1 until now the Buddhists have tried to reach a solution with the government to avoid many sacrifices and riots in Saigon. But until now many obstacles to form this congress have been put in our way.

"Meanwhile, all the activities of the people in their efforts to oppose the government have been separated. For this reason the United Buddhist Church has decided to accept leadership. We appeal to all branches of the United Buddhist Church to declare an emergency to all Buddhists and to inform them that all separate activities against the government must stop and that the headquarters of the Buddhist Church must be notified before new ones begin."

"The new organization is called the Viet Nam Buddhist Forces and it is directed by Thich Thien Minh (Director of Youth Affairs) and Thich Ho Giac (Director of Lay Affairs). These two venerables will lead the Buddhists in their struggle. For all the people wishing to show their opposition to the government, please contact our headquarters at Vien Hoa Dao. We will dictate the time and place."

As 1st Corps commander, Dinh took charge of the northernmost area of South Viet Nam, including the cities of Da Nang and Hue, where the antigovernment demonstrations have centered.

He replaced Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan, appointed by the junta last month to replace Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi. The junta's ousting of Thi touched off the demonstrations.

Dinh flew to Da Nang and Hue today and reportedly held a two-hour meeting with Buddhist leaders and Brig. Gen. Phan Xuan Nhuan, commander of the 1st Division at Hue. At Da Nang he met with U. S. Marine commander Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt.

U. S. Navy river craft and Marine helicopters evacuated more than 700 American civilians, off-duty military personnel and foreign nations from Da Nang.

An antigovernment demonstration by about 500 students at Dalat, 140 mives northeast of Saigon, was dispersed by Vietnamese rangers using tear gas and firing into the air.

God Doesn't Ask Understanding

The Rev. Myron Neal, pastor of the First Christian Church, sermon topic was "Eloi, Eloi," taken from Mark 15:34.

The services were sponsored by the ministerial alliance of which the Rev. Mr. Neal is president.

An organ prelude was given by Miss Neva May Taylor.

The Rev. Mr. Neal told the audience that it must have seemed unbelievable to have observed Jesus Christ hanging and dying on the cross after being welcomed with open arms into the city of Nazareth two days before.

He said that Jesus said many things that people expected of him.

"But people have wondered through the ages at his saying, My God, My God, why has Thou forsaken me?" the minister continued.

Many answers people want are not found until they join the Church and live a Christian life.

"We are not fit to save our own souls. I unashameably admit I rely on God.

"Too often, people who come into church are seeking pleasure and too often, they relax in the luxury of mystery.

"God doesn't ask that you understand, He asks that you love Him."

Stars Eyed in Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —A 10-eyed mechanical astronomer named Orbiting Astronomical Observatory sped around the earth today packed with the potential to unlock a host of celestial secrets.

After five postponements caused by weather and mechanical problems during the last two weeks, OAO rocketed from Cape Kennedy into a near-perfect orbit ranging from 502 to 496 miles above the earth.

Radio commands from the ground today were controlling the large satellite like a fine precision watch as its 10 telescopic eyes were gently positioned to stare at stars, the galaxies, nebulae and interstellar gases.

From its lofty orbit, OAO can view stars from above the cloak of the earth's atmosphere, which blocks out radiation from many celestial objects.

The wave length, intensity and direction of interstellar radiation is the basis for many calculations concerning how stars were created and what chemical elements are in them.

As the spacecraft rode on the wings of success, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration continued to study data filtering in on an ill-fated attempt by a Centaur rocket to ignite its hydrogen-fueled engines twice in space Thursday night.

Centaur project officials said the space agency was "looking very closely" at the data to see if any changes were needed on an even larger hydrogen rocket stage scheduled to blast off July 18 as the upper stage of a giant Saturn 1B rocket.

Edward Jonash, Centaur project manager for NASA's Lewis Research Center, said preliminary indications show that a Centaur rocket failed to ignite twice in space because of an inadequate fuel supply.

Rhodesia Problem before U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council was finally called into session to deal with Rhodesia today after a 40-hour delay which brought angry Western charges against the council's African president.

Informed sources said the Rhodesian debate might be held up by a series of Western speeches criticizing Ambassador Moussa Leo Keita of Mali, the council president, for alleged misuse of his power.

Some Western diplomats said the 38-year-old council president had brought the world organization face to face with a new constitutional crisis, involving the ability of the council to act in an urgent situation.

Britain originally had requested an urgent meeting for 4 p.m. Thursday and pressed hard for a meeting Friday, but Keita refused to call the meeting even after eight of the council's 15 members staged a sit-in in the council chamber Thursday night. He finally announced Friday that the meeting would be held this morning.

Before the council was a British resolution under which Britain would be authorized to use force, if necessary, to halt shipments of oil to Rhodesia by way of Portuguese Mozambique.

Keita said he was delaying the council meeting for further consultations, but British sources said privately the delay was linked with alleged plans of African countries to sabotage economic sanctions against Rhodesia and force Britain to resort to military action to end the Rhodesian rebellion.

World Will Greet Easter

By RONALD I. DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

Christians around the world prepare today to mark Easter with sunrise services and fashion parades in observance of the joyous holiday commemorating the Resurrection of Christ.

From the solemn splendor of St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City to thousands of lesser known places of worship in many lands, choirs will sing and people will gather to hear messages of hope for a better world.

"Easter, the greatest annual demonstration of the life force, should encourage us as we struggle for racial justice and human brotherhood," said the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, president of the Protestant Council, in an Easter appeal.

Along with millions of fellow churchgoers of Western Christianity, two million Greek Orthodox worshippers and five million others from Eastern Orthodox churches will celebrate Easter Sunday. Not until 1974 will both Eastern and Western churches observe the holiday again on the same day.

Roman Catholics gathered today for an Easter vigil service in St. Peter's Basilica. In memory of the day Christ was hidden in the tomb, a simple rite was planned known as the "Blessing of the Fire" — with a flame symbolizing the return of Christ to the world.

A half million tourists were on hand in Rome for the Easter observance.

Six Admitted For Emergencies

Six persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Friday.

William Taylor, fell and hit head, injuring eye; Vernon, Evon and Yvonne Snider, all of Flint, Mich., auto accident; Patsy Morrow, injured foot on piece of iron and Sam Hunter, car accident.

Ants have been living in miniature cities for more than 80 million years.

Inflation Debate Grows in Intensity

NEW YORK (AP) — The great debate — do we or don't we have inflation? —is growing in intensity.

Gardner Ackley, President Johnson's chief economic adviser, says he is more "hopeful and confident" than many private economists that the nation can avoid inflation without an immediate tax increase.

The purchasing executives, who are close to the price situation, say of inflation: "The only question is whether it is creeping, crawling, walking, running or galloping."

The association reports that in its March poll of members 76 per cent reported paying higher prices, up from 62 per cent in February. The figure is the highest since September 1956 when a steel strike settlement triggered general price rises.

For the first time in nine years no member reported an over-all price decline. The figure had been running at 1 per cent for the last few months.

Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said in a copyright interview in U.S. News & World Report that the administration could not "tolerate for very long the rate of price increase of the past months."

However, he added that there are signs that inflationary pressures are coming under control.

"Recently there has been a slower advance in bank credits," he said. "The money supply actually fell in February. We have seen the postponement of a lot of bond issues."

He noted that wholesale prices have climbed 4 per cent in the past year but said, "Now it looks as if we have turned the

Two Deer Struck By Cars, Killed

Two deer were killed when struck by cars Thursday and Friday, near Poplar Bluff and Greenville, the highway patrol reports.

Hulen Haywood, 23, Piggott, Ark., driving a 1966 Chevrolet, Thursday morning, ran into a young buck crossing highway 67 south of Greenville, killing it.

Friday at 4:10 a.m., Claude Robinson, 77, St. Louis, struck and killed a young buck while it was crossing at the intersection of route W and D, near Poplar Bluff.

Two vehicles collided on highway 60, two miles west of Morehouse at 4:10 p.m. yesterday. A 1965 Buick, driven by Vernon Snider, 33, Flint, Mich., started around a 1960 GMC bus, driven by Donald W. Dehnichne, 26, Brookfield, Ill.

The bus driver began to turn left, causing the Buick to run into a bridge railing, the highway patrol reported.

Myrtle Sifford, 57, Florrisant, a passenger in a 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by her husband, Raleigh Sifford, 61, Florrisant, received a broken right ankle, Friday at 9:55 a.m. near Dexter.

Lion Turns On Model

The brunette model, Nell Theobald, 22, was described in satisfactory condition today at Roosevelt Hospital. Doctors said that she may need several plastic surgery operations to repair the damage.

The 2-year-old, 225-pound lion was supposed to bite through a red ribbon and officially open the International Automobile Show at the Coliseum Friday.

The lion appeared calm enough as the girl knelt beside him. Then television cameras moved and flash bulbs went off, and the lion turned on the model.

Bombers Hit Cong Center

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers struck at a Viet Cong communications center in the Communist D Zone 35 miles northeast of Saigon today dumping more than half a million pounds of explosives on the area, an Air Force spokesman said

Flying single file, the giant planes made what the spokesman described as a "major assault" on the Viet Cong's military region No. 7.

Apparently prisoners captured by the 173rd Airborne Brigade and 1st Infantry Division in heavy fighting against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong several weeks ago provided information to pin down the location of a 10-building communications center which operated radio contact for the entire sector.

A major strike of B52's usually means 10 of the eight-engine bombers. Each is normally equipped to drop 50 750-pound bombs. A spokesman said this flight consisted of planes equipped to carry 60,000 pounds each.

Viet Nam Dove Turns Hawk on Population Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dove on Viet Nam, Sen. Ernest Gruening turns hawk in his quest for federal efforts to promote population control.

"We're trying to bring this problem out into the open, to dramatize it," the Alaska Democrat said in an interview.

In that effort, Gruening is presiding over the Senate's longest-running show, a nine-month series of hearings on the birth control question.

He doesn't plan to stop until Congress acts.

Gruening, at 79, has been a doctor, a journalist, an appointed governor of Alaska and a senator since it became a state. Along with fellow Democrat Wayne Morse of Oregon, he is one of the two chief Senate critics of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Gruening said his concern about birth control began more than 50 years ago, when he was attending Harvard Medical School.

Now, without bold government action, he foresees a nation victimized by its own exploding population, packed into a vast urban sprawl, short on water and resources.

"The world isn't going to be fit to live in if the population keeps doubling every 30 years," he said. "I'm glad I won't be alive to see it."

Parents furnishing more than half the support of their child who is under 19 years or a student may be able to claim him as a dependent even though the child had income of $600 or more during the year and is required to file his own Federal income tax return.

Johnson Resumes His Folksy Style

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has recaptured the glowing mood and free-wheeling oratorical style of his first year in the White House.

This has become apparent during the past week — and particularly since his return Thursday to his native Texas — as he has largely ignored prepared speech texts and teleprompters to do what seems to come naturally.

Homey, off-the-cuff philosophy and reminiscences once again flow from his lips at every opportunity. And there is hand-shaking and baby-kissing.

Strangely, Johnson's renewed expansiveness has coincided with menacing political developments in South Viet Nam.

Perhaps the return home has been responsible, for as he told a San Antonio audience Friday, "I get a great deal of pleasure out of returning to the scenes of my childhood."

Perhaps spring has done it — here in central Texas where the bluebonnets are in bloom and the temperature, even under cloudy skies, heads toward the 80s.

Speaking mostly without notes, he increased by 400 per cent the length of a prepared speech here on signing a new law giving older citizens until May 31 to sign up for voluntary doctors' bills insurance under medicare.

"I remember," he said, "what my father said to me about public service when I was a little boy walking around following him barefooted and standing there in the hot sand of Blanco County, and squeezing the dirt up between my toes. He used to say to me, 'Son, if you are to speak for people, you must know them, and if you are to represent people, you must love them.'"

He chided those in his audience who grew restive as the master of ceremonies, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., spent many minutes introducing local dignitaries in the crowd — and some who didn't make it. Said Johnson:

"I thought that some of our sophisticated folks might say this morning that Henry was introducing too many people. But that just shows how he feels about human beings. He didn't want one single person to be neglected. He wanted to recognize the dignity of every person here because they might be pretty unimportant to a stranger but they are not unimportant to Henry, or to me."

That this bothered him was apparent as he said at another point:

"If any of you want to leave, you can leave. If any of you are in a hurry, you can go on. I stay in a hurry all the time. I am back home now and I am not going to hurry. I am going to do what I like to do."

And that's just what the president did.

U.S. Lost H-Bomb Twice During Hunt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States lost the elusive H-bomb a second time for nine days during the great 80-day search off Spain — and was in danger of losing it forever in a yawning undersea canyon, it was learned today.

The 1.1 megaton device, retrieved from 2,900 feet deep in the Mediterranean Thursday, had shifted two weeks earlier along a widening ravine to within a few hundred feet of a canyon extending to depths of 4,000 feet — beyond the capability of retrieval equipment.

This exasperating development occurred when one-inch thick nylon line snapped as a surface vessel's winch dragged the bomb up a 70-degree slope toward level area.

The silvery, eight-ton bomb toppled 100 feet back into the underwater ravine and sank in the muck-filled bottom. There it remained hidden until April 3 when the miniature sub Alvin, after repeated groping about the black depths, sighted a piece of the weapon's parachute protruding from the mud.

Four days later, in the early morning hours in Washington, a cryptic message from Rear Adm. William S. Guest in Spain clacked off a Teletype machine in a Navy command post in the Pentagon:

"Target on deck of Petrel and

Artificial Kidney May Fight Cancer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The artificial kidney may provide a new and unexpected aide in the chemical warfare on cancer, a scientist reported today.

Dr. Pierre M. Galletti of Palermo, Italy, said experiments with dogs suggest the possibility of linking the robot kidney to a patient being given powerful, but potentially dangerous anti-cancer drugs — and using the robot to cleanse the patient's blood of drug remnants remaining after the chemical attack on the cancer site.

The idea, he told a scientific meeting, is to intercept the blood flowing back towards the heart from the cancer site, cleanse it in the machine, and shunt it back towards the heart.

The drug used in the initial attack on the cancer site would have been injected into an artery taking blood away from the heart, so that phase would not present a safety problem, he indicated.

Galletti, a visiting researcher at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., described the animal experiments to the annual meeting of the American Society for Artificial Internal Organs.

Hearing Set For April 20

Shirley Coleman, Sikeston, was fined $25 for fighting in public.

Leverni Stewart, Sikeston, pleaded innocent to fighting in public.

Police report they arrested Oneal Widdows, East Prairie, on a charge of assault and Jean Corbitt, Charleston, on a charge of fighting.

Three-Day Recess

Public school students are out for a three-day Easter vacation from school. They were dismissed Thursday afternoon and students will resume classwork Wednesday morning.

Arbutus Class Meets With Mrs. Winstead

The Arbutus Class of the First Baptist church met in the home of Mrs. W. C. Winstead with eight members present.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Winstead in the absence of the president, Mrs. Richards. The opening prayer was given by Gladys Kelly. Reports were given and approved.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Winstead. It was "Facing the Future Unafraid," taken from Daniel, John and Psalms.

Assisting Mrs. Winstead as hostess were Mrs. Thelma Boardman and Mrs. Fern Moore.

Lonna Wood Is Named to Honor Society

CANTON -- Lonna Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood, 154 Jefferson, has been selected for membership in a new Women's Honor Society at Culver-Stockton College.

Miss Wood, a sophomore, qualified by having at least a 3.20 cumulative grade average on a 4.0 basis. To remain a member, she must not allow her average to fall below 3.00 two consecutive semesters.

John Hahn In Charge Of Dinner

JEFFERSON CITY -- Delton L. Houtchens, chairman of the Democratic state committee, announced today that John R. Hahn, of Jefferson City and former Sikeston resident, will serve as chairman of the annual birthday celebration for Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Mrs. Hearnes.

Houtchens said that the celebration will be held July 23, at the Ramada Inn. He said that ticket sales would be held to 1,000.

Last year 1,650 attended the $25-a-plate-affair and about half of them ate in tents on a parking lot of the Inn while viewing proceedings on closed circuit television.

All proceeds of the dinner will go to the Democratic state committee and funds are earmarked for the general election campaign.

The funds from last year's dinner also have been deposited in a savings account for use in the 1966 election.

Both Governor and Mrs. Hearnes were born on July 24, but Houtchens noted that this year it falls on Sunday and it was felt that the observance should be July 23.

There will be reserved seats for sponsors, whose names will be published in the program. Tickets may be obtained from the Democratic State Committee, P. O. Box 719, Jefferson City.

Wencil Moye Speaks to Civic Club

The Women's Civic Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Dempster with Mrs. Redge Harwell and Mrs. W. G. Funk as co-hostesses. One guest, Mrs. Buddy Largent, was present.

The program, a travelogue, was given by Wencil Moye, teacher of Industrial Arts at the high school, who had movies of Italy, Greece, France and Spain made when he was in the navy in 1959, and on Mediterranean cruise aboard the U. S. S. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Moye had very interesting comments on the countries he had visited and the movies were further enhanced with an accompanying sound track which played appropriate regional music.

The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Cline Ables in the absence of Mrs. Kiehne, the president. The club voted to make an immediate contribution to the Mental Health Association to help in the current expenses of the organization.

The nominating committee reported the following slate of officers for next year: president, Mrs. Cline Ables; vice president, Mrs. Harrison Tanner; secretary, Mrs. Raymert Miller; treasurer, Mrs. Louie Largent. The slate was elected.

The next meeting will be a luncheon and final meeting for the year. It will be the first Tuesday in May, time and place to be announced later.

Attend Meeting

More than 2,000 employees of The Kroger Co. from throughout this area attended the annual meeting for employees at the Mid-South Coliseum in Memphis Sunday, March 27th.

Wives or husbands of employees also were invited to attend the meeting, which was hosted by S. E. Hungerford, vice president of the Memphis Division which operates stores throughout this area.

At the meetings, employees were given a confidential look at the progress of their company and how they can better serve customers.

Kroger employees also were informed of the results of a two-year study -- just completed by the company -- of the products packed under Kroger's own brand names. The study was carried on to make sure product labels are doing the job they should to help customers be better shoppers.

In the course of the study, 2000 representative homemakers were interviewed regarding their reaction to these and other labels.

Mr. Hungerford explained that the meeting is an outgrowth of his company's feeling that the success of any business which serves the public depends to a large part of the employees who meet customers directly every day.

"These are the people who represent Kroger to customers," he said. "We feel it is important for every employee to be informed about our company, and to know how we can do a better job of providing what customers want."

During the meetings, Kroger employees with distinguished service records were recognized. In the Memphis division, the employees who received awards included Merrill Riley, Senior Accounting Supervisor, who has been associated with the company for 40 years.

Others recognized were Ellis Miller, George Inman, Joseph Wrenn, Var Hill, Lee Roy Pearson, Joe Cavallo. Together, they have given 135 years' service to The Kroger Co.

In addition, some 32 retired Kroger employees from the Memphis Division received special invitations to the meeting. More than 1400 former Kroger employees who are receiving benefits under the company's retirement income program are being honored at similar meetings throughout the company.

The executive committee of the Southwest P. T. A. held its final meeting of this year Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Houchin.

President Lee Shell called the meeting to order and gave the invocation.

The secretary read the minutes of last month's meeting and the treasurer gave her report.

Plans for the executive officers dinner were discussed. It will be May 2.

Principal Jack Cothern made several announcements. Open house at Southwest school will be Wednesday, May 18. School will end on Friday, May 27.

The regular monthly P. T. A. meeting will be May 18. Patrol boys will be honored and new P. T. A. officers will be installed.

Since there was no further business, the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Houchins.

Dinner Honors David Allard

David Allard, Salcedo, celebrated his 82nd birthday Thursday with a dinner at his home.

Four of his six daughters attended. They were Mrs. Ivy Lewis, Mrs. Clarence Cantrell, Mrs. John Watts and Mrs. C. D. Springs, all of Sikeston. Two daughters, Mrs. Louis Arnold and Mrs. Franklin Douglas, both of Kalamazoo, Mich., were unable to be present.

Also present were his sister, Mrs. Birch Moll, and his granddaughters, Mrs. Sam Potashnick and Mrs. Bill Guess.

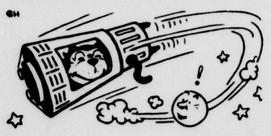

Mrs. Limbaugh Is Hostess To Circle Meeting

The Lucille Ford Circle of the Trinity Baptist church met at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. M. L. Limbaugh with 17 members present.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mrs. R. H. Mackley. Mrs. Dorothy Clinton led in the opening prayer. Mrs. Clinton also read the names of the missionaries to be remembered in prayer. Mrs. Sherman Grant gave the program, a mission study book, "Meet the American Jew."

The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Conley and old and new business was discussed. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Glen Peel. The hostess served cookies and punch.

The next circle meeting will be with Mrs. Glen Peel.

Film Giant Forming

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film industry was buzzing this week with the prospect of a new giant in its midst.

The proposed merger of Seven Arts Productions Ltd. and Filmways, Inc., was announced by the chief executives of the firms, Eliot Hyman and Martin Ransohoff, respectively.

This was merely the first move in the merger, which had been rumored in the trade. Next, the lawyers and accountants take over to work out the details. Then the boards of directors and stockholders of the two companies — both are listed on the American Stock Exchange — would accept or reject the proposal.

If the merger is carried out, it could mean creation of the first major film company since the Hollywood power structure was established in the 1920s.

Both Seven Arts and Filmways are postwar creations, the work of energetic men who rushed in where the old-line film companies declined to tread. Significantly, both new companies built their structures on a foundation of television.

Eliot Hyman, 61, was selling feature movies to television as early as 1944, when he supplied some films to WPIX in New York. He went into the business in a big way with the formation of Associated Artists in 1949. The company helped keep Warner Brothers and 20th Century-Fox afloat by purchasing their old movies for release to TV.

In 1960, Hyman joined with Ray Stark, a former Hollywood press agent, to form Seven Arts. The new company became a force in the movie business by channeling its projects through oldline studios.

Seven Arts retained an interest in such films as "West Side Story," "The World of Suzie Wong," "The Nun's Story," "Two for The See-Saw," and "The Bible."

Martin Ransohoff, 38, enjoys remarking that he started Filmways 14 years ago with a $200 stake. The firm began by making TV commercials, and it still does.

But Filmways marched on to greater things, starting with its first TV series, "Mr. Ed." The company harvested a rich crop of corn with the Paul Henning series, "Beverly Hillbillies," "Petticoat Junction" and "Green Acres."

Dogs have played an important role in the development of brain, bone, abdominal surgery, and in the knowledge of metabolic diseases. For example, there are more than one million diabetics in the United States alone who are living useful and almost normal lives because of the experimentation done on dogs.

Mark Henderson Has Party

Highway Wives To Have Night Meeting

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

A Review of the 1964 Term

INTRODUCTION

The Supreme Court's proclivity to decide cases based on "liberal" ideology rather than constitutional law, graphically described by Professor Phillip Kurland of the University of Chicago Law School last year, was demonstrated anew during the term of 1964-65, as the Court's romance with the goddess of "liberalism" grew in passion and ardor. Mr. Dooley's observation, made around the turn of the century, that the Supreme Court follows the election returns, whatever the Constitution follows, was proved once more as the Court, already ahead of the executive and legislative branches of the government in creating the "Great Society," struggled to maintain its avant garde position in the face of being swamped by the quickening pace of the rest of government.

In the frenzied attempt to stay ahead of the fashions of the day, the Constitution of the United States was treated with as much relevance as the Rosetta Stone. Occasionally, an apt phrase or citation from an old case was thrown in to decorate an opinion, but constitutional history or law was no more built on in the last term than walls are built upon in modern buildings. Our ancestors actually used walls to support buildings; but today walls simply are hung on steel skeletons to hide the interior. The Eiffel Tower shows that walls can be dispensed with completely. Apparently, the Court deems that what is good enough for the building industry is good enough for constitutional law, and that their opinions ought to tower above the landscape and stand as long as the Empire State Building. This paper will attempt to diagram our new constitutional architecture as its implications were unravelled in the Court's 1964 term, and in doing so it may not be amiss to point out that any relation between the original Constitution and the Supreme Court's opinions is as coincidental as that between Frank Lloyd Wright's creations and the Washington Monument.

Baptist Men Have Meeting

The Baptist Men's organization of the First Baptist church met Monday night for its regular monthly meeting. A barbecued chicken dinner was served to the group of 53 men and boys.

President Lenzie Beck along with others gave thanks for the recent revival and its success as the Australian Crusade ended in Southeast Missouri. Special prayers were requested by the Rev. Bill Thitchener, who was in Kirksville, for the continued success of the crusade.

The program chairman presented Dale Carney, youth coordinator for the church and a leader in the basketball program. Carney thanked the church for its participation in the basketball program and called on the two men who have been the coaches and have worked hard with the boys, Ted Elliott and Don Newton. They gave short reports of the past season in the church basketball league. They presented the 10 boys who were to be given basketballs by Carney on behalf of the church.

Also honored were the Royal Ambassador boys. Ken Vinson gave a report on the Trail of Tears campout and other activities of the R. A.'s. David Hackney, Jim Starnes and Dan Overbey gave talks on the R. A. mottos.

John Davis, Melvin McMackins, Ken Vinson, Bill Hahs and Bill Smith will be taking the boys this weekend to the State R. A. congress in Springfield. This congress is the Baptist convention on a small scale for boys. There will be 1,100 boys present.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. James Hackney, spoke to the group on "Boys and What They Mean to Everyone." He said, "We should give our young people our very best and not just a little of our time." He told the story of Jesus as a boy and quoted the poem, "Boys Are Boys" by Alan Beck.

The meeting adjourned with a season of prayer by Lou Goehri and Glen Griffin.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

EASTER

"Jesus Christ is ris'n today, Alleluia!
Our triumphant holy day, Alleluia!
Who did once upon the cross, Alleluia!
Suffer to redeem our loss, Alleluia!"

The universally beloved and probably best known Easter hymn exists today because of the faith of many devoted persons, known and unknown.

It has been translated, altered and improved until the music and words now give us the full magnificence of the first Easter. The original words are from a 14th century German and Latin manuscript. The authors are unknown. It was translated into English in 1698 by Nahum Tate in collaboration with Nicholas Brady. Practically nothing is known of Brady. Nahum Tate, although a poet laureate of England, was poverty stricken most of his life. The first English translation appeared in the Lyra Dividica, London, 1708. The hymn took its present form in John Arnold's Hymnal, 1749.

The tune, stately and full of jubilation, has no recorded history or composer. It is simply known as an Easter Hymn. The second stanza gives us the full meaning of Easter.

"Hymns of praise then let us sing, Alleluia!
Unto Christ our heav'nly King, Alleluia!
Who endured the cross and grave, Alleluia!
Sinners to redeem and save, Alleluia!"

Straight From The Horse's Mouth

We think it's time for a report to our many good customers in regard to the progress and problem at the Running Horse Cafe.

Business has been good this winter. We, of course, have you to thank for that. We want you to know also that we are constantly aware that we have an obligation to the public to keep the Running Horse Cafe clean, the food good, and to continue to improve. Now, the improving part is really what we wanted you to know.

In the near future, you will notice our doing a bit of remodeling. Here's what will take place. We are going to screen in the front porch. Then we will cover the porch with outdoor carpet, install four of the old-time paddle fans, hang some light fixtures that we think you will like, and equip the porch with wrought iron table and chairs. Of course, we have many little things we will add. The ginger bread will be taken care of, and you will think you're in Paris. We will have seating capacity for 20 more people. How's that?

Now, for item number two. We are discontinuing our "Family Night." All winter, you know, we have been giving all the fried chicken, rolls, potatoes, and slaw you could eat for $1.00. Well, here's what has happened! We have sold so much chicken that the price of fryers have gone up considerably. L.B.J. called us from Washington and warned us about infl ation and inflating the price of poultry. He said that it wasn't fair to the good people who were forced to pay these higher prices, and it's all our fault. He also reminded us that he and Lady Bird were not going to build those two rooms on their little home down in Texas just to prevent more inflation. So, since we are good red-blooded Americans and knowing how carefully the President handles our tax money, we figure the least we can do is discontinue selling chicken so cheap and forcing the price up. So, if prices are in line at a later date, we will probably do the same thing again. Remember, we still have plenty of chicken it just ain't quite so cheap.

Don't forget to watch for our porch change. I think you will like it. If you don't -- we have had it!

Very truly yours,

Running Horse Cafe

Sherman Grant

Cards To Open Season Tuesday

Philadelphia will open the season playing the Cardinals in Busch Stadium Tuesday with manager Schoendienst and Jesse Gaines. The Cards play their final 11 home games in Busch Stadium and then move into their new home.

Cincinnatti Reds will be trying to snap two-game losing streaks when the major league baseball season begins Monday with the traditional opening day program.

At Washington, the Senators will meet the Cleveland Indians in the Presidential Opener with Johnson, a tall, Texas right-hander with an 0-2 record in such affairs, the nominee to throw out the first pitch.

Meanwhile, the Reds will get their usual one-day jump on the rest of the National League, playing the New York Mets in the renewal of an opening game tradition that dates back to 1876 when Cherokee Fisher pitched Cincinnati to a 2-1 victory over St. Louis.

It's definite that Cherokee Fisher won't be on the mound at Cincinnati this time, and there's also the possibility that Johnson won't make the first pitch at Washington.

Johnson is in Texas for an Easter holiday and there has been no definite word about his plans for interrupting his vacation to attend the game. However, he might just want to take a crack at being a winner.

Pete Richert will try to get the Senators back on the victory side when he starts against Cleveland's Sam McDowell, the Sandy Koufax of the American League. The Reds, who also have lost their last two openers, probably will send fireballing Sammy Ellis against Jack Fisher of the Mets.

Few changes in the game will be noticed while tradition reigns Monday. But an eight-game program Tuesday figures to emphasize the personnel and franchises moves that have been made since the 1965 season ended with the Los Angeles Dodgers defeating the Minnesota Twins in the World Series.

The Tuesday schedule shows Houston at Los Angeles, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Pittsburgh at Atlanta and Chicago at San Francisco in the National League and Kansas City at Minnesota. Detroit at New York, Baltimore at Boston and California at Chicago in the American.

Two of the teams are playing in different cities this year, the Braves shifting from Milwaukee to Atlanta and the Angels from Los Angeles to Anaheim, Calif. In addition, the Cardinals will make a short move to a new stadium by May.

Corbett Still Unable To Be Questioned

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State athletic director James J. Corbett remained under sedatives today, unable to undergo questioning by police on how he was shot.

Officers said hospital physicians told them Corbett, 46, would not be able to talk with them before Sunday, if then.

Corbett was shot Thursday night with a 22-caliber pistol, police said. Ballistics tests showed the bullet was fired from a derringer, police said.

Corbett was found slumped over the steering wheel of his car after it swerved off a street and hit a tree. He underwent surgery Friday and received several blood transfusions.

State police Supt. Tom Burbank said Corbett must have been shot while outside his car, since there was little blood on the seat.

Corbett suffered a serious heart attack in 1958. Attendants said he complained of chest pains after surgery Friday. A heart specialist was called in.

Police said the shooting happened during a 25-minute period between the time Corbett left a supper club at 11:30 p.m. and the time that police received a telephone call reporting the car hitting the tree.

Golfers Lose

KENNETT -- Sikeston's golf team lost to the Kennett Indian golf team Thursday at Kennett. Charles Stamp of Sikeston fired the low game of the day, driving in a 39. He beat Kennett's Zimmerman who shot a 41. Ned Matthews beat his man shooting a 43. Charles Atchison lost his game. He shot a 46. King Sidwell shot a 48 to win his game. Bob Urban and David Whitaker shot a 50 and 51 respectively and they lost their games. Sikeston had a total of 277 strokes and Kennett came in with a total of 271. Normally the best four of six games are used for the total number of strokes and determining the winner, but it was done differently Thursday. Each man was given a point if he won his game. Each team won three games giving them each three points. Another point was given to the medalist golfer. Sikeston's Charles Stamp got that giving Sikeston another point. Two points were given to the team with the lowest number of strokes and they went to Kennett giving them the win with five points to Sikeston's four.

Hawks Need To Continue Basket-Bombing

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks found out Wednesday night what it takes to beat the Los Angeles Lakers — hot-shooting. The question is, can they continue their basket-bombing tonight in the fourth game of their playoffs with the Lakers?

The Hawks needed 64 per cent shooting from the field in the first half and a 52.2 per cent overall to beat the West Coast club, 120-113, Wednesday. It was their first victory in three games in the National Basketball Association's western division finals.

They lost the first two games in Los Angeles by shooting around 42 per cent.

"We shot much better at home than we did in the first two games," player - coach Richie Guerin said. "We had to hit well because they shot .50.5 per cent. We stole a lot of loose balls and we pressed them in taking some bad shots, but even then they hit a great percentage."

The chief Laker marksman as usual is Jerry West, who has averaged 32 points a contest in the three games and hit almost 50 per cent from the field.

Elgin Baylor is averaging 30 points a game and 52 per cent and Walt Hazzard 19.3 points per contest at 55.8 per cent. Bob Boozer, Rudy Larusso and Jim King also are hitting better than 50 per cent of their shots.

Only three Hawks can match that pace, despite Wednesday's performance. Zelmo Beaty is averaging 27 points a game, Guerin 23 and Bill Bridges 17.3. Beaty has hit 53.4 per cent from the field and Guerin and Bridges each 50 per cent.

The fifth game of the best of seven series will be played at Los Angeles Sunday night and the sixth, if necessary, back in St. Louis Wednesday. A seventh game would be in Los Angeles.

Tennis Team Defeated

KENNETT -- Sikeston tennis players dropped a meet to Kennett Thursday. Sikeston got beat in all singles and doubles matches. Terry Burke was beat by Kennett's Bret Baker 6-1 and 6-0. Jackson of Kennett beat Dean Childers 6-1 and 6-4. Vyther Miller was beat by Bruce Baker of Kennett 6-3 and 6-3. In doubles Dean Childers and Terry Burke were beat by Bruce and Bret Baker 6-0 and 6-0. William Dickerson and Henry Lippert also lost their match 6-0 and 6-0.

Prep Cagers Claim Record

PENDLETON, IND. AP -- Seniors at Pendleton High School are claiming an outdoor basketball marathon record after playing for 28 hours through darkness, snow, rain and freezing temperatures.

About 50 pupils took part, Boys' and girls' teams alternated two-hour periods until 10 p.m., and the boys kept the ball in play through the night.

The final score was 2668-2644.

COLUMBIA AP -- Reid Bailey of Silver Creek, Ind., has signed a Big Eight basketball letter of intent to enroll this fall at Missouri, coach Bob Vanatta said Friday.

The 6-foot-3-inch Bailey averaged 17.3 points and 14 rebounds a game last season as his high school had a 19-3 record. Bailey was sought by approximately 60 schools, Vanatta said.

SOUTHERN ILLINOIS CAPTURES FIRST

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP) -- Southern Illinois University's 4-man team captured the 36-hole Springfield State Invitational Golf Tournament Friday, edging Murray, Ky., State 606 to 607.

Springfield state finished fourth with 614, followed by Lincoln 615; Southwestern, Tenn., 615; Warrensburg State 636, and William Jewell 655.

Mantle Ask For Starting Position

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Forget that $100,000 pinch hitter on the end of the New York Yankees bench and reserve a spot in the starting line-up for Mickey Mantle.

Mantle, baseball's fabulous invalid, shook up Manager Johnny Keane's opening-day plans Friday night at Atlanta by making his first start of the spring, playing seven innings in a 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Braves and then asking for steady work when the Yankees

Keane will be happy to revise his line-up — inserting Mantle alongside Tom Tresh and Roger Maris in the outfield — if Mickey feels he's ready when Detroit invades Yankee Stadium Tuesday.

The Houston Astros trimmed the Tigers 6-4 on Jim Wynn's three-run homer in the eighth inning and the Chicago Cubs defeated the Cleveland Indians 9-5 in 12 innings in Friday night's other exhibition play.

Mantle, who grudgingly admitted only a few days ago that "I can't throw a ball 100 feet," surprised Keane by asking for a starting shot in the opener of the three-game exhibition set in the Braves' new home.

"When I came to the park tonight I had no idea of playing," he said afterward. "But my arm felt very good. I figured I had to start sometime and it might as well be here. If I loused things up in an exhibition game, it wouldn't matter.

Mantle didn't throw anybody out but the Braves didn't take any extra bases on his no-longer strong right arm. He handled several routine chances in left field, made three soft but accurate throws to the infield and lined his first hit of the spring — an RBI single in the fifth — in four trips to the plate.

In his only previous exhibition appearance, Mickey had struck out as a pinch hitter against Philadelphia last month.

Globetrotters Win Over New York

BLOOMFIELD -- In a very fine performance before a capacity crowd the famous Harlem Globetrotters won over the New York Nationals here last night 120-108.

In a very funny and yet serious game, the Globetrotters had the entire gymnasium roaring with laughter, and their showmanship combined with their fine talent of basketball kept the fans amazed with their fine shooting and ball handling.

David Gaines led the Globetrotters in scoring, hitting 56 points and an amazing 79 per cent from the field. Dan Travis led the New York team with 42 points.

The Globetrotters are ending their last road trip for the year and will play two more games.

BASKETBALL PLAYING TITLE CLAIMED

NEWTON, Kan. AP -- A world's marathon basketball playing title was claimed by a group of Newton Junior High and high school pupils Friday.

The 20 boys, ranging from the seventh to the tenth grade played 15 straight hours Thursday. The score was 1,160 to 1,150.

Mizzou Tripped By Iowa State In Opening Day Games

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's a tradition in Big Eight baseball that Iowa State, coached sinced 1937 by an incurable optimist named L. C. (Cap) Timm, can't be counted out of any title race.

Timm proved it again Friday by rocking Missouri's defending champions with two opening day setbacks at Columbia, 7-6 and 3-1 on the pitching of Tim Van Galder and Scott Morton.

Nebraska and Oklahoma State joined Iowa State at the top by opening with doubleheader sweeps. Kansas State and Oklahoma split a pair at Manhattan. The same foes will collide today in single games.

Van Galder held Missouri to four hits in the opener but his wildness and three errors led to six Tiger runs. Van Galder was 3-for-4 at the plate, Jerry Retzlaff was 4-for-5 and Mike Van Dine homered for the Cyclones.

Morton pitched a three-hitter and struck out nine in the second game. Al Chettle had a pinch homer for Missouri in the seventh. Dick Olsen had a two-run single off Missouri's starter, Orv Hollrah, in the first.

Bob Ziegler, one of Iowa State's top pitchers, and catcher Don Ziegler didn't make the trip to Columbia because of their mother's critical illness.

Nebraska ripped injury-riddled Kansas 18-7 and 7-4 at Lincoln. Alex Walter of Nebraska and John Adams of Kansas both homered in each game. Gary Tunnison had a homer and a double and batted in five runs in the opener.

Oklahoma State beat Colorado 3-2 in 10 innings and 5-1 with the masterful pitching of John Pierce and Marv Fiocchi at Stillwater. OSU has its ace, Richard Frank, ready for the third game.

K-State whipped Oklahoma 5-0 on Bob Ballard's one - hitter at Manhattan, then Oklahoma won 6-4 behind Rusty Disbro, a junior college transfer.

At Stillwater, Pierce edged Gary Mann and Fiocchi nipped sophomore lefty Taylor Toomey but the Colorado pitchers stayed close all the way. A hit batsman a walk and a bunt single loaded the bases for OSU in the 10th; and a misplayed fly let in the winning run. CU's Jack Poppom had tied it with a homer.

Dick Turner's second inning single for Oklahoma was the only hit off K-State's Ballard. Dave Doolittle had a two-run homer for K-State. A two-out triple in the seventh by Bob Winters broke a 4-4 tie and won the second game for OU.

Featuring The Kingfish

MALDEN -- Area drag fans will have a treat in store for them this weekend at the Malden Drag Strip, featuring the Kingfish a brown Barracuda and a wild 427 Corvair.

Last Sunday at the Memphis drag strip the Kingfish stood right straight up in the air on its back bumper. The driver of the Corvair says if the fish does too many wheel stands he will take all three matches.

Trophies will be given to all winners and eliminator money will be given to those in each class.

Time trials start at 12 noon and eliminations begin at 2 p.m.

Bradley Wants To Play With Italian Club

MILAN, ITALY AP -- Bill Bradley, the All - American from Princeton who sparked Simenthal of Milan to the European Cup basketball championship this season, said Friday that he would like to play for the team again next year and in the Olympics again in 1968.

Before returning to England and his studies at Oxford, where he is a Rhodes Scholar, Bradley said:

"If the International Basketball Federation will allow teams in the cup tournament to use two foreign players again next year, I think I will play for Simmenthal."

Al Davis Plans To Make AFL Best Pro League

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Al Davis, named Friday to succeed Joe Foss as commissioner of American Football League, plans to make the AFL "the best league in pro football."

Davis, 36, said solutions to problems involving the National Football League are not among his immediate objectives.

"My first job is dedication to the growth of this league," said Davis, who had four years left on contract as general manager-coach with the Oakland Raiders when he accepted the appointment Thursday night after rushing from a vacation at Las Vegas, Nev. Terms were not disclosed.

Foss, who had guided the AFL since its inception in 1959, resigned Thursday. His decision to leave reportedly stemmed in part from smouldering club owner dissatisfaction over loss of the Atlanta area to the nfl.

Davis, who pushed the raiders from the cellar to Western Division contention in just three years, admitted he "left security." But, he added, "I do love this league and believe in its future." Besides his long contract, Davis also held an option for a five-year renewal.

AFL President Ralph C. Wilson Jr., owner of the Buffalo Bills, told a news conference Friday that Davis' organizational and administrative abilities had attracted the club owners.

"Al's background is football — at all levels," Wilson said.

Before he moved to Oakland, Davis was an assistant three years under Sid Gillman with the Los Angeles-San Diego Chargers. Earlier, he had been an assistant under Weeb Ewbank with the NFL Baltimore Colts and had coached at Adlephia College in Garden City, N.Y., Fort Belvoir, Va., the Citadel and the University of California.

Three Factors in Highway Safety

By MAX STURM

HAYTI -- With the BOOTHEEL constantly having one of the highest traffic accident tolls of the nation's rural regions, leading citizens of the area have for the past two weeks been more than passingly interested in the Washington hearings on automobile safety as shown on television and reported in the newspapers and on the radio.

It appears that, so far, the Washington probe of the subject has been directed mainly toward incorporating safety features in automobiles that would help save the lives of and injuries to the occupants when their vehicle becomes involved in an accident.

This week it appeared that the debate was on whether the government would have an automobile safety "czar" to work with the automobile manufacturers or leave it up to the manufacturers themselves for a few more years to re-design new models with safety devices.

The automotive industry, through its spokesmen, argued against having the government tell them how to build the cars, suggesting that they be allowed to proceed on their own.

They pointed out that if they hadn't received the message before on making cars safer they had now and were ready to proceed with re-designing without further supervision or prodding by the government.

Which way would be better, I wouldn't know at this stage, but so far the automotive industry has worked on an admitted basis that the public prefers automobiles with style, big horsepower, gimmicks and gadgets and couldn't care less about sacrificing any of these for greater safety. In this position they are mainly right.

For example, most new cars now come equipped with seat belts, but not all drivers and their passengers will use them.

Last month in St. Louis county there was a total of 12 traffic deaths, and, according to news reports, not one of the persons who were killed was wearing a seat belt.

The automotive industry admits that cars can be built so that the occupants can survive collisions and upsets in which they would all be killed in the models now on the road, but with the indifference shown to the use of seat belts so far they doubt that the public would buy such a car in large numbers.

Anyway, it appears that the thinking is going to change in the automotive industry in a hurry whether or not the public is ready for it.

In addition to the pressure from Washington there is another important factor that is building a really hot fire under the car manufacturers. That is the threat of huge damage suits against them based on traffic accidents in which claims of negligence in automobile manufacturer are made.

Already the largest automobile manufacturer is involved in a number of such suits to the tune of $40 million.

Times have changed and public thinkings has changed to the extent that plaintiffs have a better chance of winning large settlements in these actions in the courts than they could in the past, and the automobile manufacturers knew it and fear it.

In this relation note the front page news this week that GM was going to spend $3 million to repair accelerator defects in 1.5 million 1964-65 models of two of its cars already on the nation's roads. In this king size move all owners of these particular cars will be asked to bring them in to the dealers and other service centers to have the repair made free of charge.

So I would say that we Bootheelers as well as all citizens of the nation are going to have the opportunity to purchase much safer cars in the future, and some of these ideas are sure to be incorporated in the '67 models with more added in the '68s and future years.

While the automobile manufacturers have been taking their lumps these past few days, too little, if anything, has been said about a government-sponsored driver's education and training program that has been suggested by some citizens. With today's high speed machines, fast highways and dense traffic, driving is now a professional job and much of the trouble is that too many amateurs are driving the cars and becoming involved in the accidents.

Driver education courses in many high schools are aiding in this situation, but there are still millions of drivers in the nation who have never had any training. Much work still remains to be done to make professional drivers out of all of the motorists in the land. Until more professionalism is practiced by more of the drivers, the heavy loss of life, limbs and property in traffic accidents will continue.

Another program to aid in this drive to reduce the traffic accident toll of course is more attention to safety in highway construction and the elimination of proven road and highway death traps. In the federal sponsored interstate system, it seems to many drivers that the inclusion of a white strip along the outer edges of the pavement should have been mandatory on every mile of the super highways. It is my opinion that these white stripes make the highways considerably safer for nighttime driving. Also a double counterline painted a few inches apart would have the effect of keeping vehicles farther apart in passing. In this idea I'm thinking of those drivers who have the bad habit of hugging the centerline. When two of these jokers attempt to pass each other, it can sometimes prove deadly. Two centerlines -- one for him and one for me -- would be much safer for both of us.

Much also is still to be done on the thousands of miles of Missouri's highways that are not in the interstate system. The white outer stripes, as used on some stretches, should be painted on all of the system. Left turn waiting lanes at many critical points should be constructed, and proven death-traps should be either re-designed, re-marked or the traffic slowed to safer levels with special low - speed zones.

So the way it adds up, to really cut the traffic accident death, injury and property damage toll, a three-way program in cooperative operation is going to be required. That includes safer automobiles through re-design, safer drivers through mandatory training courses, and safer highways to eliminate the hazards and death traps.

Farm Labor Bulletin

STATE SUMMARY:

Discing, plowing and seed bed preparation are primary farming operations at present. Topsoil moisture is needed in many areas over the state. St. Louis is recruiting a busload of citrus pickers for Florida and Caruthersville is recruiting a busload of strawberry pickers for Lousiana this week.

The seriousness of the year-round farm hand shortage cannot be minimized, as 196 unfilled farm orders were reported this week.

Recuitment for farm hand trainees at Marshall is underway with a new class of twenty needed by April 25. Hire Day will be April 20.

Twenty - three year-round farm placements were made the past week plus thirty-four seasonal placements which were mostly horticultural in the Kansas City area.

Sikeston: 202 South Kingshighway. Telephone Granite 1-2731.

Limited acitivities in pre-planting bedding, fertilizing, pre - emergence application. Some few acres of early corn planted. Needs for farm equipment operators still remain critical. Have orders for 33, average wage of $1.00 per hour. Growers using workers who lack desired qualifications.

Poplar Bluff: 211 Pine Street -- Telephone: Sunset 5-9606.

There is still a demand for qualified farm help in this office area. Plowing and spreading of fertilizer is the only activity at the present time. Planting expected to start on April 4.

Caruthersville: 112 West Fifth Street -- Telephone: Edison 3-2416.

Lack of rain is becoming more noticeable in ground preparation. Some fields are too dry and cloddy for early planting. Plowing is most cases is fully up to date and growers are waiting for suitable weather to start cotton planting.

Kennett: 405 St. Francis Street - Telephone: Tuxeco 8-3184.

As the farmer is now getting into full swing in plowing and planting, the demand for day labor is on the increase, but supply and demand are in balance. A number of farmers are in need of good year-round farm hands, but lack of year-round financial stability for the employee is creating some problems.

Pre-Easter Price Gains In Porkers And Fed Cattle

National Stock Yards, Ill., April 9 -- The pre-Easter live stock trade was characterized by alternating periods of strength and weakness, according to Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Salable cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep of 46,794 head were in line with those of the previous week but down from the 51,167 for the same period last year.

A late rally in the hog market put barrows and gilts steady to 25¢ net higher for the week, with sows showing a gain of 50-75¢. Friday's hog top of $24.50 cwt. compared with peaks of $24.25 a week ago and $18.10 a year ago.

A lot of mostly Prime 1128 lb. steers topped at $29.00, followed by a load of mixed Choice and Prime 1175 lbs. at $28.75 and a part load 1350 lbs. $28.65. Most Choice steers were $27.00-28.25; mixed Good and Choice $26.50-27.50; Good $25.50-26.75; Standard and low Good $23.00-25.50.

A few lots of high Choice and Prime 850-1000 lb. heifers reached $27.00; Choice 800-1000 lbs. $25.75-26.75; Good and low Choice 700-950 lbs. $24.00-26.00; Standard and low Good $22.50-24.50.

Utility and Commercial cows brought $18.50-21.00; Canner and Cutter $16.00-19.00, a few shelly Canner $12.00-16.00. Utility, Commercial, and Good bulls were largely $21.00-22.50, top $23.00.

In Thursday's feeder cattle auction steers and heifers were unevenly weak to $1.00 lower. Quality of offerings was less attractive than in previous weeks. A lot of high Choice with an end of Prime 341 lb. steer calves topped at $32.50. Choice steers 375-775 lbs. were largely $26.50-29.25. A lot of Choice and Prime 479 lb. heifer calves registered $26.00.

Vealers closed slow and weak to $2.00 lower, late sales of Choice $31.00-36.00. Slaughter lambs under 105 lbs. sold steady to 50¢ lower, while heavier kinds were off 50¢ to $1.00. Choice and Prime woolskins late topped at $26.75, spring slaughter lambs sold downward from $27.50, except for a few specialty Easter lambs at $35.00-40.00.

by Tom Brown, Jr.

BLOOMFIELD - Sixteen developing nations have requested Peace Corps agricultural volunteers for summer assignments Tom Brown, county extension director, announced today.

Current request for agricultural volunteers more than doubles those of past years. This increased demand reflects the critical food situation in many areas of the world. For example, in India alone between 15 and 20 million - twice the population of New York City -- are threatened by famine this year. Unless something is done -- and soon - - experts predict the next ten years will become the "Decade of Famine."

Training programs for ten countries in Latin America, four in Africa and two in Asia get underway this summer. These programs include volunteers for Bolivia, Brazil, the Dominican Republic, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guinea, Honduras, India, Morocco, Nepal, Niger, Nigeria, Peru and Venezuela. These countries have requested volunteers for a wide variety of assignments utilizing every type of agricultural background.

Rural youth, farmers and retired farmers are especially needed for these programs. Rural young people with 4-H or FFA backgrounds are needed to help develop youth clubs, while volunteers with practical farming will work directly with farmers in villages encouraging improved farming methods.

People interested in Peace Corps summer agricultural programs may get more information and an application from Tom Brown at the county extension center in Bloomfield.

BLOOMFIELD -- Questions and comments from local farmers indicate that the use of a soil insecticide as a means of protecting corn stands against damage by soil insects will be practiced on a wide-spread basis this spring.

A number of soil insects work principally under the soil surface and damaged corn seed or the roots and stems of young corn plants. Seed corn maggots, and seed corn beetles injure the seed before or just as it sprouts. Wireworms damage both corn seed and seedling plants. Cutworms cut off young corn plants or feed on the stems at or just below the ground line. Corn rootworms and grape colaspis feed on the root systems of young corn plants. In addition, there are several less common insects such as white grubs and billbugs which may cause additional damage to the roots of young corn plants. These soil insects are a threat to corn stands almost every year, and when seasons are favorable for them, they often cause serious damage to corn stands and thereby decrease corn yields.

Soil insecticides, if properly used, will protect corn stands against soil insect damage and will thereby increase corn yields. Returns that might be expected from the use of a soil insecticide will vary from season to season. Three year average results of test plots conducted on farms throughout the state showed that broadcast application of soil insecticide increased plant populations 1400 stalks per acre and corn yields by 12 bushels per acre. In comparison, in-the-row applications increased stalk counts 1200 stalks per acre and yields by 10 bushels per acre. Based on results of research conducted on this problem and on-the-farm test plots, entomologists at the University of Missouri College of Agriculture say that a soil insecticide will pay for itself almost every year, and that during years when conditions are favorable for soil insects, a soil insecticide will pay big dividends. A few years ago the Moroni Brothers from Painton harvested 100 bushels of corn per acre from land treated with a soil in-acre from land not treated in the same field.

Either of two insecticides is recommended for soil insect control. As test plot results outlined above indicate, broadcast treatments will usually give better control and higher returns than will in-the-row applications. For broadcast applications, 1.5 pounds of actual aldrin or heptachlor is recommended. This treatment should be applied after corn land is plowed and disked into the top two or three inches of soil. It is usually best to apply this treatment 10 to 12 days before planting to kill the insects before the corn is planted, however, the soil can be treated up until planting time. Broadcast treatments should not be plowed down, but it will not hurt to re-disk the land after the treatment is applied. For in-the-row applications, one pound of actual aldrin or heptachlor should be applied at planting. This may be done by applying an insecticide - fertilizer mixture through the fertilizer attachment on the corn planter or by applying insecticide gran-

I think it should be emphasized that neither aldrin or heptachlor should not be used on corn that will be grazed by or fed to dairy cattle.

Of Interest to Homemakers

CHARLESTON - To take advantage of plentiful foods listed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for March, plan to use fresh oranges, eggs, rice, potatoes, peanuts and peanut products, prunes and prune juice.

FRESH ORANGES - Serve fresh orange sections in a fruit cup appetizer or dessert. Combine orange sections or slices with other fresh or canned fruits.

POTATOES - Serve in varied ways for thrifty meals with high nutritional value. Have you tried spices and herbs to enhance flavor and appearance? Suggested ones include basil, bay leaves, celery seed, oregano, sage, sesame seed, tarragon or thyme.

EGGS - Use them to get good meals and good nutrition. For facts on buying and storing eggs, and collection of recipes, write for "Eggs in Family Meals". Single copies are available free from the Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

PEANUTS - and Peanut Products -- For a dessert dazzler dress up chocolate, vanilla, and butterscotch pudding with a topping of crushed peanut brittle. A good sandwich filling is made by mixing equal parts of chunk-style peanut butter and deviled ham.

RICE - Use it for an excellent stuffing for fish, poultry, and meat. Add diced prunes for extra flavor and color contrast. If you want to get more milk into children's diets, use rice desserts and cook the rice in milk.

PRUNES - and Prune Juice - Minced prunes give a lift to fruit cup, applesauce, and breakfast cereals. For a salad or appetizer pit prunes and stuff with cottage cheese. Or try a mixture of cottage cheese and cream cheese with lemon juice to taste.

Extension Center News

CHARLESTON - Farmers are already concerned about moisture problems. This is unusual for this time of year but some fields need moisture to germinate corn and in all cases where weed control chemicals have been applied, moisture is needed to make them work.

Official weather records show that we just completed the driest March in 25 years. However, we cannot forget that we usually go from extremely dry to a point where we have excess water in only a few hours. We may get those spring rains yet and make everything work out.

The normal date to begin planting cotton, is less than two weeks away. Continued dry weather will cause serious problems on cotton because of shallow planting. Several farmers have asked about planting corn and cotton without using weed control chemicals because of a short moisture supply. Our answer has been to encourage the use of a recommended weed control chemical regardless of weather conditions. We feel that everything must be done on the assumption that growing conditions will be ideal. If we cut corners trying to save money then get a good growing season we have reduced our yield potential because we tried to save money. If we do everything, expecting an ideal growing season then we have weather problems we will still be ahead. Even with adverse weather conditions good management practices will always give you the greatest returns.

Cotton Market News

Purchases from Commodity Credit Corporation on bids opened April 4 dominated the marketing picture, according to the Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. D. A. Sales under the four programs currently in effect amounted to 517,193 bales. Domestic mill buying of cotton for early fall and winter delivery increased substantially from a week earlier. Trading in old crop cotton was off slightly from last week.

Spot cotton trading on most markets in old crop cotton was off from a week earlier. Domestic mill interest in new crop cotton strengthened covered a substantial part of their August and September needs, while some reached out as far as December. Interest was best for Strict Low Middling and higher grades with 1-1/16 and 1-3/32 inches staples. Demand from foreign sources was up slightly. Some European mills were in the market for the higher White grades, while most Far Eastern mills were buying Low Middling and lower grades.

Favorable weather for preplant operations on the farms prevailed throughout the area. Many farmers continued to put down herbicides and fertilizers and prepare seedbeds for planting. Soil temperatures in many localities remained too low for germination, but most farmers indicate that as soon as this temperature reaches a favorable level planting will become widespread. Lack of topsoil moisture in some localities could slow germination.

U.S. 4-H Honors Kennett Banker

COLUMBIA, --Joseph C. Welman, Kennett, has received national recognition for his contributions to 4-H work.

Welman, chairman of the board of the Bank of Kennett, has been named a "Partner in 4-H."

He is one of seven persons in the United States to be selected for the honor. The new "partners" will be specially recognized at ceremonies during the 36th National 4-H conference in Washington, D. C., April 17-22.

Welman is national chairman of the 4-H builders program for the American Bankers Association, and is a member of the Missouri 4-H foundations's advisory committee.

Within his home county of Dunklin, Welman has been a strong supporter of 4-H and extension programs for many years. He was active in helping obtain improved facilities at the Missouri 4-H camp at Lake Wappapello.

His community service efforts embrace areas in addition to 4-H work. He has been chairman of the trust committee of the Southeast Missouri Area Boy Scout council.

He is a former director of the Missouri state chamber of commerce. He served on the Kennett board of education, and headed the industrial committee of the Kennett chamber of commerce. He is a member of many other organizations.

He is a past president of the Missouri Bankers Association and the American Bankers Association.

He and Mrs. Welman have two sons, William and Joseph Jr. Both sons received degrees in business and public administration from the University of Missouri. William Welman also was graduated from the University school of law.

Sun Yat-sen was leader of the 1911 revolution which overthrew the empire and founded the Chinese Republic.

NEAR TRAGEDY of an end of a two weeks vacation for Minnesota and Wisconsin families, occurred Friday in a collision. A trailer-truck turned a huge truck away from a Lincoln, which was pulling a housetrailer, driven by Charles Nelson, Minneapolis. The Nelson car slowed up at a truck stop, near the Marston intersection when it was given a glancing blow by an ABF truck, driven by Fred Wadlington, Cape Girardeau. The car and housetrailer are at right. The tractor-trailer is shown at left.

Collision in Rain Mars Vacation

MARSTON -- Minnesota and Wisconsin families, returning from a two weeks vacation on the Gulf coast, narrowly escaped serious injuries in a collision at Roy's Truck Stop, near here Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson, Minneapolis, driving a new Lincoln and pulling a trailer, had slowed down at the intersection of highways 61 and 62 during a rain, when the house trailer was struck by an ABF Truck, causing heavy damage to the rear of the trailer, and ramming the trailer hitch under the Lincoln.

The driver of the Tractor-trailer, Fred Wadlington, Cape Girardeau, averted a serious wreck when he pulled his trailer to the side to prevent a solid impact.

Slightly injured in the car were Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Guy Pardun, Danberry, Wis., complaining of a whiplash, while the two Nelson children, Jackie and Scott, were uninjured, as was the driver of the Lincoln.

The vacationers left Hayti at 7:30 a.m. The highway patrol investigated the accident shortly after 8:30 a.m.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

He said to Thomas, "Put your finger here, and see my hands, and put out your hand, and place it in my side; do not be faithless, but believing." (John 20:27, RSV)

PRAYER: Father, as we think today of our Lord's nail-scarred hands and feet, His thorn-crowned brow, and His pierced side, may we hear Him say, "Yes, for you!" In His lovely name we pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: For years I have been hearing gruesome tales about the menopause. Now at last, I am learning, first hand, what the menopause really means.

It means a woman has reached the time of life when she feels that her 25-year-old furniture should be thrown out and the sunken mattresses replaced.

It means the house needs a little fresh paint and new wallpaper and those appliances which were wedding gifts aren't worth fixing any more.

It means that lazy buck she is married to should wake up and realize that his wife can't hit on 16 cylinders night and day and he ought to take her on a little vacation before she drops in her tracks.

I could say a lot more on this subject but your column isn't long enough. Just sign me -- THE CHANGE IS HERE AND I COULD USE ONE.

Dear Lady: If you had written more, the column WOULD have been longer. I'm sorry you didn't because you have something useful to say -- and you know how to say it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our three-year-old daughter has no one to play with. We live in an apartment building which houses mostly childless couples and retired people.

Last month I enrolled Annabelle in a nursery school three afternoons a week. My mother insists that I've done a terrible thing. She said, "In MY day mothers enjoyed their children. They didn't try to get rid of them in every way possible."

I told her I'm not trying to get rid of Annabelle. I feel it is important for children to be with youngsters their own age and not spend their pre-school years in an adult world.

Am I wrong? My mother is making me feel guilty. --RO-15.

Dear Ro: You are right. An exclusive diet of adult company is unhealthy for children. Don't argue with your mother--and don't feel guilty. Let her know that you will use your own judgment in these matters and that further discussion on THIS subject is pointless.

Dear Ann: Yesterday a group of secretaries was discussing broken engagements. There was some heated disagreement over what happens to the ring.

One of the secretaries said the girl keeps the ring if the fellow breaks the engagement, as payment for the time she spent on him. She also said if the girl breaks the engagement it is good manners to give the ring back. Right or wrong? --CARBON PAPER DOLLS

Dear Dolls: When the fellow calls it quits, tradition says the girl is permitted to keep the ring. Speaking for myself, I could never understand why a girl would WANT the ring of a fellow who didn't want her.

When the girl breaks the engagement it is traditional that she return the ring. In SOME states it goes beyond tradition--it's the law.

Confidential to BEAN POLE: You need psychiatric help to learn how to cope with real problem. It's not his height.

"The Bride's Guide," Ann Landers' booklet, gives authoritative and complete information on how to plan a wedding. To receive your copy of this comprehensive guide, write to Ann Landers, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35¢ in coin.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Nurse Program Among Projects

Sikeston's Licensed Practical Nurse training program, held in the public schools administrative office, is one of 14 projects on which 505 Missourians will receive training under the Manpower Development and Training Act, the departments of Labor and Health Education and Welfare announced today in Jefferson City.

The program was begun in Sikeston in 1963. Since then, two classes have graduated and a third of 18 persons is scheduled in July.

The program supplies nurses to the Missouri Delta Community and the Dunklin County Memorial hospitals.

Mrs. C. F. Eisenbach is coordinator.

A clerk - stenographer program at Cape Girardeau is another project included in the announcement.

All trainees will be referred by the Missouri Employment Service.

No Upsets In Elections

CARUTHERSVILLE -- There were no upsets in Pemiscot municipal elections Tuesday.

In the Caruthersville contest with opposition, Roy Smith ran best but lost to Dee Barnes, 258 to 204, for the Ward 4 councilman position. Barnes is the incumbent.

Chief of Police, H. S. Edwards won re-election over Ralph W. Sides 982 to 94; and Earl Bennett had little trouble in winning re-election with an 867-226 victory over Ernest L. Robertson for the city collector's post.

Others running unopposed were Mayor B. F. Rogers, 931 votes; City Treasurer James A. Jeffress, 734; Police Judge W. D. Byrd, 735; City attorney John R. Fowlkes, 722; Mrs. Obye Coker, city assessor, 845; and Ward 1 Councilman Gilbert Hazel, 81; Ward 2 Councilman Wyman Dillman, 200; Ward 3 Councilman Leslie Knott Sr., 171.

Voters approved a 10 cent levy hike for schools, 438 to 230.

Trucker Escapes Serious Injury

BENTON -- Hardy Young of Jackson, Miss., escaped serious injury Thursday morning when his tractor-trailer truck went out of control on Interstate Highway 55 east of here, crossed the median strip and overturned. He received cuts on his arm.

He told officers the wheels of the rig locked as he was heading north in the MPI vehicle, throwing it across the highway and into the ditch adjacent to the southbound lanes.

Two wreckers were unable to remove the truck in early efforts. Traffic was blocked for a time as they sought to free the big vehicle, which rested on its side.

IS FREEDOM ONLY KID STUFF?

Sure, freedom is kid stuff. Mainly because of that marvelous simplicity kids have. Cathy Roberts, Grade Two, can reduce freedom to three sentences. That puts us non-kids at a disadvantage. Because we know that freedom is more complicated than that. We know that freedom is never something that has happened. Rather, it has to happen every day.

You have to make it happen every day. In everyday ways. From taking a few minutes to read your congressman's letters to spending half an hour writing him a letter if you think he's not on the ball. Participating in a local political organization. Putting away education money regularly for the Cathys in your family so they'll be better informed citizens. Things that take more caring than time, such as "adopting" a war orphan by mail. Things that take a whole chunk of time, say giving up an evening each week to help out at a local boys' club.

Oh, it's not as easy as writing a Grade Two essay, this business of keeping freedom a going thing. But just between us, who in this whole wide world knows better than we do that freedom is worth it? At twice the price.

Freedom: the more you use it, the longer it lasts

SHOWCASE—In Germany, the city of Bremen had a shortage of nursing trainees. Deciding the profession needed a pinch of glamor, medical authorities selected this model as the type today's student nurses would like to identify with and used her in a recruiting brochure. Applicants are now being turned away.

Shrine Club Installs Officers

Members of the Southeast Missouri Shrine Club were installed March 30 by Illustrious Sir Alfred Meyer, potentate of Moolah Temple, St. Louis.

The members of the Moolah divan who accompanied Potentate Meyer were, Chief Rabban Loren Willhoft, High Priest Prophet Robert Rainey; First Ceremonial Master Delbert Miller Jr., Marshal Don Biggs, captain of the guard Robert Conyers, and outer guard Arthur Haack.

Entertainment was furnished by the Travelers, four teenagers.

After dinner SEMO officers were installed by Potentate Meyer. President Melvin Dace announced the next meeting would be May 4 at Cape Girardeau.

Morehouse News

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Grady were fishing Sunday afternoon on a ditch near Fisk and as Mrs. Grady was crossing over a fence and she put her hand on some leaves and a snake bit on the finger about 1:30 p.m. and she was given emergency treatment at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

Mr. and Mrs. Hershell Stephens had as Saturday guests, Mr. and Mrs. James Wilkening and children of Matthews, route three, Mr. and Mrs. Pete King and Gregg of Sikeston Route No. 4, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Midkiff of Broken Bow, Okla.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Midkiff left Monday for their home in Broken Bow, Okla. Enroute home they will visit her uncle, Mr. and Mrs. David Drake and family of Hot Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. Hershell Stephens, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Midkiff were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Pete King and son Gregg.

BLYTHEVILLE AFB, ARK., -- More than 226 Boy Scouts and Explorers from Arkansas and Missouri are attending an Explorer Encampment here this weekend.

Despite gusting winds and a light rain, boys from the surrounding area began to establish "Tent City" early this morning. The weekend's activities officially got underway at 8 a.m. with registration for the three-day event.

Next on the agenda was a base tour including demonstrations by the base fire department and the sentry dog section. After lunch, the boys were officially welcomed to the base by Colonel William G. Ivey, base commander. The rest of the afternoon was devoted to "exploring" a B52G Stratofortress and a KC-135 Stratotanker. In addition, the boys toured the various maintenance and supply shops.

Activities planned for Saturday include orientation flights in a KC-97 aircraft and a "Space Exploration" program. After supper, an Explorer Ball will be held at the base gym.

Easter Sunday Sunrise Services will be held on the flight line. After breakfast, an awards ceremony will be held honoring the outstanding Explorer Scout, Explorer Post, Explorer Flight Leader, Explorer flight and Order of the Arrow Dance team.

The base, home of the Strategic Air Command's 97th Bomb Wing, played host to a similiar encampment last year. This year, boys attending are from such diversified points as Helena, Arkansas; Memphis, Tennessee and Dexter, Missouri. Base officials coordinated the planning and operation of the encampment with Mr. Floyd White, Mississippi district Scout Executive. Captain Richard Steeves, 97th Air Refueling Squadron was the base Encampment committee chairman. Senior Master Sergeant Jack Lyons, 42nd Air Division, coordinated between base and Mississippi District officials.

The objective of the Explorer Scout Encampment is to give all Explorer Scouts the opportunity to obtain a broader understanding of the Aerospace Age and its significance, and to participate in an air Training familiarization program.

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. -- Staff Sergeant Bertis D. Blackburn, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Blackburn of 312 Heath St., Sikeston, Mo., has arrived for duty at Hamilton AFB, Calif.

Sergeant Blackburn, a computer representative, previously served at Duluth International Airport, Minn. He is assigned to their Air Defense Command which protects the U. S. against enemy air attack.

The airman, a graduate of Sikeston High School, Cape Girardeau, Mo., attended Southeast Missouri Teacher's College and Southern Baptist College, Walnut Ridge, Ark.

Mrs. Burch announced that the kick off dinner will be April 15 at 7 p.m. in the dining room of the Masonic Temple and served by chapter 342 of the Masonic lodge of Morley.

Fabick in Sikeston For 25 Years

Yesterday marked the 25th birthday of Fabick Brothers Equipment in the Sikeston area.

When the business was established in Sikeston there were 10 employes. Now, there are 44, 11 of whom have been working with the company more than 20 years.

Charles Stamp is manager.

There are eight Fabick sales facilities in Illinois and Missouri -- three in St. Louis, one each in Sikeston and Jefferson City.

Illinois outlets are: Salem, Marion and Crossville.

The company was founded by John A. Fabick, Sr., who died shortly after the opening of the Sikeston plant, which was the second sales outlet for the company.

The first branch in Salem, Ill., will soon have been in operation 50 years.

Ground for the Sikeston building was broken in November of 1940.

Operations began April 8, 1941.

The 10-foot long, 3-foot thick tube had been hauled up by the recovery vessel Petrel.

Then -- and only then -- was it definitely identified by serial number as the hydrogen bomb which spilled from a B52 disintegrating after colliding with a refueling tanker six miles above Spain's coast Jan. 17.

On Friday the bomb was being displayed like valuable pirate treasure before newsmen and Spanish officials who could assure Spain's peasant folk the nuclear intruder had at last been apprehended.

The exact price of the unprecedented operation -- unique not only from a technical standpoint but also because of volatile security and diplomatic aspects -- may never be known. The Navy acknowledges the cost runs into the millions of dollars.

The sea search involved 18 vessels and 3,200 men.

It is a rather sweet bit of irony, then, that with this vast force at work, the bomb was first found by the tiny Alvin -- creeping backward down a 70-degree sea slope.

"The sub couldn't go forward down the slope because at that angle the crew couldn't see over the nose," an official explained.

The Alvin had its work to do all over again when the line broke during the shifting maneuver in March.

During the nine days the sub passed within six feet of its object before once again pinpointing the bomb.

Then, an unmanned electronic device operated like a robot was called into action. This unit called CURV- cable -controlled underwater research vehicle -- used mechanical arms to snag two hook - equipped nylon lines 4,700 feet long in the bomb's parachute lines.

Like a dead fish the bomb was reeled up.

Navy officials said Friday that the H-bomb will be returned from Spain to the United States on the ship Cascade for intensive study.

INFLATION

corner on that one.

"The trend of farm and food prices for the rest of this year ought to be leveling out or possibly declining."

In a move against inflation, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler urged bankers to "turn down or scale back" speculative and less-productive loans.

He said banks have to curb their lending activities because the growth of credit "threatens inflation."

He added that it is better to weed out the "less-deserving" loan requests than to have skyrocketing interest rates bar some borrowers.

The Chase Manhattan Bank of New York commented: "The best way to cure inflation is to bring public spending into line with our public resources."

It said a reduction in federal spending is preferable to raising taxes because "tax increase, in the short run at least will not be accompanied by an equivalent reduction in private spending."

Several more big corporations agreed to heed Johnson's request to trim expenditures for new plant and equipment as a means of warding off inflation.

Service for Victim of Road Crash

ADVANCE -- Services for Jerrell Mitchell Ladd of Sturdivant were Saturday at 2 p.m. at Baluch Church near Zalma. The Rev. Paul Grant officiated and burial was in the church cemetery with Morgan Funeral Home in charge.

Ladd was killed Thursday morning in a truck-motocycle collision on Highway 51 at Zalma. The highway patrol said his motorcycle struck a two-ton gravel truck as the truck turned off a gravel road onto the highway. The motorcycle slid under the truck, troopers said.

The view of the truck driver, Eddie Huffman, 17, of Advance, was apparently obstructed, the patrol reported.

Ladd was born Aug. 13, 1945, in Bollinger county and was employed by his father in a timber business.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Finis Ladd, Sturdivant; two brothers, Glen Ladd, Sturdivant; and James Ladd, Advance; and the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Luvada Cato, Sturdivant.

EASTER

Sing "Alleluia!" Christ is Risen...and the Divine Miracle of Easter, the glorious message of Easter live forevermore. At this holy, happy season, voices raised in song and prayer are eloquent with gratitude for God's great gift to man, for hope fulfilled and faith triumphant, for spiritual blessings manifold, and joy everlasting.

At Eastertide, the light that shines in a youngster's eyes, the sound of a young voice joyously proclaiming the glory of the Day may well symbolize for all of us the hope and promise that is Easter. As we gather in the House of the Lord, with our family and friends, may the Easter season bring to us spiritual strength and joy.

It's Our Privilege . . . to Extend
Greetings Sincere, Wishes Warm,
To Our Many Valued Friends . . .
May You Have a Glorious Easter

FROM THIS SLIGHT SEED

Easter holds many spiritual wonders. Not the least among them is the almost miraculous way in which a few short sentences in the Bible carry the Easter story from generation to generation.

Read this brief story again. There are other references in the Bible, parallel in their content, but this version is from the Gospel of John and was translated into modern English for the gospel issued as a booklet, "One Way for Modern Man," by the American Bible Society:

But on the first day of the week, Mary of Magdala arrived at the tomb, very early in the morning, while it was still dark, and noticed that the stone had been taken away from the tomb. At this she ran, found Simon Peter and the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and told them, "They have taken the Lord out of the tomb and we don't know where they have put him."

Peter and the other disciple set off at once for the tomb, the two of them running together. The other disciple ran faster than Peter and was the first to arrive at the tomb. He stopped and looked inside and noticed the linen cloths lying there but did not go in himself. Hard on his heels came Simon Peter, who went straight into the tomb. He noticed that the linen cloths were lying there, and that the handerchief, which had been round Jesus' head, was not lying with the linen cloths but was rolled up by itself, a little way apart. Then the other disciple, who was the first to arrive at the tomb, came inside as well, saw what had happened and believed. (They did not yet understand the scripture which said that he must rise from the dead.) So the disciples went back again to their homes.

But Mary stood just outside the tomb, and she was crying. And as she cried, she looked into the tomb and saw two angels in white who sat, one at the head, and one at the foot of the place where the body of Jesus had lain.

The angels spoke to her, "Why are you crying?" they asked.

"Because they have taken away my Lord and I don't know where they have put him!" she said.

Then she turned and noticed Jesus standing there, without realizing that it was Jesus.

"Why are you crying?" said Jesus to her. "Who are you looking for?"

She, supposing that he was a gardener, said, "Oh, sir, if you have carried him away, please tell me where you have put him and I will take him away."

Jesus said to her, "Mary!"

At this she turned right around and said to him, in Hebrew, "Master!"

"No!" said Jesus, "do not hold me now. I have not yet gone up to my Father. Go and tell my brothers that I am going up to my Father, and your Father, to my God and your God."

And Mary of Magdala went off to the disciples with the news, "I have seen the Lord!" and she told them what he had said to her.

These simple words are the foundation truths on which the entire structure of Christianity has been built and which over the centuries have brought hope and courage to a multitude of Christians in the world.

The sentences do not multiply although they have been the inspiration for literally billions of written and spoken words since they were written. Still the words seem to grow in strength and bulk with each year's repetition of the familiar procession of old winters departing and new springs arriving, just as the roots of a giant tree spread and swell with sturdy might, piercing ever deeper into the soil as these same years pass.

FIFTY YEARS AFTER THE TROUBLES

Two weeks of ceremonies commemorating the 50th anniversary of the 1916 Easter Monday uprising in Ireland begin on Sunday (April 10).

FLAGS WILL BE FLOWN, speeches will be delivered, and soldiers will march to the tune of The Soldier's Song. Sure and there'll be fine words about Charles Stewart Parnell and Daniel O'Connell and Padriac Pearse and James Connolly and Constance, Countess Markiewicz, and all the other Irish patriots. And, the Lord willing, there shan't be a bomb.

For the Irish this April is a time to be both merry and sad -- it was G. K. Chesterton who said of the Irish, "All their wars are merry, all their sons are sad." Beginning on Easter Sunday the Emerald Isle will be awash with a fortnight of ceremonies dedicated to that merry and sad abortion, the Easter Rebellion of 1916. The proper anniversary is that of Easter Monday, which 50 years ago fell on April 24, but the Irish can be forgiven for beginning a tiny bit early.

On that Easter Monday half a century ago a "Provisional Government of the Irish Republic" was declared, and the Irish Revolutionary Army was founded. The British government quickly put down the uprising after heavy fighting. The outburst had been organized by the Irish nationalist Sinn Fein party with German encouragement.

Some 3500 men and women were arrested, and the British made the great mistake of executing 15, who promptly became martyrs. Among the leaders was the American-born Eamon de Valera, who today is President of the Irish Republic.

"DEV" was sentenced to death, reprieved, was then released. He was reimprisoned in 1918, and in the following January, still in jail, was elected President of the newly proclaimed Republic.

The formal partition of Ireland, with the six northern counties remaining in the United Kingdom by choice, was expedited by the Irish Free State Treaty of 1921, negotiated only after further clashes between the IRA, the military force of De Valera's Sinn Feiners, and troops of the Crown, reinforced by "black-and-tans" and other military cadets.

Parts of the treaty were "distasteful" to De Valera, who resigned from the Presidency, split the Sinn Fein, and plunged Ireland into civil war. "We made it possible for the British government to rule Ireland," De Valera boasted, "and we can make it impossible for an Irish government working under British authority to rule Ireland."

IN THE CIVIL WAR some 10,000 IRA Irregulars were imprisoned, and some 50 executed. De Valera in 1923 ordered his followers to lay aside their arms. In 1925, however, the IRA cut free from De Valera; in 1931 it was proscribed in a public safety act. Meanwhile De Valera reorganized his party and in 1927 went into Parliament. He was elected President of the Executive Council in 1932. The new Republic became completely free of Britain only in April 1949.

The underground IRA announced that its terror raid of 1961 was its finale. The blowing up of the Dublin pillar dedicated to Lord Nelson last March 8 was an act of violence resented by a good many Irish patriots.

A Belfast poet and clergyman, W. R. Rodgers, writing in the N. Y. Times recently, foresees eventual reunion between North and South Ireland. Everyone may hope for this kind of peaceful resolution, for just as Paris is everyone's second city, Ireland seems to be everyone's second country.

ROCKY ORIGIN

The site now occupied by Little Rock, Arkansas, was named by a French explorer, Sleur Bernard de la Harpe, in 1722. The explorer picked the name to distinguish the site from a larger rocky formation farther up the river. The town was started in 1820 after the spot had been chosen for the capital.

100 YEARS OF A.S.P.C.A.

Henry Bergh, the American pioneer in animal protection, had reason to rejoice 100 years ago. Badgered by Bergh and his supporters, the New York state legislature granted a charter of incorporation to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on April 10, 1866. In honor of the centennial, April has been designated A.S.P.C.A. Charter Month.

Bergh was said to resemble Don Quixote--and his efforts on behalf of maltreated animals seemed quixotic indeed to his contemporaries. The wealthy ex-diplomat, always impeccably attired, often startled New Yorkers by delivering impromptu curbside sermons on the evils of beating horses. But public scorn turned to concern after Bergh told an audience at Clinton Hall in February 1866 of the various cruelties inflicted on animals.

Now that the carriage horse has gone the way of the celluloid collar, A.S.P.C.A. and its allies have turned their attention to the welfare of household pets. Petnaping appears to have become a lucrative and growing, though furtive, enterprise. Large numbers of unleashed cats and dogs have been snatched off suburban streets and sold to laboratories for medical research. Because they are usually well fed and inoculated, pet animals command higher prices than undernourished, parasite-ridden strays.

But petnaping's days may be numbered. The House Agriculture Committee has reported a bill to outlaw the practice, and the Senate Commerce Committee is expected to follow suit. Related bills, which would regulate the treatment of laboratory animals, are unlikely to get anywhere. As Bergh discovered a century ago, lawmakers place a higher value on the medical benefits of animal research than on the comfort of the affected animals.

Because people are inclined to take for granted everything they possess or can buy, this small daily, as are all others, isn't as much appreciated as it should be.

Under Jack Stapleton, a member of one of Missouri's newspaper families, the Kennett newspaper has won a reputation for having an outstanding editorial page and for thorough, well balanced and impartial coverage of the news in the Bootheel. There are few if any small dailies in Missouri or in the United States, published in communities the size of Kennett, which can compare with it.

Many small dailies have abandoned the editorial page and no longer speak out with opinions about community, state, national and international affairs. A newspaper without an editorial page also is a weak spokesman for a community because its brain and voice both are muted and its function cannot be to lead but only to record the day's events.

It is doubtful if many small dailies mold opinion through the editorial page but those which carry editorials do stimulate a thought.

Letters to the editor are evidence of this but reflect only a fraction of the citizen thought generated by opinion and comment on public affairs.

There are others.

The small daily, which publishes regardless of demand for advertising space on any given day, is providing a flexible service for both its readers and its advertisers. News can be accomodated while it is still fresh and interesting. Advertisers can be obliged with the same flexibility.

Moving perishable items is easy in a daily newspaper where it is difficult for a newspaper less frequently published.

There are many other reasons why the daily's flexibility better meets the needs of the advertiser, who also can offer merchandise for sale at the time of the greatest interest and buying appeal.

It also is true that the merchant can advertise more often and more effectively in a daily.

This, of course, produces greater revenue for the newspaper but the important thing is the greater service and sales potential that it gives the advertiser. If this weren't so fewer advertisers would be using newspaper space with such great frequency. The proof is in the cash register.

The small daily newspaper publisher has problems. It isn't all gravy. He uses more paper, ink and electricity. He must employ more people to put out his high speed newspaper with daily frequency. His machinery wears out faster. His repair bills are greater. He must have more equipment and enough in reserve to take care of breakdowns so that the newspaper will not be delayed in reaching readers.

There are many issues of a daily newspaper that aren't nearly as profitable as the single issue of a weekly newspaper.

The daily newspaper publisher must accept philosophically the narrow profit margin or even lack of profit of a paper on a low advertising day. He does so with the knowledge that the averages will save him and with the idea that he is performing a useful, flexible convenient public service.

That's what the Dunklin Democrat is doing every day and what every successful small daily is doing.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ

"Freedom -- When?" by James Farmer. A national leader has written on the role of the Congress of Racial Equality in the civil rights campaign--its past accomplishments, present efforts and future plans. In part, this book is autobiographical. CORE began with over-optimistic hopes about the immediate achievement of freedom. Now James Farmer and most of the membership realize the complexities of the problem. Without giving up non-violent demonstrations where appropriate, CORE has turned to other methods such as community programs and political action. CORE helped to organize the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, and is doing likewise elsewhere. All in all, the author presents a strongly dramatic narrative of the work of a significant organization.

WANT A JOB? HERE'S A TIP

Looking for a job?

Planning your future?

Then you may be interested in a little pamphlet the U.S. Labor Department has produced.

By ruthless pruning, the government experts have compressed into a mere 862 pages their educated guesses on the employment outlook in the next decade.

What it boils down to is that your best bet to latch on to a job and climb the ladder of success is to become one of these:

A scientist, mathematician, electronic maintenance worker, computer programmer, teacher, repairman, librarian, air-conditioning and refrigeration mechanic, construction craftsman, health or welfare worker--or, of course, a government employe, especially on the state or local level.

The forecasters believe you'll be betting on a long shot if you settle for unskilled work in industry or on the farm. Even semiskilled labor doesn't look too hot. (Automation and the technology boom, you know.)

This would seem to suggest to the job seeker or career planner that he:

1. Go to school or vocational training classes or do anything else to learn as much as he can.

2. Ask his wife or mother to please use one of those miracle detergents that washes whiter than white. (For the white collar wearer, it seems to be true, will land a job faster than the man who wears blue.)

All this may not be exactly the way some of us would prefer it to be. But it seems to be the surest path to pay check and progress.

Can you think of a better incentive to go along with the trend?

Doc. Duncan Says

See by the paper congress has done away with the unwritten law the King can do no wrong by passing Tort claims act in 1946 wherby Unk can be sued, looks like our lawmakers and others who seem to be conspiring to grab the rich minerals and oil under the guise of parks & etc. have overlooked this law, that could cost the lawmakers their job and others a pretty penny. since there is no good reason for parks, federal or state, to slip that slick trick over.

Evidently this Tort claims law was aims at our own Harry Trumann by the Big oil Boys who then appeared to be boss and has continued to be, apparently. it was reported Unk sent n oil rig to Malden at the same time the big boys started drilling in Stoddard county. It was reported after the rig from Unk struck 10' of saturation at 2300' a big lawmaker from Okla forced that rig shipper to Wyo. at that time Unk was in what appeared a just war then and now and oil was a precious commodity. We have often wondered if all this will come out in Mr. Trumanns memors or will he keep silent for the good of the party?

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- Attorney General Nick Katzenbach has sent a considerable number of federal registrars to enroll Negro voters in the south, but there is one county where registrars are as scarce as water on the Sahara -- Sunflower County, Miss.

This happens to be the home county of "Big Jim" Eastland, cigar - chomping, genial chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee, who as such rules on many justice department problems.

The fifth circuit court of appeals has unanimously ordered new elections in all but two towns in Sunflower county. Elections were held last year, and so few Negroes voted that the court essentially ruled new elections must be held after a reasonable number of Negroes were qualified to vote.

This puts it right up to the justice department. It knows that 93 per cent of the white population of Sunflower county is registered, as against only 'per cent of the Negro population. In the rest of Mississippi outside Sunflower county, 43 per cent of the Negroes are registered. In Sunflower county 65 per cent of the population is Negro.

Meanwhile, kindly Attorney General Katzenbach has sent no federal registrars to Sunflower county, the home of Sen. Eastland. He did send them last year to Bolivar county, which adjoins the rear of Sen. Eastland's plantation. But after only one day he yanked them out. You can guess who protested.

The attorney general, of course, is not unaware that a very hot election campaign is going on in Mississippi with big John Eastland running scared. In fact, he is running for his political life.

Lined up against him are Rep. Prentiss Walker, only Republican congressman elected from Mississippi, who is backed by a coalition of John Birchites, Republicans and new Negro voters. Negro voters don't love Walker, but they love Eastland less. They figure that with Eastland removed as chairman of the judiciary committee, his reactionary hand would be removed from the wrist of the justice department.

If the attorney general sent federal registrars to Sunflower county, Congressman Walker would raise the hue and cry that "Eastland can't control the justice department anymore." So, while 65 per cent of the population in Sunflower is Negro and 11 per cent is registered to vote, no registrars are sent to Sunflower county.

Note- - If Eastland should be defeated, Negroes won't get much of a break on the judiciary committee. Next in line to succeed him is John McClellan of Arkansas, who shares Eastland's race views; then Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina with similar views. After that comes Sen. Tom Dodd of Connecticut, who is for civil rights but has other problems.

FROM NBC TO WHITE HOUSE

Robert E. Kintner, former president of the American Broadcasting Company and former chairman of the National Broadcasting Company, attended his first cabinet meeting the other day as LBJ's Secretary of the Cabinet.

He sat at the large oval cabinet table as the president went the round, calling on each member of his official staff, pointedly asking questions about problems which obviously he knows as much about as the cabinet members themselves.

It was a meeting presided over by a man who never forgets a fact, has a steel trap mind and expects fast action. When it was all over, one member of the cabinet asked Kintner: "Well, what did you think of it?"

"My God!" exclaimed the somewhat dazed new secretary of the cabinet, "I've never seen anything like it."

Then headed, "you know, he could run a pretty big company."

STUDENT VACATIONS

In contrast to the thousands of students who crowded into Daytona Beach for the Easter vacation, here is what some other students have done with their vacations, both past and present.

Last Christmas, the Christian association of the University of Pennsylvania sent a delegation of students to Tribbett, Miss., to build a community center. They raised most of the money necessary for the lumber and materials, spent their vacation as carpenters.

Last Christmas, the United States National Student Association raised money, sent several hundred students to the south to work with other college students improving race relations.

This Easter, 32 students from Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, are moving into the Youngstown slum areas to work with the Neighborhood Youth Corps and high school dropouts.

Another group of Ohio University students, from foreign countries, is working in the Youngstown slum areas, painting, repairing and cleaning up houses where local residents have long been asking the city planning commission for help but not getting it. These foreign students, working in American slums, come from Nigeria, Viet Nam, Sweden, England, Brazil, Peru and Sierra Leone, the tiny Republic in West Africa.

Note -- Founder of this Ohio program is David Steeds, a graduate of Cambridge University in England, now doing graduate study at Ohio University.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Saturday, April 9 the 99th day of 1966. There are 266 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1965, Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox, ending the Civil War.

On this date

In 1792, the Pennsylvania Legislature granted a charter for the Lancaster Turnpike, the first in the United States. It joined Lancaster with Philadelphia.

In 1833, the first free public library in the United States maintained by a town and supported by public tax was established in Peterboro, N. H.

In 1966, the Civil Rights Act was passed over President Andrew Johnson's veto. It was the first federal statute to define citizenship and to safeguard civil rights within the states.

Ten years ago -- A White House statement declared the United States would observe its commitments to support the United Nations peace mission and would aid any nation in the Mideast which might be subjected to aggression.

Five years ago -- British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan flew to Canada for discussions with Canadian officials following his conference with President John F. Kennedy on world problems.

One year ago -- The firing of small, solid - fuel rockets aboard the communications satellite Early Bird put this first commercial spacecraft into an almost circular orbit about 23,000 miles above the earth.

APPOINTED

Mr. E. J. Roessel, Vice-President Sales, International Shoe Company has announced the appointment of two new Sales Executives.

Mr. Robert B. Hanson is appointed to the new position of Assistant General Manager Women's Shoes. He is assistant to Mr. Ed Gralnick, General Manager Women's Shoes, and is specifically assigned to supervise the Miss Wonderful and Personality Division.

Prior to joining International, Mr. Hanson had been with Brown Shoe Company since 1955.

Mr. Don Quigley is appointed General Manager of the Jantzen (Women's) Division to succeed Mr. Elmer Rosen who has resigned. Mr. Quigley has been Sales Representative for the Smartaire Division of Brown Shoe Company in Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin, for the past 7 years.

Both Mr. Hanson and Mr. Quigley will headquarter in St. Louis at International's General Offices at 1509 Washington.

Cold northern winds generally slowed fishing in all Missouri and Arkansas impoundments, however, those anglers who braved the elements met with fair to good success. It looks like this is the year for Table Rock, Bull Shoals, and Norfolk with a number of lunker bass in the 7 to 10 pound class being reported taken the past week. Wappapello, generally known as a crappie lake, has produced some outstanding bass catches the past few days, the largest being an 8-pound 14-ounce lunker, taken from the dam area, on a Bomber. The Missouri streams for bass are closed until May 30. However, float fishermen are taking a good number of perch and goggle-eye on flyrods. All streams are clear and low.

WISHING WINDFALL—Alan Nagao, 4½, the Hawaiian boy who is the 1966 Easter Seal child, beams over a mass of pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and half-dollars yielded up by a wishing well. The well, an eight-foot pool in the Luray Caverns of Virginia's Shenandoah Mountains, was dredged for the first time since 1960 and the more than $21,000 in coins tossed in by tourists went to the Easter Seal campaign.

All But Two are Saved

MIAMI, Fla. AP – All but two of 496 persons aboard were saved when the sleek white cruise ship Viking Princess was swept by flames that were still enveloping her off Cuba today.

Passengers reaching Miami said the disciplined evacuation of the ship smothered panic.

Latest reports said two persons died of apparent heart attacks but the other 494 persons aboard were rescued.

"Every last one of the passengers has been accounted for," said a spokesman for the Flagship Lins Agency, operators of the ship, and none was missing. The spokesman, Stanley Thea, said 10 or 11 of the survivors flown into Miami on the last flight today were injured, but none seriously.

Earlier, the navy said 484 persons were rescued and 11 were missing.

Some passengers said the 536-foot Norwegian vessel had been plagued by engine trouble through much of the seven-day Caribbean cruise. The Good Friday fire apparently started in the engine room shortly after midnight and swept quickly through the ship.

Coast Guard search and rescue headquarters at Miami reported the hulk was still afloat and still ablaze today about 60 miles southeast of Guantanamo Ba, Cuba.

Coast Guard and Navy craft stood by the once sumptuous cruise ship, now just a wallowing menace to navigation; and a salvage vessel set out from Key West to take the Viking Princess in tow if the stem-to-stern fire doesn't sink her.

The captain, Otto Thoresen, a 52-year-old Norwegian who has spent 37 years at sea, praised the passengers who were picked up after less than an hour in lifeboats by three rescue ships and taken to the U. S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

THE ANNUAL Easter egg hunt today brought children to Malone Park, this morning. Karen and Sharon Dyer, three-year-old twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dyer, 654 Park, teamed up and found the bunny had left a few eggs for them. The Junior Woman's Club sponsored hunts by three age groups. There were 165 dozen eggs for each.

Election Demanded 'In Short Time'

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Buddhist leaders of all factions united tonight against the military junta of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and demanded an elected civilian government for South Viet Nam "in a very short time."

In a proclamation read at Buddhist headquarters, the leaders announced they had formed a committee to lead the struggle against the government and appealed to "all the people wishing to show their opposition to the government" to contact the headquarters.

The move came after Ky appointed Maj. Gen. Ton That Dinh to command the 1st Corps area in an apparent attempt to reassert his government's authority over the country's northernmost regions. Dinh was one of the young officers who took part in the overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem in 1963.

Thousands of Buddhists, who have been demonstrating in the streets for the past eight days, heard the proclamation in the Buddhist compound.

It ordered the disorders to stop and said the Buddhist headquarters would take over the burden of the antigovernment cause.

The most important point in the document was the apparent unanimity of Buddhist leaders who previously had seemed split over their attitude toward Ky's junta and the war effort against the Viet Cong and Communist North Viet Nam.

Those assembled in the Buddhist compound danced with joy as the document was read. Buddhist monks in yellow robes poured into the streets of Saigon.

About 1,000 demonstrators started for the streets just before the proclamation was read but the senior monks called them back for the reading.

The document said:

"The United Buddhist Church reaffirms its position of joining the aspirations of the people. One of these aspirations is an elected congress in a very short time. This congress must be a platform where the people can speak about the sovereignty of their nation.

"Since March 1 until now the Buddhists have tried to reach a solution with the government to avoid many sacrifices and riots in Saigon. But until now many obstacles to form this congress have been put in our way.

"Meanwhile, all the activities of the people in their efforts to oppose the government have been separated. For this reason the United Buddhist Church has decided to accept leadership. We appeal to all branches of the United Buddhist Church to declare an emergency to all Buddhists and to inform them that all separate activities against the government must stop and that the headquarters of the Buddhist Church must be notified before new ones begin."

The statement continued: "The new organization is called the Viet Nam Buddhist Forces and it is directed by Thich Thien Minh (Director of Youth Affairs) and Thich Ho Giac (Director of Lay Affairs). These two venerables will lead the Buddhists in their struggle. For all the people wishing to show their opposition to the government, please contact our headquarters at Vien Hoa Dao. We will dictate the time and place."

As 1st Corps commander, Dinh took charge of the northernmost area of South Viet Nam, including the cities of Da Nang and Hue, where the antigovernment demonstrations have centered.

He replaced Maj. Gen. Nguyen Van Chuan, appointed by the junta last month to replace Lt. Gen. Nguyen Chanh Thi. The junta's ousting of Thi touched off the demonstrations.

Dinh flew to Da Nang and Hue today and reportedly held a two-hour meeting with Buddhist leaders and Brig. Gen. Phan Xuan Nhuan, commander of the 1st Division at Hue. At Da Nang he met with U. S. Marine commander Lt. Gen. Lewis Walt.

U. S. Navy river craft and Marine helicopters evacuated more than 700 American civilians, off-duty military personnel and foreign nations from Da Nang.

An antigovernment demonstration by about 500 students at Dalat, 140 mives northeast of Saigon, was dispersed by Vietnamese rangers using tear gas and firing into the air.

God Doesn't Ask Understanding

The Rev. Myron Neal, pastor of the First Christian Church, sermon topic was "Eloi, Eloi," taken from Mark 15:34.

The services were sponsored by the ministerial alliance of which the Rev. Mr. Neal is president.

An organ prelude was given by Miss Neva May Taylor.

The Rev. Mr. Neal told the audience that it must have seemed unbelievable to have observed Jesus Christ hanging and dying on the cross after being welcomed with open arms into the city of Nazareth two days before.

He said that Jesus said many things that people expected of him.

"But people have wondered through the ages at his saying, My God, My God, why has Thou forsaken me?" the minister continued.

Many answers people want are not found until they join the Church and live a Christian life.

"We are not fit to save our own souls. I unashameably admit I rely on God.

"Too often, people who come into church are seeking pleasure and too often, they relax in the luxury of mystery.

"God doesn't ask that you understand, He asks that you love Him."

Stars Eyed in Space

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —A 10-eyed mechanical astronomer named Orbiting Astronomical Observatory sped around the earth today packed with the potential to unlock a host of celestial secrets.

After five postponements caused by weather and mechanical problems during the last two weeks, OAO rocketed from Cape Kennedy into a near-perfect orbit ranging from 502 to 496 miles above the earth.

Radio commands from the ground today were controlling the large satellite like a fine precision watch as its 10 telescopic eyes were gently positioned to stare at stars, the galaxies, nebulae and interstellar gases.

From its lofty orbit, OAO can view stars from above the cloak of the earth's atmosphere, which blocks out radiation from many celestial objects.

The wave length, intensity and direction of interstellar radiation is the basis for many calculations concerning how stars were created and what chemical elements are in them.

As the spacecraft rode on the wings of success, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration continued to study data filtering in on an ill-fated attempt by a Centaur rocket to ignite its hydrogen-fueled engines twice in space Thursday night.

Centaur project officials said the space agency was "looking very closely" at the data to see if any changes were needed on an even larger hydrogen rocket stage scheduled to blast off July 18 as the upper stage of a giant Saturn 1B rocket.

Edward Jonash, Centaur project manager for NASA's Lewis Research Center, said preliminary indications show that a Centaur rocket failed to ignite twice in space because of an inadequate fuel supply.

Rhodesia Problem before U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council was finally called into session to deal with Rhodesia today after a 40-hour delay which brought angry Western charges against the council's African president.

Informed sources said the Rhodesian debate might be held up by a series of Western speeches criticizing Ambassador Moussa Leo Keita of Mali, the council president, for alleged misuse of his power.

Some Western diplomats said the 38-year-old council president had brought the world organization face to face with a new constitutional crisis, involving the ability of the council to act in an urgent situation.

Britain originally had requested an urgent meeting for 4 p.m. Thursday and pressed hard for a meeting Friday, but Keita refused to call the meeting even after eight of the council's 15 members staged a sit-in in the council chamber Thursday night. He finally announced Friday that the meeting would be held this morning.

Before the council was a British resolution under which Britain would be authorized to use force, if necessary, to halt shipments of oil to Rhodesia by way of Portuguese Mozambique.

Keita said he was delaying the council meeting for further consultations, but British sources said privately the delay was linked with alleged plans of African countries to sabotage economic sanctions against Rhodesia and force Britain to resort to military action to end the Rhodesian rebellion.

Johnson Resumes His Folksy Style

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has recaptured the glowing mood and free-wheeling oratorical style of his first year in the White House.

This has become apparent during the past week — and particularly since his return Thursday to his native Texas — as he has largely ignored prepared speech texts and teleprompters to do what seems to come naturally.

Homey, off-the-cuff philosophy and reminiscences once again flow from his lips at every opportunity. And there is hand-shaking and baby-kissing.

Strangely, Johnson's renewed expansiveness has coincided with menacing political developments in South Viet Nam.

Perhaps the return home has been responsible, for as he told a San Antonio audience Friday, "I get a great deal of pleasure out of returning to the scenes of my childhood."

Perhaps spring has done it — here in central Texas where the bluebonnets are in bloom and the temperature, even under cloudy skies, heads toward the 80s.

Speaking mostly without notes, he increased by 400 per cent the length of a prepared speech here on signing a new law giving older citizens until May 31 to sign up for voluntary doctors' bills insurance under medicare.

"I remember," he said, "what my father said to me about public service when I was a little boy walking around following him barefooted and standing there in the hot sand of Blanco County, and squeezing the dirt up between my toes. He used to say to me, 'Son, if you are to speak for people, you must know them, and if you are to represent people, you must love them.' "

He chided those in his audience who grew restive as the master of ceremonies, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., spent many minutes introducing local dignitaries in the crowd — and some who didn't make it. Said Johnson:

"I thought that some of our sophisticated folks might say this morning that Henry was introducing too many people. But that just shows how he feels about human beings. He didn't want one single person to be neglected. He wanted to recognize the dignity of every person here because they might be pretty unimportant to a stranger but they are not unimportant to Henry, or to me."

That this bothered him was apparent as he said at another point:

"If any of you want to leave, you can leave. If any of you are in a hurry, you can go on. I stay in a hurry all the time. I am back home now and I am not going to hurry. I am going to do what I like to do."

And that's just what the president did.

Hearing Set For April 20

Shirley Coleman, Sikeston, was fined $25 for fighting in public.

Leverni Stewart, Sikeston, pleaded innocent to fighting in public.

Cab and Milk Prices Increase

The cost of living in Sikeston is on the increase.

This week, two cab companies increased fares 10 cents and 15 cents extra for handling of groceries and baggage. The increase was attributed to increased living costs and operating costs.

Last month, the cost of milk increased three to four cents on a half gallon.

Prices being paid to farmers are approximately 80 to 90 cents more per 100 pounds than during April last year.

Dogwood Tour April 17

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- April 17 has been selected by Cape Girardeau florists as the Sunday when area dogwood will be at its best for viewing.

The Trail of Tears state park has attracted more than 1,000 carloads of nature lovers during each of the four years the tour has been held.

The profuse bloom is rated by many as the heaviest 1 1/2 mile concentration of native dogwood in the midwest. The Trail of Tears State Park is eight miles north of Cape Girardeau.

Drive maps and copies of the "Legend of the Dogwood" will be given motorists by Jaycees at an information station set up on Cape Rock Drive near Wimpy's at the intersection of U. S. highway 61 and Cape Rock drive. The tour will be marked with orange arrows.

World Will Greet Easter

By RONALD I. DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

Christians around the world prepare today to mark Easter with sunrise services and fashion parades in observance of the joyous holiday commemorating the Resurrection of Christ.

From the solemn splendor of St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City to thousands of lesser known places of worship in many lands, choirs will sing and people will gather to hear messages of hope for a better world.

"Easter, the greatest annual demonstration of the life force, should encourage us as we struggle for racial justice and human brotherhood," said the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, president of the Protestant Council, in an Easter appeal.

Along with millions of fellow churchgoers of Western Christianity, two million Greek Orthodox worshippers and five million others from Eastern Orthodox churches will celebrate Easter Sunday. Not until 1974 will both Eastern and Western churches observe the holiday again on the same day.

Roman Catholics gathered today for an Easter vigil service in St. Peter's Basilica. In memory of the day Christ was hidden in the tomb, a simple rite was planned known as the "Blessing of the Fire" — with a flame symbolizing the return of Christ to the world.

A half million tourists were on hand in Rome for the Easter observance.

Lion Turns On Model

NEW YORK AP -- A lion posing with a pretty model at an auto show preview suddenly turned on her and inflicted a gash in her left thigh. The animal held on until a keeper pried its jaws open.

The brunette model, Nell Theobald, 22, was described in satisfactory condition today at Roosevelt Hospital. Doctors said that she may need several plastic surgery operations to repair the damage.

The 2-year-old, 225-pound lion was supposed to bite through a red ribbon and officially open the International Automobile Show at the Coliseum Friday.

The lion appeared calm enough as the girl knelt beside him. Then television cameras moved and flash bulbs went off, and the lion turned on the model.

Viet Nam Dove Turns Hawk on Population Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dove on Viet Nam, Sen. Ernest Gruening turns hawk in his quest for federal efforts to promote population control.

"We're trying to bring this problem out into the open, to dramatize it," the Alaska Democrat said in an interview.

In that effort, Gruening is presiding over the Senate's longest-running show, a nine-month series of hearings on the birth control question.

He doesn't plan to stop until Congress acts.

Gruening, at 79, has been a doctor, a journalist, an appointed governor of Alaska and a senator since it became a state. Along with fellow Democrat Wayne Morse of Oregon, he is one of the two chief Senate critics of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Gruening said his concern about birth control began more than 50 years ago, when he was attending Harvard Medical School.

Now, without bold government action, he foresees a nation victimized by its own exploding population, packed into a vast urban sprawl, short on water and resources.

"The world isn't going to be fit to live in if the population keeps doubling every 30 years," he said. "I'm glad I won't be alive to see it."

Six Admitted For Emergencies

Six persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Friday.

William Taylor, fell and hit head, injuring eye; Vernon, Evon and Yvonne Snider, all of Flint, Mich., auto accident; Patsy Morrow, injured foot on piece of iron and Sam Hunter, car accident.

Ants have been living in miniature cities for more than 80 million years.

Inflation Debate Grows in Intensity

NEW YORK (AP) — The great debate — do we or don't we have inflation? —is growing in intensity.

Gardner Ackley, President Johnson's chief economic adviser, says he is more "hopeful and confident" than many private economists that the nation can avoid inflation without an immediate tax increase.

The purchasing executives, who are close to the price situation, say of inflation: "The only question is whether it is creeping, crawling, walking, running or galloping."

The association reports that in its March poll of members 76 per cent reported paying higher prices, up from 62 per cent in February. The figure is the highest since September 1956 when a steel strike settlement triggered general price rises.

For the first time in nine years no member reported an overall price decline. The figure had been running at 1 per cent for the last few months.

Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said in a copyright interview in U.S. News & World Report that the administration could not "tolerate for very long the rate of price increase of the past months."

However, he added that there are signs that inflationary pressures are coming under control.

"Recently there has been a slower advance in bank credits," he said. "The money supply actually fell in February. We have seen the postponement of a lot of bond issues."

He noted that wholesale prices have climbed 4 per cent in the past year but said, "Now it looks as if we have turned the

Two Deer Struck By Cars, Killed

Two deer were killed when struck by cars Thursday and Friday, near Poplar Bluff and Greenville, the highway patrol reports.

Hulen Haywood, 23, Piggott, Ark., driving a 1966 Chevrolet, Thursday morning, ran into a young buck crossing highway 67 south of Greenville, killing it.

Friday at 4:10 a.m., Claude Robinson, 77, St. Louis, struck and killed a young buck while it was crossing at the intersection of route W and D, near Poplar Bluff.

Two vehicles collided on highway 60, two miles west of Morehouse at 4:10 p.m. yesterday. A 1965 Buick, driven by Vernon Snider, 33, Flint, Mich., started around a 1960 GMC bus, driven by Donald W. Dehnichne, 26, Brookfield, Ill.

The bus driver began to turn left, causing the Buick to run into a bridge railing, the highway patrol reported.

Myrtle Sifford, 57, Florrisant, a passenger in a 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by her husband, Raleigh Sifford, 61, Florrisant, received a broken right ankle, Friday at 9:55 a.m. near Dexter.

Bombers Hit Cong Center

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers struck at a Viet Cong communications center in the Communist D Zone 35 miles northeast of Saigon today dumping more than half a million pounds of explosives on the area, an Air Force spokesman said

Flying single file, the giant planes made what the spokesman described as a "major assault" on the Viet Cong's military region No. 7.

Apparently prisoners captured by the 173rd Airborne Brigade and 1st Infantry Division in heavy fighting against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong several weeks ago provided information to pin down the location of a 10-building communications center which operated radio contact for the entire sector.

A major strike of B52's usually means 10 of the eight-engine bombers. Each is normally equipped to drop 50 750-pound bombs. A spokesman said this flight consisted of planes equipped to carry 60,000 pounds each.

U.S. Lost H-Bomb Twice During Hunt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States lost the elusive H-bomb a second time for nine days during the great 80-day search off Spain — and was in danger of losing it forever in a yawning undersea canyon, it was learned today.

The 1.1 megaton device, retrieved from 2,900 feet deep in the Mediterranean Thursday, had shifted two weeks earlier along a widening ravine to within a few hundred feet of a canyon extending to depths of 4,000 feet — beyond the capability of retrieval equipment.

This exasperating development occurred when one-inch thick nylon line snapped as a surface vessel's winch dragged the bomb up a 70-degree slope toward level area.

The silvery, eight-ton bomb toppled 100 feet back into the underwater ravine and sank in the muck-filled bottom. There it remained hidden until April 3 when the miniature sub Alvin, after repeated groping about the black depths, sighted a piece of the weapon's parachute protruding from the mud.

Four days later, in the early morning hours in Washington, a cryptic message from Rear Adm. William S. Guest in Spain clacked off a Teletype machine in a Navy command post in the Pentagon:

"Target on deck of Petrel and

Artificial Kidney May Fight Cancer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The artificial kidney may provide a new and unexpected aide in the chemical warfare on cancer, a scientist reported today.

Dr. Pierre M. Galletti of Palermo, Italy, said experiments with dogs suggest the possibility of linking the robot kidney to a patient being given powerful, but potentially dangerous anti-cancer drugs — and using the robot to cleanse the patient's blood of drug remnants remaining after the chemical attack on the cancer site.

The idea, he told a scientific meeting, is to intercept the blood flowing back towards the heart from the cancer site, cleanse it in the machine, and shunt it back towards the heart.

The drug used in the initial attack on the cancer site would have been injected into an artery taking blood away from the heart, so that phase would not present a safety problem, he indicated.

Galletti, a visiting researcher at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., described the animal experiments to the annual meeting of the American Society for Artificial Internal Organs.

All But Two are Saved

MIAMI, Fla. AP – All but two of 496 persons aboard were saved when the sleek white cruise ship Viking Princess was swept by flames that were still enveloping her off Cuba today.

Passengers reaching Miami said the disciplined evacuation of the ship smothered panic.

Latest reports said two persons died of apparent heart attacks but the other 494 persons aboard were rescued.

"Every last one of the passengers has been accounted for," said a spokesman for the Flagship Lins Agency, operators of the ship, and none was missing. The spokesman, Stanley Thea, said 10 or 11 of the survivors flown into Miami on the last flight today were injured, but none seriously.

Earlier, the navy said 484 persons were rescued and 11 were missing.

Some passengers said the 536-foot Norwegian vessel had been plagued by engine trouble through much of the seven-day Caribbean cruise. The Good Friday fire apparently started in the engine room shortly after midnight and swept quickly through the ship.

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —A 10-eyed mechanical astronomer named Orbiting Astronomical Observatory sped around the earth today packed with the potential to unlock a host of celestial secrets.

After five postponements caused by weather and mechanical problems during the last two weeks, OAO rocketed from Cape Kennedy into a near-perfect orbit ranging from 502 to 496 miles above the earth.

Radio commands from the ground today were controlling the large satellite like a fine precision watch as its 10 telescopic eyes were gently positioned to stare at stars, the galaxies, nebulae and interstellar gases.

The wave length, intensity and direction of interstellar radiation is the basis for many calculations concerning how stars were created and what chemical elements are in them.

As the spacecraft rode on the wings of success, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration continued to study data filtering in on an ill-fated attempt by a Centaur rocket to ignite its hydrogen-fueled engines twice in space Thursday night.

Centaur project officials said the space agency was "looking very closely" at the data to see if any changes were needed on an even larger hydrogen rocket stage scheduled to blast off July 18 as the upper stage of a giant Saturn 1B rocket.

Edward Jonash, Centaur project manager for NASA's Lewis Research Center, said preliminary indications show that a Centaur rocket failed to ignite twice in space because of an inadequate fuel supply.

Johnson Resumes His Folksy Style

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has recaptured the glowing mood and free-wheeling oratorical style of his first year in the White House.

This has become apparent during the past week — and particularly since his return Thursday to his native Texas — as he has largely ignored prepared speech texts and teleprompters to do what seems to come naturally.

Homey, off-the-cuff philosophy and reminiscences once again flow from his lips at every opportunity. And there is hand-shaking and baby-kissing.

Strangely, Johnson's renewed expansiveness has coincided with menacing political developments in South Viet Nam.

Perhaps the return home has been responsible, for as he told a San Antonio audience Friday, "I get a great deal of pleasure out of returning to the scenes of my childhood."

Perhaps spring has done it — here in central Texas where the bluebonnets are in bloom and the temperature, even under cloudy skies, heads toward the 80s.

Speaking mostly without notes, he increased by 400 per cent the length of a prepared speech here on signing a new law giving older citizens until May 31 to sign up for voluntary doctors' bills insurance under medicare.

"I remember," he said, "what my father said to me about public service when I was a little boy walking around following him barefooted and standing there in the hot sand of Blanco County, and squeezing the dirt up between my toes. He used to say to me, 'Son, if you are to speak for people, you must know them, and if you are to represent people, you must love them.' "

He chided those in his audience who grew restive as the master of ceremonies, Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, D-Tex., spent many minutes introducing local dignitaries in the crowd — and some who didn't make it. Said Johnson:

"I thought that some of our sophisticated folks might say this morning that Henry was introducing too many people. But that just shows how he feels about human beings. He didn't want one single person to be neglected. He wanted to recognize the dignity of every person here because they might be pretty unimportant to a stranger but they are not unimportant to Henry, or to me."

That this bothered him was apparent as he said at another point:

"If any of you want to leave, you can leave. If any of you are in a hurry, you can go on. I stay in a hurry all the time. I am back home now and I am not going to hurry. I am going to do what I like to do."

And that's just what the president did.

Hearing Set For April 20

Shirley Coleman, Sikeston, was fined $25 for fighting in public.

Leverni Stewart, Sikeston, pleaded innocent to fighting in public.

Rhodesia Problem before U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council was finally called into session to deal with Rhodesia today after a 40-hour delay which brought angry Western charges against the council's African president.

Informed sources said the Rhodesian debate might be held up by a series of Western speeches criticizing Ambassador Moussa Leo Keita of Mali, the council president, for alleged misuse of his power.

Some Western diplomats said the 38-year-old council president had brought the world organization face to face with a new constitutional crisis, involving the ability of the council to act in an urgent situation.

Britain originally had requested an urgent meeting for 4 p.m. Thursday and pressed hard for a meeting Friday, but Keita refused to call the meeting even after eight of the council's 15 members staged a sit-in in the council chamber Thursday night. He finally announced Friday that the meeting would be held this morning.

Before the council was a British resolution under which Britain would be authorized to use force, if necessary, to halt shipments of oil to Rhodesia by way of Portuguese Mozambique.

Keita said he was delaying the council meeting for further consultations, but British sources said privately the delay was linked with alleged plans of African countries to sabotage economic sanctions against Rhodesia and force Britain to resort to military action to end the Rhodesian rebellion.

World Will Greet Easter

By RONALD I. DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer

Christians around the world prepare today to mark Easter with sunrise services and fashion parades in observance of the joyous holiday commemorating the Resurrection of Christ.

From the solemn splendor of St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City to thousands of lesser known places of worship in many lands, choirs will sing and people will gather to hear messages of hope for a better world.

"Easter, the greatest annual demonstration of the life force, should encourage us as we struggle for racial justice and human brotherhood," said the Rev. Dr. Norman Vincent Peale, president of the Protestant Council, in an Easter appeal.

Along with millions of fellow churchgoers of Western Christianity, two million Greek Orthodox worshippers and five million others from Eastern Orthodox churches will celebrate Easter Sunday. Not until 1974 will both Eastern and Western churches observe the holiday again on the same day.

Roman Catholics gathered today for an Easter vigil service in St. Peter's Basilica. In memory of the day Christ was hidden in the tomb, a simple rite was planned known as the "Blessing of the Fire" — with a flame symbolizing the return of Christ to the world.

A half million tourists were on hand in Rome for the Easter observance.

Lion Turns On Model

NEW YORK AP -- A lion posing with a pretty model at an auto show preview suddenly turned on her and inflicted a gash in her left thigh. The animal held on until a keeper pried its jaws open.

The brunette model, Nell Theobald, 22, was described in satisfactory condition today at Roosevelt Hospital. Doctors said that she may need several plastic surgery operations to repair the damage.

The 2-year-old, 225-pound lion was supposed to bite through a red ribbon and officially open the International Automobile Show at the Coliseum Friday.

The lion appeared calm enough as the girl knelt beside him. Then television cameras moved and flash bulbs went off, and the lion turned on the model.

Viet Nam Dove Turns Hawk on Population Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A dove on Viet Nam, Sen. Ernest Gruening turns hawk in his quest for federal efforts to promote population control.

"We're trying to bring this problem out into the open, to dramatize it," the Alaska Democrat said in an interview.

In that effort, Gruening is presiding over the Senate's longest-running show, a nine-month series of hearings on the birth control question.

He doesn't plan to stop until Congress acts.

Gruening, at 79, has been a doctor, a journalist, an appointed governor of Alaska and a senator since it became a state. Along with fellow Democrat Wayne Morse of Oregon, he is one of the two chief Senate critics of U.S. policy in Viet Nam.

Gruening said his concern about birth control began more than 50 years ago, when he was attending Harvard Medical School.

Now, without bold government action, he foresees a nation victimized by its own exploding population, packed into a vast urban sprawl, short on water and resources.

"The world isn't going to be fit to live in if the population keeps doubling every 30 years," he said. "I'm glad I won't be alive to see it."

Six Admitted For Emergencies

Six persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Friday.

William Taylor, fell and hit head, injuring eye; Vernon, Evon and Yvonne Snider, all of Flint, Mich., auto accident; Patsy Morrow, injured foot on piece of iron and Sam Hunter, car accident.

Ants have been living in miniature cities for more than 80 million years.

Inflation Debate Grows in Intensity

NEW YORK (AP) — The great debate — do we or don't we have inflation? —is growing in intensity.

Gardner Ackley, President Johnson's chief economic adviser, says he is more "hopeful and confident" than many private economists that the nation can avoid inflation without an immediate tax increase.

The purchasing executives, who are close to the price situation, say of inflation: "The only question is whether it is creeping, crawling, walking, running or galloping."

The association reports that in its March poll of members 76 per cent reported paying higher prices, up from 62 per cent in February. The figure is the highest since September 1956 when a steel strike settlement triggered general price rises.

For the first time in nine years no member reported an overall price decline. The figure had been running at 1 per cent for the last few months.

Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said in a copyright interview in U.S. News & World Report that the administration could not "tolerate for very long the rate of price increase of the past months."

However, he added that there are signs that inflationary pressures are coming under control.

"Recently there has been a slower advance in bank credits," he said. "The money supply actually fell in February. We have seen the postponement of a lot of bond issues."

He noted that wholesale prices have climbed 4 per cent in the past year but said, "Now it looks as if we have turned the

Bombers Hit Cong Center

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers struck at a Viet Cong communications center in the Communist D Zone 35 miles northeast of Saigon today dumping more than half a million pounds of explosives on the area, an Air Force spokesman said

Flying single file, the giant planes made what the spokesman described as a "major assault" on the Viet Cong's military region No. 7.

Apparently prisoners captured by the 173rd Airborne Brigade and 1st Infantry Division in heavy fighting against North Vietnamese and Viet Cong several weeks ago provided information to pin down the location of a 10-building communications center which operated radio contact for the entire sector.

A major strike of B52's usually means 10 of the eight-engine bombers. Each is normally equipped to drop 50 750-pound bombs. A spokesman said this flight consisted of planes equipped to carry 60,000 pounds each.

U.S. Lost H-Bomb Twice During Hunt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States lost the elusive H-bomb a second time for nine days during the great 80-day search off Spain — and was in danger of losing it forever in a yawning undersea canyon, it was learned today.

The 1.1 megaton device, retrieved from 2,900 feet deep in the Mediterranean Thursday, had shifted two weeks earlier along a widening ravine to within a few hundred feet of a canyon extending to depths of 4,000 feet — beyond the capability of retrieval equipment.

This exasperating development occurred when one-inch thick nylon line snapped as a surface vessel's winch dragged the bomb up a 70-degree slope toward level area.

The silvery, eight-ton bomb toppled 100 feet back into the underwater ravine and sank in the muck-filled bottom. There it remained hidden until April 3 when the miniature sub Alvin, after repeated groping about the black depths, sighted a piece of the weapon's parachute protruding from the mud.

Four days later, in the early morning hours in Washington, a cryptic message from Rear Adm. William S. Guest in Spain clacked off a Teletype machine in a Navy command post in the Pentagon:

"Target on deck of Petrel and

Cab and Milk Prices Increase

The cost of living in Sikeston is on the increase.

This week, two cab companies increased fares 10 cents and 15 cents extra for handling of groceries and baggage. The increase was attributed to increased living costs and operating costs.

Last month, the cost of milk increased three to four cents on a half gallon.

Dogwood Tour April 17

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- April 17 has been selected by Cape Girardeau florists as the Sunday when area dogwood will be at its best for viewing.

The Trail of Tears state park has attracted more than 1,000 carloads of nature lovers during each of the four years the tour has been held.

The profuse bloom is rated by many as the heaviest 1 1/2 mile concentration of native dogwood in the midwest. The Trail of Tears State Park is eight miles north of Cape Girardeau.

Drive maps and copies of the "Legend of the Dogwood" will be given motorists by Jaycees at an information station set up on Cape Rock Drive near Wimpy's at the intersection of U. S. highway 61 and Cape Rock drive. The tour will be marked with orange arrows.

Two Deer Struck By Cars, Killed

Two deer were killed when struck by cars Thursday and Friday, near Poplar Bluff and Greenville, the highway patrol reports.

Hulen Haywood, 23, Piggott, Ark., driving a 1966 Chevrolet, Thursday morning, ran into a young buck crossing highway 67 south of Greenville, killing it.

Friday at 4:10 a.m., Claude Robinson, 77, St. Louis, struck and killed a young buck while it was crossing at the intersection of route W and D, near Poplar Bluff.

Two vehicles collided on highway 60, two miles west of Morehouse at 4:10 p.m. yesterday.

The bus driver began to turn left, causing the Buick to run into a bridge railing, the highway patrol reported.

Myrtle Sifford, 57, Florrisant, a passenger in a 1965 Oldsmobile, driven by her husband, Raleigh Sifford, 61, Florrisant, received a broken right ankle, Friday at 9:55 a.m. near Dexter.

Artificial Kidney May Fight Cancer

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The artificial kidney may provide a new and unexpected aide in the chemical warfare on cancer, a scientist reported today.

Dr. Pierre M. Galletti of Palermo, Italy, said experiments with dogs suggest the possibility of linking the robot kidney to a patient being given powerful, but potentially dangerous anti-cancer drugs — and using the robot to cleanse the patient's blood of drug remnants remaining after the chemical attack on the cancer site.

The idea, he told a scientific meeting, is to intercept the blood flowing back towards the heart from the cancer site, cleanse it in the machine, and shunt it back towards the heart.

The drug used in the initial attack on the cancer site would have been injected into an artery taking blood away from the heart, so that phase would not present a safety problem, he indicated.

Galletti, a visiting researcher at Emory University, Atlanta, Ga., described the animal experiments to the annual meeting of the American Society for Artificial Internal Organs.

Arbutus Class Meets With Mrs. Winstead

The Arbutus Class of the First Baptist church met in the home of Mrs. W. C. Winstead with eight members present.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Winstead in the absence of the president, Mrs. Richards. The opening prayer was given by Gladys Kelly. Reports were given and approved.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Winstead. It was "Facing the Future Unafraid," taken from Daniel, John and Psalms.

Refreshments were served from the dining table centered with an Easter arrangement. Assisting Mrs. Winstead as hostess were Mrs. Thelma Boardman and Mrs. Fern Moore.

Lonna Wood Is Named to Honor Society

CANTON -- Lonna Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood, 154 Jefferson, has been selected for membership in a new Women's Honor Society at Culver-Stockton College.

Miss Wood, a sophomore, qualified by having at least a 3.20 cumulative grade average on a 4.0 basis. To remain a member, she must not allow her average to fall below 3.00 two consecutive semesters.

John Hahn In Charge Of Dinner

JEFFERSON CITY -- Delton L. Houtchens, chairman of the Democratic state committee, announced today that John R. Hahn, of Jefferson City and former Sikeston resident, will serve as chairman of the annual birthday celebration for Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Mrs. Hearnes.

Houtchens said that the celebration will be held July 23, at the Ramada Inn. He said that ticket sales would be held to 1,000.

Last year 1,650 attended the $25-a-plate-affair and about half of them ate in tents on a parking lot of the Inn while viewing proceedings on closed circuit television.

All proceeds of the dinner will go to the Democratic state committee and funds are earmarked for the general election campaign.

The funds from last year's dinner also have been deposited in a savings account for use in the 1966 election.

Both Governor and Mrs. Hearnes were born on July 24, but Houtchens noted that this year it falls on Sunday and it was felt that the observance should be July 23.

There will be reserved seats for sponsors, whose names will be published in the program. Tickets may be obtained from the Democratic State Committee, P. O. Box 719, Jefferson City.

Wencil Moye Speaks to Civic Club

The Women's Civic Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Dempster with Mrs. Redge Harwell and Mrs. W. G. Funk as co-hostesses. One guest, Mrs. Buddy Largent, was present.

The program, a travelogue, was given by Wencil Moye, teacher of Industrial Arts at the high school, who had movies of Italy, Greece, France and Spain made when he was in the navy in 1959, and on Mediterranean cruise aboard the U. S. S. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Moye had very interesting comments on the countries he had visited and the movies were further enhanced with an accompanying sound track which played appropriate regional music.

The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Cline Ables in the absence of Mrs. Kiehne, the president. The club voted to make an immediate contribution to the Mental Health Association to help in the current expenses of the organization.

The nominating committee reported the following slate of officers for next year: president, Mrs. Cline Ables; vice president, Mrs. Harrison Tanner; secretary, Mrs. Raymert Miller; treasurer, Mrs. Louie Largent. The slate was elected.

The next meeting will be a luncheon and final meeting for the year. It will be the first Tuesday in May, time and place to be announced later.

Attend Meeting

More than 2,000 employees of The Kroger Co. from throughout this area attended the annual meeting for employees at the Mid-South Coliseum in Memphis Sunday, March 27th.

Wives or husbands of employees also were invited to attend the meeting, which was hosted by S. E. Hungerford, vice president of the Memphis Division which operates stores throughout this area.

At the meetings, employees were given a confidential look at the progress of their company and how they can better serve customers.

Kroger employees also were informed of the results of a two-year study -- just completed by the company -- of the products packed under Kroger's own brand names. The study was carried on to make sure product labels are doing the job they should to help customers be better shoppers.

In the course of the study, 2000 representative homemakers were interviewed regarding their reaction to these and other labels.

Mr. Hungerford explained that the meeting is an outgrowth of his company's feeling that the success of any business which serves the public depends to a large part of the employees who meet customers directly every day.

"These are the people who represent Kroger to customers," he said. "We feel it is important for every employee to be informed about our company, and to know how we can do a better job of providing what customers want."

During the meetings, Kroger employees with distinguished service records were recognized. In the Memphis division, the employees who received awards included Merrill Riley, Senior Accounting Supervisor, who has been associated with the company for 40 years.

Others recognized were Ellis Miller, George Inman, Joseph Wrenn, Var Hill, Lee Roy Pearson, Joe Cavallo. Together, they have given 135 years' service to The Kroger Co.

In addition, some 32 retired Kroger employees from the Memphis Division received special invitations to the meeting. More than 1400 former Kroger employees who are receiving benefits under the company's retirement income program are being honored at similar meetings throughout the company.

Film Giant Forming

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film industry was buzzing this week with the prospect of a new giant in its midst.

The proposed merger of Seven Arts Productions Ltd. and Filmways, Inc., was announced by the chief executives of the firms, Eliot Hyman and Martin Ransohoff, respectively.

This was merely the first move in the merger, which had been rumored in the trade. Next, the lawyers and accountants take over to work out the details. Then the boards of directors and stockholders of the two companies — both are listed on the American Stock Exchange — would accept or reject the proposal.

If the merger is carried out, it could mean creation of the first major film company since the Hollywood power structure was established in the 1920s.

Both Seven Arts and Filmways are postwar creations, the work of energetic men who rushed in where the old-line film companies declined to tread. Significantly, both new companies built their structures on a foundation of television.

Eliot Hyman, 61, was selling feature movies to television as early as 1944, when he supplied some films to WPIX in New York. He went into the business in a big way with the formation of Associated Artists in 1949. The company helped keep Warner Brothers and 20th Century-Fox afloat by purchasing their old movies for release to TV.

In 1960, Hyman joined with Ray Stark, a former Hollywood press agent, to form Seven Arts. The new company became a force in the movie business by channeling its projects through oldline studios.

Seven Arts retained an interest in such films as "West Side Story," "The World of Suzie Wong," "The Nun's Story," "Two for The See-Saw," and "The Bible."

Martin Ransohoff, 38, enjoys remarking that he started Filmways 14 years ago with a $200 stake. The firm began by making TV commercials, and it still does.

But Filmways marched on to greater things, starting with its first TV series, "Mr. Ed." The company harvested a rich crop of corn with the Paul Henning series, "Beverly Hillbillies," "Petticoat Junction" and "Green Acres."

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

INTRODUCTION

The Supreme Court's proclivity to decide cases based on "liberal" ideology rather than constitutional law, graphically described by Professor Phillip Kurland of the University of Chicago Law School last year, was demonstrated anew during the term of 1964-65, as the Court's romance with the goddess of "liberalism" grew in passion and ardor. Mr. Dooley's observation, made around the turn of the century, that the Supreme Court follows the election returns, whatever the Constitution follows, was proved once more as the Court, already ahead of the executive and legislative branches of the government in creating the "Great Society," struggled to maintain its avant garde position in the face of being swamped by the quickening pace of the rest of government.

In the frenzied attempt to stay ahead of the fashions of the day, the Constitution of the United States was treated with as much relevance as the Roseta Stone. Occasionally, an apt phrase or citation from an old case was thrown in to decorate an opinion, but constitutional history or law was no more built on in the last term than walls are built upon in modern buildings. Our ancestors actually used walls to support buildings; but today walls simply are hung on steel skeletons to hide the interior. The Eiffel Tower shows that walls can be dispensed with completely. Apparently, the Court deems that what is good enough for the building industry is good enough for constitutional law, and that their opinions ought to tower above the landscape and stand as long as the Empire State Building. This paper will attempt to diagram our new constitutional architecture as its implications were unravelled in the Court's 1964 term, and in doing so it may not be amiss to point out that any relation between the original Constitution and the Supreme Court's opinions is as coincidental as that between Frank Lloyd Wright's creations and the Washington Monument.

Baptist Men Have Meeting

The Baptist Men's organization of the First Baptist church met Monday night for its regular monthly meeting. A barbecued chicken dinner was served to the group of 53 men and boys.

President Lenzie Beck along with others gave thanks for the recent revival and its success as the Australian Crusade ended in Southeast Missouri. Special prayers were requested by the Rev. Bill Thitchener, who was in Kirksville, for the continued success of the crusade.

The program chairman presented Dale Carney, youth coordinator for the church and a leader in the basketball program. Carney thanked the church for its participation in the basketball program and called on the two men who have been the coaches and have worked hard with the boys, Ted Elliott and Don Newton. They gave short reports of the past season in the church basketball league. They presented the 10 boys who were to be given basketballs by Carney on behalf of the church.

Also honored were the Royal Ambassador boys. Ken Vinson gave a report on the Trail of Tears campout and other activities of the R. A.'s. David Hackney, Jim Starnes and Dan Overbey gave talks on the R. A. mottos.

John Davis, Melvin McMackins, Ken Vinson, Bill Hahs and Bill Smith will be taking the boys this weekend to the State R. A. congress in Springfield. This congress is the Baptist convention on a small scale for boys. There will be 1,100 boys present.

The pastor of the church, the Rev. James Hackney, spoke to the group on "Boys and What They Mean to Everyone." He said, "We should give our young people our very best and not just a little of our time." He told the story of Jesus as a boy and quoted the poem, "Boys Are Boys" by Alan Beck.

The meeting adjourned with a season of prayer by Lou Goehri and Glen Griffin.

The members invite the public to attend.

Arbutus Class Meets With Mrs. Winstead

The Arbutus Class of the First Baptist church met in the home of Mrs. W. C. Winstead with eight members present.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Winstead in the absence of the president, Mrs. Richards. The opening prayer was given by Gladys Kelly. Reports were given and approved.

The devotional was given by Mrs. Winstead. It was "Facing the Future Unafraid," taken from Daniel, John and Psalms.

Assisting Mrs. Winstead as hostess were Mrs. Thelma Boardman and Mrs. Fern Moore.

Lonna Wood Is Named to Honor Society

CANTON -- Lonna Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wood, 154 Jefferson, has been selected for membership in a new Women's Honor Society at Culver-Stockton College.

Miss Wood, a sophomore, qualified by having at least a 3.20 cumulative grade average on a 4.0 basis. To remain a member, she must not allow her average to fall below 3.00 two consecutive semesters.

John Hahn In Charge Of Dinner

JEFFERSON CITY -- Delton L. Houtchens, chairman of the Democratic state committee, announced today that John R. Hahn, of Jefferson City and former Sikeston resident, will serve as chairman of the annual birthday celebration for Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Mrs. Hearnes.

Houtchens said that the celebration will be held July 23, at the Ramada Inn. He said that ticket sales would be held to 1,000.

Last year 1,650 attended the $25-a-plate-affair and about half of them ate in tents on a parking lot of the Inn while viewing proceedings on closed circuit television.

All proceeds of the dinner will go to the Democratic state committee and funds are earmarked for the general election campaign.

The funds from last year's dinner also have been deposited in a savings account for use in the 1966 election.

Both Governor and Mrs. Hearnes were born on July 24, but Houtchens noted that this year it falls on Sunday and it was felt that the observance should be July 23.

There will be reserved seats for sponsors, whose names will be published in the program. Tickets may be obtained from the Democratic State Committee, P. O. Box 719, Jefferson City.

Wencil Moye Speaks to Civic Club

The Women's Civic Club met Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Dempster with Mrs. Redge Harwell and Mrs. W. G. Funk as co-hostesses. One guest, Mrs. Buddy Largent, was present.

The program, a travelogue, was given by Wencil Moye, teacher of Industrial Arts at the high school, who had movies of Italy, Greece, France and Spain made when he was in the navy in 1959, and on Mediterranean cruise aboard the U. S. S. Franklin D. Roosevelt. Moye had very interesting comments on the countries he had visited and the movies were further enhanced with an accompanying sound track which played appropriate regional music.

The business meeting was presided over by Mrs. Cline Ables in the absence of Mrs. Kiehne, the president. The club voted to make an immediate contribution to the Mental Health Association to help in the current expenses of the organization.

The nominating committee reported the following slate of officers for next year; president, Mrs. Cline Ables; vice president, Mrs. Harrison Tanner; secretary, Mrs. Raymert Miller; treasurer, Mrs. Louie Largent. The slate was elected.

The next meeting will be a luncheon and final meeting for the year. It will be the first Tuesday in May, time and place to be announced later.

MOREHOUSE -- James L. Estep, pastor of the Morehouse Methodist Church, has been promoted to captain in the civil air patrol. He serves the Sikeston composite squadron as chaplain.

Attend Meeting

More than 2,000 employees of The Kroger Co. from throughout this area attended the annual meeting for employees at the Mid-South Coliseum in Memphis Sunday, March 27th.

Wives or husbands of employees also were invited to attend the meeting, which was hosted by S. E. Hungerford, vice president of the Memphis Division which operates stores throughout this area.

At the meetings, employees were given a confidential look at the progress of their company and how they can better serve customers.

Kroger employees also were informed of the results of a two-year study -- just completed by the company -- of the products packed under Kroger's own brand names. The study was carried on to make sure product labels are doing the job they should to help customers be better shoppers.

In the course of the study, 2000 representative homemakers were interviewed regarding their reaction to these and other labels.

Mr. Hungerford explained that the meeting is an outgrowth of his company's feeling that the success of any business which serves the public depends to a large part of the employees who meet customers directly every day.

"These are the people who represent Kroger to customers," he said. "We feel it is important for every employee to be informed about our company, and to know how we can do a better job of providing what customers want."

During the meetings, Kroger employees with distinguished service records were recognized. In the Memphis division, the employees who received awards included Merrill Riley, Senior Accounting Supervisor, who has been associated with the company for 40 years.

Others recognized were Ellis Miller, George Inman, Joseph Wrenn, Var Hill, Lee Roy Pearson, Joe Cavallo. Together, they have given 135 years' service to The Kroger Co.

In addition, some 32 retired Kroger employees from the Memphis Division received special invitations to the meeting. More than 1400 former Kroger employees who are receiving benefits under the company's retirement income program are being honored at similar meetings throughout the company.

PTA Committee Meets Monday

The executive committee of the Southwest P. T. A. held its final meeting of this year Monday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Houchin.

President Lee Shell called the meeting to order and gave the invocation.

The secretary read the minutes of last month's meeting and the treasurer gave her report.

Plans for the executive officers dinner were discussed. It will be May 2.

Principal Jack Cothern made several announcements. Open house at Southwest school will be Wednesday, May 18. School will end on Friday, May 27.

The regular monthly P. T. A. meeting will be May 18. Patrol boys will be honored and new P. T. A. officers will be installed.

Since there was no further business, the meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Houchins.

Dinner Honors David Allard

David Allard, Salcedo, celebrated his 82nd birthday Thursday with a dinner at his home.

Four of his six daughters attended. They were Mrs. Ivy Lewis, Mrs. Clarence Cantrell, Mrs. John Watts and Mrs. C. D. Springs, all of Sikeston. Two daughters, Mrs. Louis Arnold and Mrs. Franklin Douglas, both of Kalamazoo, Mich., were unable to be present.

Also present were his sister, Mrs. Birch Moll, and his granddaughters, Mrs. Sam Potashnick and Mrs. Bill Guess.

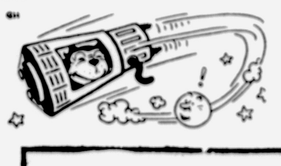

Mrs. Limbaugh Is Hostess To Circle Meeting

The Lucille Ford Circle of the Trinity Baptist church met at 1:30 p.m. Thursday at the home of Mrs. M. L. Limbaugh with 17 members present.

The meeting was called to order by the chairman, Mrs. R. H. Mackley. Mrs. Dorothy Clinton led in the opening prayer. Mrs. Clinton also read the names of the missionaries to be remembered in prayer. Mrs. Sherman Grant gave the program, a mission study book, "Meet the American Jew."

The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Conley and old and new business was discussed. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Glen Peel. The hostess served cookies and punch.

The next circle meeting will be with Mrs. Glen Peel.

Film Giant Forming

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The film industry was buzzing this week with the prospect of a new giant in its midst.

The proposed merger of Seven Arts Productions Ltd. and Filmways, Inc., was announced by the chief executives of the firms, Eliot Hyman and Martin Ransohoff, respectively.

This was merely the first move in the merger, which had been rumored in the trade. Next, the lawyers and accountants take over to work out the details. Then the boards of directors and stockholders of the two companies — both are listed on the American Stock Exchange — would accept or reject the proposal.

If the merger is carried out, it could mean creation of the first major film company since the Hollywood power structure was established in the 1920s.

Both Seven Arts and Filmways are postwar creations, the work of energetic men who rushed in where the old-line film companies declined to tread. Significantly, both new companies built their structures on a foundation of television.

Eliot Hyman, 61, was selling feature movies to television as early as 1944, when he supplied some films to WPIX in New York. He went into the business in a big way with the formation of Associated Artists in 1949. The company helped keep Warner Brothers and 20th Century-Fox afloat by purchasing their old movies for release to TV.

In 1960, Hyman joined with Ray Stark, a former Hollywood press agent, to form Seven Arts. The new company became a force in the movie business by channeling its projects through oldline studios.

Seven Arts retained an interest in such films as "West Side Story," "The World of Suzie Wong," "The Nun's Story," "Two for The See-Saw," and "The Bible."

Martin Ransohoff, 38, enjoys remarking that he started Filmways 14 years ago with a $200 stake. The firm began by making TV commercials, and it still does.

But Filmways marched on to greater things, starting with its first TV series, "Mr. Ed." The company harvested a rich crop of corn with the Paul Henning series, "Beverly Hillbillies," "Petticoat Junction" and "Green Acres."

Dogs have played an important role in the development of brain, bone, abdominal surgery, and in the knowledge of metabolic diseases. For example, there are more than one million diabetics in the United States alone who are living useful and almost normal lives because of the experimentation done on dogs.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

INTRODUCTION

The Supreme Court's proclivity to decide cases based on "liberal" ideology rather than constitutional law, graphically described by Professor Phillip Kurland of the University of Chicago Law School last year, was demonstrated anew during the term of 1964-65, as the Court's romance with the goddess of "liberalism" grew in passion and ardor. Mr. Dooley's observation, made around the turn of the century, that the Supreme Court follows the election returns, whatever the Constitution follows, was proved once more as the Court, already ahead of the executive and legislative branches of the government in creating the "Great Society," struggled to maintain its avant garde position in the face of being swamped by the quickening pace of the rest of government.

In the frenzied attempt to stay ahead of the fashions of the day, the Constitution of the United States was treated with as much relevance as the Rosetta Stone. Occasionally, an apt phrase or citation from an old case was thrown in to decorate an opinion, but constitutional history or law was no more built on in the last term than walls are built upon in modern buildings. Our ancestors actually used walls to support buildings; but today walls simply are hung on steel skeletons to hide the interior. The Eiffel Tower shows that walls can be dispensed with completely. Apparently, the Court deems that what is good enough for the building industry is good enough for constitutional law, and that their opinions ought to tower above the landscape and stand as long as the Empire State Building. This paper will attempt to diagram our new constitutional architecture as its implications were unravelled in the Court's 1964 term, and in doing so it may not be amiss to point out that any relation between the original Constitution and the Supreme Court's opinions is as coincidental as that between Frank Lloyd Wright's creations and the Washington Monument.

The POWER of FAITH

EASTER

"Jesus Christ is ris'n today, Alleluia!
Our triumphant holy day, Alleluia!
Who did once upon the cross, Alleluia!
Suffer to redeem our loss, Alleluia!"

The universally beloved and probably best known Easter hymn exists today because of the faith of many devoted persons, known and unknown.

It has been translated, altered and improved until the music and words now give us the full magnificence of the first Easter. The original words are from a 14th century German and Latin manuscript. The authors are unknown. It was translated into English in 1698 by Nahum Tate in collaboration with Nicholas Brady. Practically nothing is known of Brady. Nahum Tate, although a poet laureate of England, was poverty stricken most of his life. The first English translation appeared in the Lyra Dividica, London, 1708. The hymn took its present form in John Arnold's Hymnal, 1749.

The tune, stately and full of jubilation, has no recorded history or composer. It is simply known as an Easter Hymn. The second stanza gives us the full meaning of Easter.

"Hymns of praise then let us sing, Alleluia!
Unto Christ our heav'nly King, Alleluia!
Who endured the cross and grave, Alleluia!

Straight From The Horse's Mouth

We think it's time for a report to our many good customers in regard to the progress and problem at the Running Horse Cafe.

Business has been good this winter. We, of course, have you to thank for that. We want you to know also that we are constantly aware that we have an obligation to the public to keep the Running Horse Cafe clean, the food good, and to continue to improve. Now, the improving part is really what we wanted you to know.

In the near future, you will notice our doing a bit of remodeling. Here's what will take place. We are going to screen in the front porch. Then we will cover the porch with outdoor carpet, install four of the old-time paddle fans, hang some light fixtures that we think you will like, and equip the porch with wrought iron table and chairs. Of course, we have many little things we will add. The ginger bread will be taken care of, and you will think you're in Paris. We will have seating capacity for 20 more people. How's that?

Now, for item number two. We are discontinuing our "Family Night." All winter, you know, we have been giving all the fried chicken, rolls, potatoes, and slaw you could eat for $1.00. Well, here's what has happened! We have sold so much chicken that the price of fryers have gone up considerably. L.B.J. called us from Washington and warned us about infl ation and inflating the price of poultry. He said that it wasn't fair to the good people who were forced to pay these higher prices, and it's all our fault. He also reminded us that he and Lady Bird were not going to build those two rooms on their little home down in Texas just to prevent more inflation. So, since we are good red-blooded Americans and knowing how carefully the President handles our tax money, we figure the least we can do is discontinue selling chicken so cheap and forcing the price up. So, if prices are in line at a later date, we will probably do the same thing again. Remember, we still have plenty of chicken it just ain't quite so cheap.

Don't forget to watch for our porch change. I think you will like it. If you don't -- we have had it!

The POWER of FAITH

EASTER

"Jesus Christ is ris'n today, Alleluia!
Our triumphant holy day, Alleluia!
Who did once upon the cross, Alleluia!
Suffer to redeem our loss, Alleluia!"

The universally beloved and probably best known Easter hymn exists today because of the faith of many devoted persons, known and unknown.

It has been translated, altered and improved until the music and words now give us the full magnificence of the first Easter. The original words are from a 14th century German and Latin manuscript. The authors are unknown. It was translated into English in 1698 by Nahum Tate in collaboration with Nicholas Brady. Practically nothing is known of Brady. Nahum Tate, although a poet laureate of England, was poverty stricken most of his life. The first English translation appeared in the Lyra Dividica, London, 1708. The hymn took its present form in John Arnold's Hymnal, 1749.

The tune, stately and full of jubilation, has no recorded history or composer. It is simply known as an Easter Hymn. The second stanza gives us the full meaning of Easter.

"Hymns of praise then let us sing, Alleluia!
Unto Christ our heav'nly King, Alleluia!
Who endured the cross and grave, Alleluia!

Straight From The Horse's Mouth

We think it's time for a report to our many good customers in regard to the progress and problem at the Running Horse Cafe.

Business has been good this winter. We, of course, have you to thank for that. We want you to know also that we are constantly aware that we have an obligation to the public to keep the Running Horse Cafe clean, the food good, and to continue to improve. Now, the improving part is really what we wanted you to know.

In the near future, you will notice our doing a bit of remodeling. Here's what will take place. We are going to screen in the front porch. Then we will cover the porch with outdoor carpet, install four of the old-time paddle fans, hang some light fixtures that we think you will like, and equip the porch with wrought iron table and chairs. Of course, we have many little things we will add. The ginger bread will be taken care of, and you will think you're in Paris. We will have seating capacity for 20 more people. How's that?

Now, for item number two. We are discontinuing our "Family Night." All winter, you know, we have been giving all the fried chicken, rolls, potatoes, and slaw you could eat for $1.00. Well, here's what has happened! We have sold so much chicken that the price of fryers have gone up considerably. L.B.J. called us from Washington and warned us about infl ation and inflating the price of poultry. He said that it wasn't fair to the good people who were forced to pay these higher prices, and it's all our fault. He also reminded us that he and Lady Bird were not going to build those two rooms on their little home down in Texas just to prevent more inflation. So, since we are good red-blooded Americans and knowing how carefully the President handles our tax money, we figure the least we can do is discontinue selling chicken so cheap and forcing the price up. So, if prices are in line at a later date, we will probably do the same thing again. Remember, we still have plenty of chicken it just ain't quite so cheap.

Don't forget to watch for our porch change. I think you will like it. If you don't -- we have had it!

Cards To Open Season Tuesday

Philadelphia will open the season playing the Cardinals in Busch Stadium Tuesday with manager Schoendienst and Jesse Gaines. The Cards play their final 11 home games in Busch Stadium and then move into their new home.

Cincinnatti Reds will be trying to snap two-game losing streaks when the major league baseball season begins Monday with the traditional opening day program.

At Washington, the Senators will meet the Cleveland Indians in the Presidential Opener with Johnson, a tall, Texas right-hander with an 0-2 record in such affairs, the nominee to throw out the first pitch.

Meanwhile, the Reds will get their usual one-day jump on the rest of the National League, playing the New York Mets in the renewal of an opening game tradition that dates back to 1876 when Cherokee Fisher pitched Cincinnati to a 2-1 victory over St. Louis.

It's definite that Cherokee Fisher won't be on the mound at Cincinnati this time, and there's also the possibility that Johnson won't make the first pitch at Washington.

Johnson is in Texas for an Easter holiday and there has been no definite word about his plans for interrupting his vacation to attend the game. However, he might just want to take a crack at being a winner.

Pete Richert will try to get the Senators back on the victory side when he starts against Cleveland's Sam McDowell, the Sandy Koufax of the American League. The Reds, who also have lost their last two openers, probably will send fireballing Sammy Ellis against Jack Fisher of the Mets.

Few changes in the game will be noticed while tradition reigns Monday. But an eight-game program Tuesday figures to emphasize the personnel and franchises moves that have been made since the 1965 season ended with the Los Angeles Dodgers defeating the Minnesota Twins in the World Series.

The Tuesday schedule shows Houston at Los Angeles, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Pittsburgh at Atlanta and Chicago at San Francisco in the National League and Kansas City at Minnesota. Detroit at New York, Baltimore at Boston and California at Chicago in the American.

Two of the teams are playing in different cities this year, the Braves shifting from Milwaukee to Atlanta and the Angels from Los Angeles to Anaheim, Calif. In addition, the Cardinals will make a short move to a new stadium by May.

Corbett Still Unable To Be Questioned

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State athletic director James J. Corbett remained under sedatives today, unable to undergo questioning by police on how he was shot.

Officers said hospital physicians told them Corbett, 46, would not be able to talk with them before Sunday, if then.

Corbett was shot Thursday night with a 22-caliber pistol, police said. Ballistics tests showed the bullet was fired from a derringer, police said.

Corbett was found slumped over the steering wheel of his car after it swerved off a street and hit a tree. He underwent surgery Friday and received several blood transfusions.

State police Supt. Tom Burbank said Corbett must have been shot while outside his car, since there was little blood on the seat.

Corbett suffered a serious heart attack in 1958. Attendants said he complained of chest pains after surgery Friday. A heart specialist was called in.

Police said the shooting happened during a 25-minute period between the time Corbett left a supper club at 11:30 p.m. and the time that police received a telephone call reporting the car hitting the tree.

Golfers Lose

KENNETT -- Sikeston's golf team lost to the Kennett Indian golf team Thursday at Kennett. Charles Stamp of Sikeston fired the low game of the day, driving in a 39. He beat Kennett's Zimmerman who shot a 41. Ned Matthews beat his man shooting a 43. Charles Atchison lost his game. He shot a 46. King Sidwell shot a 48 to win his game. Bob Urban and David Whitaker shot a 50 and 51 respectively and they lost their games. Sikeston had a total of 277 strokes and Kennett came in with a total of 271. Normally the best four of six games are used for the total number of strokes and determining the winner, but it was done differently Thursday. Each man was given a point if he won his game. Each team won three games giving them each three points. Another point was given to the medalist golfer. Sikeston's Charles Stamp got that giving Sikeston another point. Two points were given to the team with the lowest number of strokes and they went to Kennett giving them the win with five points to Sikeston's four.

Hawks Need To Continue Basket-Bombing

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks found out Wednesday night what it takes to beat the Los Angeles Lakers — hot-shooting. The question is, can they continue their basket-bombing tonight in the fourth game of their playoffs with the Lakers?

The Hawks needed 64 per cent shooting from the field in the first half and a 52.2 per cent overall to beat the West Coast club, 120-113, Wednesday. It was their first victory in three games in the National Basketball Association's western division finals.

They lost the first two games in Los Angeles by shooting around 42 per cent.

"We shot much better at home than we did in the first two games," player - coach Richie Guerin said. "We had to hit well because they shot .50.5 per cent. We stole a lot of loose balls and we pressed them in taking some bad shots, but even then they hit a great percentage."

The chief Laker marksman as usual is Jerry West, who has averaged 32 points a contest in the three games and hit almost 50 per cent from the field.

Elgin Baylor is averaging 30 points a game and 52 per cent and Walt Hazzard 19.3 points per contest at 55.8 per cent. Bob Boozer, Rudy Larusso and Jim King also are hitting better than 50 per cent of their shots.

Only three Hawks can match that pace, despite Wednesday's performance. Zelmo Beaty is averaging 27 points a game, Guerin 23 and Bill Bridges 17.3. Beaty has hit 53.4 per cent from the field and Guerin and Bridges each 50 per cent.

The fifth game of the best of seven series will be played at Los Angeles Sunday night and the sixth, if necessary, back in St. Louis Wednesday. A seventh game would be in Los Angeles.

Tennis Team Defeated

KENNETT -- Sikeston tennis players dropped a meet to Kennett Thursday. Sikeston got beat in all singles and doubles matches. Terry Burke was beat by Kennett's Bret Baker 6-1 and 6-0. Jackson of Kennett beat Dean Childers 6-1 and 6-4. Vyther Miller was beat by Bruce Baker of Kennett 6-3 and 6-3. In doubles Dean Childers and Terry Burke were beat by Bruce and Bret Baker 6-0 and 6-0. William Dickerson and Henry Lippert also lost their match 6-0 and 6-0.

Prep Cagers Claim Record

PENDLETON, IND. AP -- Seniors at Pendleton High School are claiming an outdoor basketball marathon record after playing for 28 hours through darkness, snow, rain and freezing temperatures.

About 50 pupils took part, Boys' and girls' teams alternated two-hour periods until 10 p.m., and the boys kept the ball in play through the night.

The final score was 2668-2644.

COLUMBIA AP -- Reid Bailey of Silver Creek, Ind., has signed a Big Eight basketball letter of intent to enroll this fall at Missouri, coach Bob Vanatta said Friday.

The 6-foot-3-inch Bailey averaged 17.3 points and 14 rebounds a game last season as his high school had a 19-3 record. Bailey was sought by approximately 60 schools, Vanatta said.

Mantle Ask For Starting Position

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Forget that $100,000 pinch hitter on the end of the New York Yankees bench and reserve a spot in the starting line-up for Mickey Mantle.

Mantle, baseball's fabulous invalid, shook up Manager Johnny Keane's opening-day plans Friday night at Atlanta by making his first start of the spring, playing seven innings in a 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Braves and then asking for steady work when the Yankees

Keane will be happy to revise his line-up — inserting Mantle alongside Tom Tresh and Roger Maris in the outfield — if Mickey feels he's ready when Detroit invades Yankee Stadium Tuesday.

The Houston Astros trimmed the Tigers 6-4 on Jim Wynn's three-run homer in the eighth inning and the Chicago Cubs defeated the Cleveland Indians 9-5 in 12 innings in Friday night's other exhibition play.

Mantle, who grudgingly admitted only a few days ago that "I can't throw a ball 100 feet," surprised Keane by asking for a starting shot in the opener of the three-game exhibition set in the Braves' new home.

"When I came to the park tonight I had no idea of playing," he said afterward. "But my arm felt very good. I figured I had to start sometime and it might as well be here. If I loused things up in an exhibition game, it wouldn't matter.

Mantle didn't throw anybody out but the Braves didn't take any extra bases on his no-longer strong right arm. He handled several routine chances in left field, made three soft but accurate throws to the infield and lined his first hit of the spring — an RBI single in the fifth — in four trips to the plate.

In his only previous exhibition appearance, Mickey had struck out as a pinch hitter against Philadelphia last month.

Globetrotters Win Over New York

BLOOMFIELD -- In a very fine performance before a capacity crowd the famous Harlem Globetrotters won over the New York Nationals here last night 120-108.

In a very funny and yet serious game, the Globetrotters had the entire gymnasium roaring with laughter, and their showmanship combined with their fine talent of basketball kept the fans amazed with their fine shooting and ball handling.

David Gaines led the Globetrotters in scoring, hitting 56 points and an amazing 79 per cent from the field. Dan Travis led the New York team with 42 points.

The Globetrotters are ending their last road trip for the year and will play two more games.

BASKETBALL PLAYING TITLE CLAIMED

Mizzou Tripped By Iowa State In Opening Day Games

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's a tradition in Big Eight baseball that Iowa State, coached since 1937 by an incurable optimist named L. C. (Cap) Timm, can't be counted out of any title race.

Timm proved it again Friday by rocking Missouri's defending champions with two opening day setbacks at Columbia, 7-6 and 3-1 on the pitching of Tim Van Galder and Scott Morton.

Nebraska and Oklahoma State joined Iowa State at the top by opening with doubleheader sweeps. Kansas State and Oklahoma split a pair at Manhattan. The same foes will collide today in single games.

Van Galder held Missouri to four hits in the opener but his wildness and three errors led to six Tiger runs. Van Galder was 3-for-4 at the plate, Jerry Retzlaff was 4-for-5 and Mike Van Dine homered for the Cyclones.

Morton pitched a three-hitter and struck out nine in the second game. Al Chettle had a pinch homer for Missouri in the seventh. Dick Olsen had a two-run single off Missouri's starter, Orv Hollrah, in the first.

Bob Ziegler, one of Iowa State's top pitchers, and catcher Don Ziegler didn't make the trip to Columbia because of their mother's critical illness.

Nebraska ripped injury-riddled Kansas 18-7 and 7-4 at Lincoln. Alex Walter of Nebraska and John Adams of Kansas both homered in each game. Gary Tunnison had a homer and a double and batted in five runs in the opener.

Oklahoma State beat Colorado 3-2 in 10 innings and 5-1 with the masterful pitching of John Pierce and Marv Fiocchi at Stillwater. OSU has its ace, Richard Frank, ready for the third game.

K-State whipped Oklahoma 5-0 on Bob Ballard's one - hitter at Manhattan, then Oklahoma won 6-4 behind Rusty Disbro, a junior college transfer.

At Stillwater, Pierce edged Gary Mann and Fiocchi nipped sophomore lefty Taylor Toomey but the Colorado pitchers stayed close all the way. A hit batsman a walk and a bunt single loaded the bases for OSU in the 10th; and a misplayed fly let in the winning run. CU's Jack Poppom had tied it with a homer.

Dick Turner's second inning single for Oklahoma was the only hit off K-State's Ballard. Dave Doolittle had a two-run homer for K-State. A two-out triple in the seventh by Bob Winters broke a 4-4 tie and won the second game for OU.

Bradley Wants To Play With Italian Club

MILAN, ITALY AP -- Bill Bradley, the All - American from Princeton who sparked Simenthal of Milan to the European Cup basketball championship this season, said Friday that he would like to play for the team again next year and in the Olympics again in 1968.

Before returning to England and his studies at Oxford, where he is a Rhodes Scholar, Bradley said:

"If the International Basketball Federation will allow teams in the cup tournament to use two foreign players again next year, I think I will play for Simmenthal."

Featuring The Kingfish

MALDEN -- Area drag fans will have a treat in store for them this weekend at the Malden Drag Strip, featuring the Kingfish a brown Barracuda and a wild 427 Corvair.

Last Sunday at the Memphis drag strip the Kingfish stood right straight up in the air on its back bumper. The driver of the Corvair says if the fish does too many wheel stands he will take all three matches.

Trophies will be given to all winners and eliminator money will be given to those in each class.

Time trials start at 12 noon and eliminations begin at 2 p.m.

Al Davis Plans To Make AFL Best Pro League

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Al Davis, named Friday to succeed Joe Foss as commissioner of American Football League, plans to make the AFL "the best league in pro football."

Davis, 36, said solutions to problems involving the National Football League are not among his immediate objectives.

"My first job is dedication to the growth of this league," said Davis, who had four years left on contract as general manager-coach with the Oakland Raiders when he accepted the appointment Thursday night after rushing from a vacation at Las Vegas, Nev. Terms were not disclosed.

Foss, who had guided the AFL since its inception in 1959, resigned Thursday. His decision to leave reportedly stemmed in part from smouldering club owner dissatisfaction over loss of the Atlanta area to the nfl.

Davis, who pushed the raiders from the cellar to Western Division contention in just three years, admitted he "left security." But, he added, "I do love this league and believe in its future." Besides his long contract, Davis also held an option for a five-year renewal.

AFL President Ralph C. Wilson Jr., owner of the Buffalo Bills, told a news conference Friday that Davis' organizational and administrative abilities had attracted the club owners.

"Al's background is football — at all levels," Wilson said.

Before he moved to Oakland, Davis was an assistant three years under Sid Gillman with the Los Angeles-San Diego Chargers. Earlier, he had been an assistant under Weeb Ewbank with the NFL Baltimore Colts and had coached at Adlephia College in Garden City, N.Y., Fort Belvoir, Va., the Citadel and the University of California.

Cards To Open Season Tuesday

Philadelphia will open the season playing the Cardinals in Busch Stadium Tuesday with manager Schoendienst and Jesse Gaines. The Cards play their final 11 home games in Busch Stadium and then move into their new home.

Cincinnatti Reds will be trying to snap two-game losing streaks when the major league baseball season begins Monday with the traditional opening day program.

At Washington, the Senators will meet the Cleveland Indians in the Presidential Opener with Johnson, a tall, Texas right-hander with an 0-2 record in such affairs, the nominee to throw out the first pitch.

Meanwhile, the Reds will get their usual one-day jump on the rest of the National League, playing the New York Mets in the renewal of an opening game tradition that dates back to 1876 when Cherokee Fisher pitched Cincinnati to a 2-1 victory over St. Louis.

It's definite that Cherokee Fisher won't be on the mound at Cincinnati this time, and there's also the possibility that Johnson won't make the first pitch at Washington.

Johnson is in Texas for an Easter holiday and there has been no definite word about his plans for interrupting his vacation to attend the game. However, he might just want to take a crack at being a winner.

Pete Richert will try to get the Senators back on the victory side when he starts against Cleveland's Sam McDowell, the Sandy Koufax of the American League. The Reds, who also have lost their last two openers, probably will send fireballing Sammy Ellis against Jack Fisher of the Mets.

Few changes in the game will be noticed while tradition reigns Monday. But an eight-game program Tuesday figures to emphasize the personnel and franchises moves that have been made since the 1965 season ended with the Los Angeles Dodgers defeating the Minnesota Twins in the World Series.

The Tuesday schedule shows Houston at Los Angeles, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Pittsburgh at Atlanta and Chicago at San Francisco in the National League and Kansas City at Minnesota. Detroit at New York, Baltimore at Boston and California at Chicago in the American.

Two of the teams are playing in different cities this year, the Braves shifting from Milwaukee to Atlanta and the Angels from Los Angeles to Anaheim, Calif. In addition, the Cardinals will make a short move to a new stadium by May.

Corbett Still Unable To Be Questioned

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State athletic director James J. Corbett remained under sedatives today, unable to undergo questioning by police on how he was shot.

Officers said hospital physicians told them Corbett, 46, would not be able to talk with them before Sunday, if then.

Corbett was shot Thursday night with a 22-caliber pistol, police said. Ballistics tests showed the bullet was fired from a derringer, police said.

Corbett was found slumped over the steering wheel of his car after it swerved off a street and hit a tree. He underwent surgery Friday and received several blood transfusions.

State police Supt. Tom Burbank said Corbett must have been shot while outside his car, since there was little blood on the seat.

Corbett suffered a serious heart attack in 1958. Attendants said he complained of chest pains after surgery Friday. A heart specialist was called in.

Police said the shooting happened during a 25-minute period between the time Corbett left a supper club at 11:30 p.m. and the time that police received a telephone call reporting the car hitting the tree.

Golfers Lose

KENNETT -- Sikeston's golf team lost to the Kennett Indian golf team Thursday at Kennett. Charles Stamp of Sikeston fired the low game of the day, driving in a 39. He beat Kennett's Zimmerman who shot a 41. Ned Matthews beat his man shooting a 43. Charles Atchison lost his game. He shot a 46. King Sidwell shot a 48 to win his game. Bob Urban and David Whitaker shot a 50 and 51 respectively and they lost their games. Sikeston had a total of 277 strokes and Kennett came in with a total of 271. Normally the best four of six games are used for the total number of strokes and determining the winner, but it was done differently Thursday. Each man was given a point if he won his game. Each team won three games giving them each three points. Another point was given to the medalist golfer. Sikeston's Charles Stamp got that giving Sikeston another point. Two points were given to the team with the lowest number of strokes and they went to Kennett giving them the win with five points to Sikeston's four.

Hawks Need To Continue Basket-Bombing

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Hawks found out Wednesday night what it takes to beat the Los Angeles Lakers — hot-shooting. The question is, can they continue their basket-bombing tonight in the fourth game of their playoffs with the Lakers?

The Hawks needed 64 per cent shooting from the field in the first half and a 52.2 per cent overall to beat the West Coast club, 120-113, Wednesday. It was their first victory in three games in the National Basketball Association's western division finals.

They lost the first two games in Los Angeles by shooting around 42 per cent.

"We shot much better at home than we did in the first two games," player - coach Richie Guerin said. "We had to hit well because they shot .50.5 per cent. We stole a lot of loose balls and we pressed them in taking some bad shots, but even then they hit a great percentage."

The chief Laker marksman as usual is Jerry West, who has averaged 32 points a contest in the three games and hit almost 50 per cent from the field.

Elgin Baylor is averaging 30 points a game and 52 per cent and Walt Hazzard 19.3 points per contest at 55.8 per cent. Bob Boozer, Rudy Larusso and Jim King also are hitting better than 50 per cent of their shots.

Only three Hawks can match that pace, despite Wednesday's performance. Zelmo Beaty is averaging 27 points a game, Guerin 23 and Bill Bridges 17.3. Beaty has hit 53.4 per cent from the field and Guerin and Bridges each 50 per cent.

The fifth game of the best of seven series will be played at Los Angeles Sunday night and the sixth, if necessary, back in St. Louis Wednesday. A seventh game would be in Los Angeles.

Tennis Team Defeated

KENNETT -- Sikeston tennis players dropped a meet to Kennett Thursday. Sikeston got beat in all singles and doubles matches. Terry Burke was beat by Kennett's Bret Baker 6-1 and 6-0. Jackson of Kennett beat Dean Childers 6-1 and 6-4. Vyther Miller was beat by Bruce Baker of Kennett 6-3 and 6-3. In doubles Dean Childers and Terry Burke were beat by Bruce and Bret Baker 6-0 and 6-0. William Dickerson and Henry Lippert also lost their match 6-0 and 6-0.

Prep Cagers Claim Record

PENDLETON, IND. AP -- Seniors at Pendleton High School are claiming an outdoor basketball marathon record after playing for 28 hours through darkness, snow, rain and freezing temperatures.

About 50 pupils took part, Boys' and girls' teams alternated two-hour periods until 10 p.m., and the boys kept the ball in play through the night.

The final score was 2668-2644.

COLUMBIA AP -- Reid Bailey of Silver Creek, Ind., has signed a Big Eight basketball letter of intent to enroll this fall at Missouri, coach Bob Vanatta said Friday.

The 6-foot-3-inch Bailey averaged 17.3 points and 14 rebounds a game last season as his high school had a 19-3 record. Bailey was sought by approximately 60 schools, Vanatta said.

Mantle Ask For Starting Position

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Forget that $100,000 pinch hitter on the end of the New York Yankees bench and reserve a spot in the starting line-up for Mickey Mantle.

Mantle, baseball's fabulous invalid, shook up Manager Johnny Keane's opening-day plans Friday night at Atlanta by making his first start of the spring, playing seven innings in a 5-4, 10-inning victory over the Braves and then asking for steady work when the Yankees

Keane will be happy to revise his line-up — inserting Mantle alongside Tom Tresh and Roger Maris in the outfield — if Mickey feels he's ready when Detroit invades Yankee Stadium Tuesday.

The Houston Astros trimmed the Tigers 6-4 on Jim Wynn's three-run homer in the eighth inning and the Chicago Cubs defeated the Cleveland Indians 9-5 in 12 innings in Friday night's other exhibition play.

Mantle, who grudgingly admitted only a few days ago that "I can't throw a ball 100 feet," surprised Keane by asking for a starting shot in the opener of the three-game exhibition set in the Braves' new home.

"When I came to the park tonight I had no idea of playing," he said afterward. "But my arm felt very good. I figured I had to start sometime and it might as well be here. If I loused things up in an exhibition game, it wouldn't matter.

Mantle didn't throw anybody out but the Braves didn't take any extra bases on his no-longer strong right arm. He handled several routine chances in left field, made three soft but accurate throws to the infield and lined his first hit of the spring — an RBI single in the fifth — in four trips to the plate.

In his only previous exhibition appearance, Mickey had struck out as a pinch hitter against Philadelphia last month.

Globetrotters Win Over New York

BLOOMFIELD -- In a very fine performance before a capacity crowd the famous Harlem Globetrotters won over the New York Nationals here last night 120-108.

In a very funny and yet serious game, the Globetrotters had the entire gymnasium roaring with laughter, and their showmanship combined with their fine talent of basketball kept the fans amazed with their fine shooting and ball handling.

David Gaines led the Globetrotters in scoring, hitting 56 points and an amazing 79 per cent from the field. Dan Travis led the New York team with 42 points.

The Globetrotters are ending their last road trip for the year and will play two more games.

BASKETBALL PLAYING TITLE CLAIMED

NEWTON, Kan. AP -- A world's marathon basketball playing title was claimed by a group of Newton Junior High and high school pupils Friday.

The 20 boys, ranging from the seventh to the tenth grade played 15 straight hours Thursday. The score was 1,160 to 1,150.

Mizzou Tripped By Iowa State In Opening Day Games

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG
Associated Press Sports Writer

It's a tradition in Big Eight baseball that Iowa State, coached sinced 1937 by an incurable optimist named L. C. (Cap) Timm, can't be counted out of any title race.

Timm proved it again Friday by rocking Missouri's defending champions with two opening day setbacks at Columbia, 7-6 and 3-1 on the pitching of Tim Van Galder and Scott Morton.

Nebraska and Oklahoma State joined Iowa State at the top by opening with doubleheader sweeps. Kansas State and Oklahoma split a pair at Manhattan. The same foes will collide today in single games.

Van Galder held Missouri to four hits in the opener but his wildness and three errors led to six Tiger runs. Van Galder was 3-for-4 at the plate, Jerry Retzlaff was 4-for-5 and Mike Van Dine homered for the Cyclones.

Morton pitched a three-hitter and struck out nine in the second game. Al Chettle had a pinch homer for Missouri in the seventh. Dick Olsen had a two-run single off Missouri's starter, Orv Hollrah, in the first.

Bob Ziegler, one of Iowa State's top pitchers, and catcher Don Ziegler didn't make the trip to Columbia because of their mother's critical illness.

Nebraska ripped injury-riddled Kansas 18-7 and 7-4 at Lincoln. Alex Walter of Nebraska and John Adams of Kansas both homered in each game. Gary Tunnison had a homer and a double and batted in five runs in the opener.

Oklahoma State beat Colorado 3-2 in 10 innings and 5-1 with the masterful pitching of John Pierce and Marv Fiocchi at Stillwater. OSU has its ace, Richard Frank, ready for the third game.

K-State whipped Oklahoma 5-0 on Bob Ballard's one - hitter at Manhattan, then Oklahoma won 6-4 behind Rusty Disbro, a junior college transfer.

At Stillwater, Pierce edged Gary Mann and Fiocchi nipped sophomore lefty Taylor Toomey but the Colorado pitchers stayed close all the way. A hit batsman a walk and a bunt single loaded the bases for OSU in the 10th; and a misplayed fly let in the winning run. CU's Jack Poppom had tied it with a homer.

Dick Turner's second inning single for Oklahoma was the only hit off K-State's Ballard. Dave Doolittle had a two-run homer for K-State. A two-out triple in the seventh by Bob Winters broke a 4-4 tie and won the second game for OU.

Bradley Wants To Play With Italian Club

MILAN, ITALY AP -- Bill Bradley, the All - American from Princeton who sparked Simenthal of Milan to the European Cup basketball championship this season, said Friday that he would like to play for the team again next year and in the Olympics again in 1968.

Before returning to England and his studies at Oxford, where he is a Rhodes Scholar, Bradley said:

"If the International Basketball Federation will allow teams in the cup tournament to use two foreign players again next year, I think I will play for Simmenthal."

Featuring The Kingfish

MALDEN -- Area drag fans will have a treat in store for them this weekend at the Malden Drag Strip, featuring the Kingfish a brown Barracuda and a wild 427 Corvair.

Last Sunday at the Memphis drag strip the Kingfish stood right straight up in the air on its back bumper. The driver of the Corvair says if the fish does too many wheel stands he will take all three matches.

Trophies will be given to all winners and eliminator money will be given to those in each class.

Time trials start at 12 noon and eliminations begin at 2 p.m.

Al Davis Plans To Make AFL Best Pro League

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Al Davis, named Friday to succeed Joe Foss as commissioner of American Football League, plans to make the AFL "the best league in pro football."

Davis, 36, said solutions to problems involving the National Football League are not among his immediate objectives.

"My first job is dedication to the growth of this league," said Davis, who had four years left on contract as general manager-coach with the Oakland Raiders when he accepted the appointment Thursday night after rushing from a vacation at Las Vegas, Nev. Terms were not disclosed.

Foss, who had guided the AFL since its inception in 1959, resigned Thursday. His decision to leave reportedly stemmed in part from smouldering club owner dissatisfaction over loss of the Atlanta area to the nfl.

Davis, who pushed the raiders from the cellar to Western Division contention in just three years, admitted he "left security." But, he added, "I do love this league and believe in its future." Besides his long contract, Davis also held an option for a five-year renewal.

AFL President Ralph C. Wilson Jr., owner of the Buffalo Bills, told a news conference Friday that Davis' organizational and administrative abilities had attracted the club owners.

"Al's background is football — at all levels," Wilson said.

Before he moved to Oakland, Davis was an assistant three years under Sid Gillman with the Los Angeles-San Diego Chargers. Earlier, he had been an assistant under Weeb Ewbank with the NFL Baltimore Colts and had coached at Adlephia College in Garden City, N.Y., Fort Belvoir, Va., the Citadel and the University of California.

Bootheel Beat

By MAX STURM

HAYTI – With the BOOTHEEL constantly having one of the highest traffic accident tolls of the nation's rural regions, leading citizens of the area have for the past two weeks been more than passingly interested in the Washington hearings on automobile safety as shown on television and reported in the newspapers and on the radio.

It appears that, so far, the Washington probe of the subject has been directed mainly toward incorporating safety features in automobiles that would help save the lives of and injuries to the occupants when their vehicle becomes involved in an accident.

This week it appeared that the debate was on whether the government would have an automobile safety "czar" to work with the automobile manufacturers or leave it up to the manufacturers themselves for a few more years to re-design new models with safety devices.

The automotive industry, through its spokesmen, argued against having the government tell them how to build the cars, suggesting that they be allowed to proceed on their own.

They pointed out that if they hadn't received the message before on making cars safer they had now and were ready to proceed with re-designing without further supervision or prodding by the government.

Which way would be better, I wouldn't know at this stage, but so far the automotive industry has worked on an admitted basis that the public prefers automobiles with style, big horsepower, gimmicks and gadgets and couldn't care less about sacrificing any of these for greater safety. In this position they are mainly right.

For example, most new cars now come equipped with seat belts, but not all drivers and their passengers will use them.

Last month in St. Louis county there was a total of 12 traffic deaths, and, according to news reports, not one of the persons who were killed was wearing a seat belt.

The automotive industry admits that cars can be built so that the occupants can survive collisions and upsets in which they would all be killed in the models now on the road, but with the indifference shown to the use of seat belts so far they doubt that the public would buy such a car in large numbers.

Anyway, it appears that the thinking is going to change in the automotive industry in a hurry whether or not the public is ready for it.

In addition to the pressure from Washington there is another important factor that is building a really hot fire under the car manufacturers. That is the threat of huge damage suits against them based on traffic accidents in which claims of negligence in automobile manufacturer are made.

Already the largest automobile manufacturer is involved in a number of such suits to the tune of $40 million.

Times have changed and public thinkings has changed to the extent that plaintiffs have a better chance of winning large settlements in these actions in the courts than they could in the past, and the automobile manufacturers knew it and fear it.

In this relation note the front page news this week that GM was going to spend $3 million to repair accelerator defects in 1.5 million 1964-65 models of two of its cars already on the nation's roads. In this king size move all owners of these particular cars will be asked to bring them in to the dealers and other service centers to have the repair made free of charge.

So I would say that we Bootheelers as well as all citizens of the nation are going to have the opportunity to purchase much safer cars in the future, and some of these ideas are sure to be incorporated in the '67 models with more added in the '68s and future years.

While the automobile manufacturers have been taking their lumps these past few days, too little, if anything, has been said about a government-sponsored driver's education and training program that has been suggested by some citizens. With today's high speed machines, fast highways and dense traffic, driving is now a professional job and much of the trouble is that too many amateurs are driving the cars and becoming involved in the accidents.

Driver education courses in many high schools are aiding in this situation, but there are still millions of drivers in the nation who have never had any training. Much work still remains to be done to make professional drivers out of all of the motorists in the land. Until more professionalism is practiced by more of the drivers, the heavy loss of life, limbs and property in traffic accidents will continue.

Another program to aid in this drive to reduce the traffic accident toll of course is more attention to safety in highway construction and the elimination of proven road and highway death traps. In the federal sponsored interstate system, it seems to many drivers that the inclusion of a white strip along the outer edges of the pavement should have been mandatory on every mile of the super highways. It is my opinion that these white stripes make the highways considerably safer for nighttime driving. Also a double counterline painted a few inches apart would have the effect of keeping vehicles farther apart in passing. In this idea I'm thinking of those drivers who have the bad habit of hugging the centerline. When two of these jokers attempt to pass each other, it can sometimes prove deadly. Two centerlines -- one for him and one for me -- would be much safer for both of us.

Much also is still to be done on the thousands of miles of Missouri's Highways that are not in the interstate system. The white outer stripes, as used on some stretches, should be painted on all of the system. Left turn waiting lanes at many critical points should be constructed, and proven death-traps should be either re-designed, re-marked or the traffic slowed to safer levels with special low - speed zones.

So the way it adds up, to really cut the traffic accident death, injury and property damage toll, a three-way program in cooperative operation is going to be required. That includes safer automobiles through re-design, safer drivers through mandatory training courses, and safer highways to eliminate the hazards and death traps.

Farm Labor Bulletin

STATE SUMMARY:

Discing, plowing and seed bed preparation are primary farming operations at present. Topsoil moisture is needed in many areas over the state. St. Louis is recruiting a busload of citrus pickers for Florida and Caruthersville is recruiting a busload of strawberry pickers for Lousiana this week.

The seriousness of the year-round farm hand shortage cannot be minimized, as 196 unfilled farm orders were reported this week.

Recuitment for farm hand trainees at Marshall is underway with a new class of twenty needed by April 25. Hire Day will be April 20.

Twenty - three year-round farm placements were made the past week plus thirty-four seasonal placements which were mostly horticultural in the Kansas City area.

Sikeston: 202 South Kingshighway. Telephone Granite 1-2731.

Limited acitivities in pre-planting bedding, fertilizing, pre - emergence application. Some few acres of early corn planted. Needs for farm equipment operators still remain critical. Have orders for 33, average wage of $1.00 per hour. Growers using workers who lack desired qualifications.

Poplar Bluff: 211 Pine Street -- Telephone: Sunset 5-9606.

There is still a demand for qualified farm help in this office area. Plowing and spreading of fertilizer is the only activity at the present time. Planting expected to start on April 4.

Caruthersville: 112 West Fifth Street -- Telephone: Edison 3-2416.

Lack of rain is becoming more noticeable in ground preparation. Some fields are too dry and cloddy for early planting. Plowing is most cases is fully up to date and growers are waiting for suitable weather to start cotton planting.

Kennett: 405 St. Francis Street - Telephone: Tuxeco 8-3184.

As the farmer is now getting into full swing in plowing and planting, the demand for day labor is on the increase, but supply and demand are in balance. A number of farmers are in need of good year-round farm hands, but lack of year-round financial stability for the employee is creating some problems.

Pre-Easter Price Gains In Porkers And Fed Cattle

National Stock Yards, Ill., April 9 -- The pre-Easter live stock trade was characterized by alternating periods of strength and weakness, according to Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Salable cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep of 46,794 head were in line with those of the previous week but down from the 51,167 for the same period last year.

A late rally in the hog market put barrows and gilts steady to 25¢ net higher for the week, with sows showing a gain of 50-75¢. Friday's hog top of $24.50 cwt. compared with peaks of $24.25 a week ago and $18.10 a year ago.

A lot of mostly Prime 1128 lb. steers topped at $29.00, followed by a load of mixed Choice and Prime 1175 lbs. at $28.75 and a part load 1350 lbs. $28.65. Most Choice steers were $27.00-28.25; mixed Good and Choice $26.50-27.50; Good $25.50-26.75; Standard and low Good $23.00-25.50.

A few lots of high Choice and Prime 850-1000 lb. heifers reached $27.00; Choice 800-1000 lbs. $25.75-26.75; Good and low Choice 700-950 lbs. $24.00-26.00; Standard and low Good $22.50-24.50.

Utility and Commercial cows brought $18.50-21.00; Canner and Cutter $16.00-19.00, a few shelly Canner $12.00-16.00. Utility, Commercial, and Good bulls were largely $21.00-22.50, top $23.00.

In Thursday's feeder cattle auction steers and heifers were unevenly weak to $1.00 lower. Quality of offerings was less attractive than in previous weeks. A lot of high Choice with an end of Prime 341 lb. steer calves topped at $32.50. Choice steers 375-775 lbs. were largely $26.50-29.25. A lot of Choice and Prime 479 lb. heifer calves registered $26.00.

Vealers closed slow and weak to $2.00 lower, late sales of Choice $31.00-36.00. Slaughter lambs under 105 lbs. sold steady to 50¢ lower, while heavier kinds were off 50¢ to $1.00. Choice and Prime woolskins late topped at $26.75, spring slaughter lambs sold downward from $27.50, except for a few specialty Easter lambs at $35.00-40.00.

BLOOMFIELD - Sixteen developing nations have requested Peace Corps agricultural volunteers for summer assignments Tom Brown, county extension director, announced today.

Current request for agricultural volunteers more than doubles those of past years. This increased demand reflects the critical food situation in many areas of the world. For example, in India alone between 15 and 20 million - twice the population of New York City -- are threatened by famine this year. Unless something is done -- and soon - - experts predict the next ten years will become the "Decade of Famine."

Training programs for ten countries in Latin America, four in Africa and two in Asia get underway this summer. These programs include volunteers for Bolivia, Brazil, the Dominican Republic, Chile, Colombia, Ecuador, El Salvador, Guinea, Honduras, India, Morocco, Nepal, Niger, Nigeria, Peru and Venezuela. These countries have requested volunteers for a wide variety of assignments utilizing every type of agricultural background.

Rural youth, farmers and retired farmers are especially needed for these programs. Rural young people with 4-H or FFA backgrounds are needed to help develop youth clubs, while volunteers with practical farming will work directly with farmers in villages encouraging improved farming methods.

People interested in Peace Corps summer agricultural programs may get more information and an application from Tom Brown at the county extension center in Bloomfield.

BLOOMFIELD -- Questions and comments from local farmers indicate that the use of a soil insecticide as a means of protecting corn stands against damage by soil insects will be practiced on a wide-spread basis this spring.

A number of soil insects work principally under the soil surface and damaged corn seed or the roots and stems of young corn plants. Seed corn maggots, and seed corn beetles injure the seed before or just as it sprouts. Wireworms damage both corn seed and seedling plants. Cutworms cut off young corn plants or feed on the stems at or just below the ground line. Corn rootworms and grape colaspis feed on the root systems of young corn plants. In addition, there are several less common insects such as white grubs and billbugs which may cause additional damage to the roots of young corn plants. These soil insects are a threat to corn stands almost every year, and when seasons are favorable for them, they often cause serious damage to corn stands and thereby decrease corn yields.

Soil insecticides, if properly used, will protect corn stands against soil insect damage and will thereby increase corn yields. Returns that might be expected from the use of a soil insecticide will vary from season to season. Three year average results of test plots conducted on farms throughout the state showed that broadcast application of soil insecticide increased plant populations 1400 stalks per acre and corn yields by 12 bushels per acre. In comparison, in-the-row applications increased stalk counts 1200 stalks per acre and yields by 10 bushels per acre. Based on results of research conducted on this problem and on-the-farm test plots, entomologists at the University of Missouri College of Agriculture say that a soil insecticide will pay for itself almost every year, and that during years when conditions are favorable for soil insects, a soil insecticide will pay big dividends. A few years ago the Moroni Brothers from Painton harvested 100 bushels of corn per acre from land treated with a soil in-acre from land not treated in the same field.

Either of two insecticides is recommended for soil insect control. As test plot results outlined above indicate, broadcast treatments will usually give better control and higher returns than will in-the-row applications. For broadcast applications, 1.5 pounds of actual aldrin or heptachlor is recommended. This treatment should be applied after corn land is plowed and disked into the top two or three inches of soil. It is usually best to apply this treatment 10 to 12 days before planting to kill the insects before the corn is planted, however, the soil can be treated up until planting time. Broadcast treatments should not be plowed down, but it will not hurt to re-disk the land after the treatment is applied. For in-the-row applications, one pound of actual aldrin or heptachlor should be applied at planting. This may be done by applying an insecticide - fertilizer mixture through the fertilizer attachment on the corn planter or by applying insecticide gran-

I think it should be emphasized that neither aldrin or heptachlor should not be used on corn that will be grazed by or fed to dairy cattle.

Of Interest to Homemakers

CHARLESTON - To take advantage of plentiful foods listed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for March, plan to use fresh oranges, eggs, rice, potatoes, peanuts and peanut products, prunes and prune juice.

FRESH ORANGES - Serve fresh orange sections in a fruit cup appetizer or dessert. Combine orange sections or slices with other fresh or canned fruits.

POTATOES - Serve in varied ways for thrifty meals with high nutritional value. Have you tried spices and herbs to enhance flavor and appearance? Suggested ones include basil, bay leaves, celery seed, oregano, sage, sesame seed, tarragon or thyme.

EGGS - Use them to get good meals and good nutrition. For facts on buying and storing eggs, and collection of recipes, write for "Eggs in Family Meals". Single copies are available free from the Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

PEANUTS - and Peanut Products -- For a dessert dazzler dress up chocolate, vanilla, and butterscotch pudding with a topping of crushed peanut brittle. A good sandwich filling is made by mixing equal parts of chunk-style peanut butter and deviled ham.

RICE - Use it for an excellent stuffing for fish, poultry, and meat. Add diced prunes for extra flavor and color contrast. If you want to get more milk into children's diets, use rice desserts and cook the rice in milk.

PRUNES - and Prune Juice - Minced prunes give a lift to fruit cup, applesauce, and breakfast cereals. For a salad or appetizer pit prunes and stuff with cottage cheese. Or try a mixture of cottage cheese and cream cheese with lemon juice to taste.

Extension Center News

CHARLESTON - Farmers are already concerned about moisture problems. This is unusual for this time of year but some fields need moisture to germinate corn and in all cases where weed control chemicals have been applied, moisture is needed to make them work.

Official weather records show that we just completed the driest March in 25 years. However, we cannot forget that we usually go from extremely dry to a point where we have excess water in only a few hours. We may get those spring rains yet and make everything work out.

The normal date to begin planting cotton, is less than two weeks away. Continued dry weather will cause serious problems on cotton because of shallow planting. Several farmers have asked about planting corn and cotton without using weed control chemicals because of a short moisture supply. Our answer has been to encourage the use of a recommended weed control chemical regardless of weather conditions. We feel that everything must be done on the assumption that growing conditions will be ideal. If we cut corners trying to save money then get a good growing season we have reduced our yield potential because we tried to save money. If we do everything, expecting an ideal growing season then we have weather problems we will still be ahead. Even with adverse weather conditions good management practices will always give you the greatest returns.

Cotton Market News

Purchases from Commodity Credit Corporation on bids opened April 4 dominated the marketing picture, according to the Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. D. A. Sales under the four programs currently in effect amounted to 517,193 bales. Domestic mill buying of cotton for early fall and winter delivery increased substantially from a week earlier. Trading in old crop cotton was off slightly from last week.

Spot cotton trading on most markets in old crop cotton was off from a week earlier. Domestic mill interest in new crop cotton strengthened covered a substantial part of their August and September needs, while some reached out as far as December. Interest was best for Strict Low Middling and higher grades with 1-1/16 and 1-3/32 inches staples. Demand from foreign sources was up slightly. Some European mills were in the market for the higher White grades, while most Far Eastern mills were buying Low Middling and lower grades.

Favorable weather for preplant operations on the farms prevailed throughout the area. Many farmers continued to put down herbicides and fertilizers and prepare seedbeds for planting. Soil temperatures in many localities remained too low for germination, but most farmers indicate that as soon as this temperature reaches a favorable level planting will become widespread. Lack of topsoil moisture in some localities could slow germination.

U.S. 4-H Honors Kennett Banker

COLUMBIA, --Joseph C. Welman, Kennett, has received national recognition for his contributions to 4-H work.

Welman, chairman of the board of the Bank of Kennett, has been named a "Partner in 4-H."

He is one of seven persons in the United States to be selected for the honor. The new "partners" will be specially recognized at ceremonies during the 36th National 4-H conference in Washington, D. C., April 17-22.

Welman is national chairman of the 4-H builders program for the American Bankers Association, and is a member of the Missouri 4-H foundations's advisory committee.

Within his home county of Dunklin, Welman has been a strong supporter of 4-H and extension programs for many years. He was active in helping obtain improved facilities at the Missouri 4-H camp at Lake Wappapello.

His community service efforts embrace areas in addition to 4-H work. He has been chairman of the trust committee of the Southeast Missouri Area Boy Scout council.

He is a former director of the Missouri state chamber of commerce. He served on the Kennett board of education, and headed the industrial committee of the Kennett chamber of commerce. He is a member of many other organizations.

He is a past president of the Missouri Bankers Association and the American Bankers Association.

He and Mrs. Welman have two sons, William and Joseph Jr. Both sons received degrees in business and public administration from the University of Missouri. William Welman also was graduated from the University school of law.

ANNOUNCING TWO NEW Eversman PRODUCTS
for faster, easier, more economical land forming
New Model 600 SD Hydraulic Scraper

- With greater capacity, increased transport clearance, ease and speed in loading.
- Less cost per yard of capacity on initial investment.
- A single control valve for operator ease and convenience.
- A simple weight transfer to fit tractor power available.
- Carry up to 8 yards on a standard tractor drawbar and automotive tires.
- Available as single or tandem units behind 70 to 80 D.B.H.P. tractors.
- Frost bit standard equipment—at no extra cost.
New Model 4012 Automatic Land Leveler

- A large, wide leveler—for precision land smoothing.
- Full 12' cutting blade—reduces leveling time by 20%.
- Proven design—utilizing the famous Eversman fully automatic leveling action.
- Balanced engineering — the Eversman Model 1012 gives you the correctly engineered length, width and weight to match your standard tractor available and the size of your farming operation.
- Economical investment—no special equipment need be purchased to make this a complete leveler and short-haul dirt mover.
- Versatility, transportability, adjustability — designed to operate under all soil conditions and to perform all land forming jobs.

Three Factors in Highway Safety

By MAX STURM

HAYTI -- With the BOOTHEEL constantly having one of the highest traffic accident tolls of the nation's rural regions, leading citizens of the area have for the past two weeks been more than passingly interested in the Washington hearings on automobile safety as shown on television and reported in the newspapers and on the radio.

It appears that, so far, the Washington probe of the subject has been directed mainly toward incorporating safety features in automobiles that would help save the lives of and injuries to the occupants when their vehicle becomes involved in an accident.

This week it appeared that the debate was on whether the government would have an automobile safety "czar" to work with the automobile manufacturers or leave it up to the manufacturers themselves for a few more years to re-design new models with safety devices.

The automotive industry, through its spokesmen, argued against having the government tell them how to build the cars, suggesting that they be allowed to proceed on their own.

They pointed out that if they hadn't received the message before on making cars safer they had now and were ready to proceed with re-designing without further supervision or prodding by the government.

Which way would be better, I wouldn't know at this stage, but so far the automotive industry has worked on an admitted basis that the public prefers automobiles with style, big horsepower, gimmicks and gadgets and couldn't care less about sacrificing any of these for greater safety. In this position they are mainly right.

For example, most new cars now come equipped with seat belts, but not all drivers and their passengers will use them.

Last month in St. Louis county there was a total of 12 traffic deaths, and, according to news reports, not one of the persons who were killed was wearing a seat belt.

The automotive industry admits that cars can be built so that the occupants can survive collisions and upsets in which they would all be killed in the models now on the road, but with the indifference shown to the use of seat belts so far they doubt that the public would buy such a car in large numbers.

Anyway, it appears that the thinking is going to change in the automotive industry in a hurry whether or not the public is ready for it.

In addition to the pressure from Washington there is another important factor that is building a really hot fire under the car manufacturers. That is the threat of huge damage suits against them based on traffic accidents in which claims of negligence in automobile manufacturer are made.

Already the largest automobile manufacturer is involved in a number of such suits to the tune of $40 million.

Times have changed and public thinkings has changed to the extent that plaintiffs have a better chance of winning large settlements in these actions in the courts than they could in the past, and the automobile manufacturers knew it and fear it.

In this relation note the front page news this week that GM was going to spend $3 million to repair accelerator defects in 1.5 million 1964-65 models of two of its cars already on the nation's roads. In this king size move all owners of these particular cars will be asked to bring them in to the dealers and other service centers to have the repair made free of charge.

So I would say that we Bootheelers as well as all citizens of the nation are going to have the opportunity to purchase much safer cars in the future, and some of these ideas are sure to be incorporated in the '67 models with more added in the '68s and future years.

While the automobile manufacturers have been taking their lumps these past few days, too little, if anything, has been said about a government-sponsored driver's education and training program that has been suggested by some citizens. With today's high speed machines, fast highways and dense traffic, driving is now a professional job and much of the trouble is that too many amateurs are driving the cars and becoming involved in the accidents.

Driver education courses in many high schools are aiding in this situation, but there are still millions of drivers in the nation who have never had any training. Much work still remains to be done to make professional drivers out of all of the motorists in the land. Until more professionalism is practiced by more of the drivers, the heavy loss of life, limbs and property in traffic accidents will continue.

Another program to aid in this drive to reduce the traffic accident toll of course is more attention to safety in highway construction and the elimination of proven road and highway death traps. In the federal sponsored interstate system, it seems to many drivers that the inclusion of a white strip along the outer edges of the pavement should have been mandatory on every mile of the super highways. It is my opinion that these white stripes make the highways considerably safer for nighttime driving. Also a double counterline painted a few inches apart would have the effect of keeping vehicles farther apart in passing. In this idea I'm thinking of those drivers who have the bad habit of hugging the centerline. When two of these jokers attempt to pass each other, it can sometimes prove deadly. Two centerlines -- one for him and one for me -- would be much safer for both of us.

Much also is still to be done on the thousands of miles of Missouri's Highways that are not in the interstate system. The white outer stripes, as used on some stretches, should be painted on all of the system. Left turn waiting lanes at many critical points should be constructed, and proven death-traps should be either re-designed, re-marked or the traffic slowed to safer levels with special low - speed zones.

So the way it adds up, to really cut the traffic accident death, injury and property damage toll, a three-way program in cooperative operation is going to be required. That includes safer automobiles through re-design, safer drivers through mandatory training courses, and safer highways to eliminate the hazards and death traps.

Farm Labor Bulletin

STATE SUMMARY:

Discing, plowing and seed bed preparation are primary farming operations at present. Topsoil moisture is needed in many areas over the state. St. Louis is recruiting a busload of citrus pickers for Florida and Caruthersville is recruiting a busload of strawberry pickers for Lousiana this week.

The seriousness of the year-round farm hand shortage cannot be minimized, as 196 unfilled farm orders were reported this week.

It is usually best to apply this treatment 10 to 12 days before planting to kill the insects before the corn is planted, however, the soil can be treated up until planting time. Broadcast treatments should not be plowed down, but it will not hurt to re-disk the land after the treatment is applied. For in-the-row applications, one pound of actual aldrin or heptachlor should be applied at planting. This may be done by applying an insecticide - fertilizer mixture through the fertilizer attachment on the corn planter or by applying insecticide granules. I think it should be emphasized that neither aldrin or heptachlor should not be used on corn that will be grazed by or fed to dairy cattle.

Of Interest to Homemakers

CHARLESTON - To take advantage of plentiful foods listed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture for March, plan to use fresh oranges, eggs, rice, potatoes, peanuts and peanut products, prunes and prune juice.

FRESH ORANGES - Serve fresh orange sections in a fruit cup appetizer or dessert. Combine orange sections or slices with other fresh or canned fruits.

POTATOES - Serve in varied ways for thrifty meals with high nutritional value. Have you tried spices and herbs to enhance flavor and appearance? Suggested ones include basil, bay leaves, celery seed, oregano, sage, sesame seed, tarragon or thyme.

EGGS - Use them to get good meals and good nutrition. For facts on buying and storing eggs, and collection of recipes, write for "Eggs in Family Meals". Single copies are available free from the Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250.

PEANUTS - and Peanut Products -- For a dessert dazzler dress up chocolate, vanilla, and butterscotch pudding with a topping of crushed peanut brittle. A good sandwich filling is made by mixing equal parts of chunk-style peanut butter and deviled ham.

RICE - Use it for an excellent stuffing for fish, poultry, and meat. Add diced prunes for extra flavor and color contrast. If you want to get more milk into children's diets, use rice desserts and cook the rice in milk.

PRUNES - and Prune Juice - Minced prunes give a lift to fruit cup, applesauce, and breakfast cereals. For a salad or appetizer pit prunes and stuff with cottage cheese. Or try a mixture of cottage cheese and cream cheese with lemon juice to taste.

Extension Center News

CHARLESTON - Farmers are already concerned about moisture problems. This is unusual for this time of year but some fields need moisture to germinate corn and in all cases where weed control chemicals have been applied, moisture is needed to make them work.

Official weather records show that we just completed the driest March in 25 years. However, we cannot forget that we usually go from extremely dry to a point where we have excess water in only a few hours. We may get those spring rains yet and make everything work out.

The normal date to begin planting cotton, is less than two weeks away. Continued dry weather will cause serious problems on cotton because of shallow planting. Several farmers have asked about planting corn and cotton without using weed control chemicals because of a short moisture supply. Our answer has been to encourage the use of a recommended weed control chemical regardless of weather conditions. We feel that everything must be done on the assumption that growing conditions will be ideal. If we cut corners trying to save money then get a good growing season we have reduced our yield potential because we tried to save money. If we do everything, expecting an ideal growing season then we have weather problems we will still be ahead. Even with adverse weather conditions good management practices will always give you the greatest returns.

Cotton Market News

Purchases from Commodity Credit Corporation on bids opened April 4 dominated the marketing picture, according to the Consumer and Marketing Service, U. S. D. A. Sales under the four programs currently in effect amounted to 517,193 bales. Domestic mill buying of cotton for early fall and winter delivery increased substantially from a week earlier. Trading in old crop cotton was off slightly from last week.

Spot cotton trading on most markets in old crop cotton was off from a week earlier. Domestic mill interest in new crop cotton strengthened covered a substantial part of their August and September needs, while some reached out as far as December. Interest was best for Strict Low Middling and higher grades with 1-1/16 and 1-3/32 inches staples. Demand from foreign sources was up slightly. Some European mills were in the market for the higher White grades, while most Far Eastern mills were buying Low Middling and lower grades.

Favorable weather for preplant operations on the farms prevailed throughout the area. Many farmers continued to put down herbicides and fertilizers and prepare seedbeds for planting. Soil temperatures in many localities remained too low for germination, but most farmers indicate that as soon as this temperature reaches a favorable level planting will become widespread. Lack of topsoil moisture in some localities could slow germination.

U.S. 4-H Honors Kennett Banker

COLUMBIA, --Joseph C. Welman, Kennett, has received national recognition for his contributions to 4-H work.

Welman, chairman of the board of the Bank of Kennett, has been named a "Partner in 4-H."

He is one of seven persons in the United States to be selected for the honor. The new "partners" will be specially recognized at ceremonies during the 36th National 4-H conference in Washington, D. C., April 17-22.

Welman is national chairman of the 4-H builders program for the American Bankers Association, and is a member of the Missouri 4-H foundations's advisory committee.

Within his home county of Dunklin, Welman has been a strong supporter of 4-H and extension programs for many years. He was active in helping obtain improved facilities at the Missouri 4-H camp at Lake Wappapello.

His community service efforts embrace areas in addition to 4-H work. He has been chairman of the trust committee of the Southeast Missouri Area Boy Scout council.

He is a former director of the Missouri state chamber of commerce. He served on the Kennett board of education, and headed the industrial committee of the Kennett chamber of commerce. He is a member of many other organizations.

He is a past president of the Missouri Bankers Association and the American Bankers Association.

He and Mrs. Welman have two sons, William and Joseph Jr. Both sons received degrees in business and public administration from the University of Missouri. William Welman also was graduated from the University school of law.

ANNOUNCING TWO NEW Eversman PRODUCTS
for faster, easier, more economical land forming
New Model 600 SD Hydraulic Scraper

• With greater capacity, increased transport clearance, ease and speed in loading.
• Less cost per yard of capacity on initial investment.
• A single control valve for operator ease and convenience.
• A simple weight transfer to fit tractor power available.
• Carry up to 8 yards on a standard tractor drawbar and automotive tires.
• Available as single or tandem units behind 70 to 80 D.B.H.P. tractors.
New Model 4012 Automatic Land Leveler

• Full 12' cutting blade—reduces leveling time by 20%.
• Proven design—utilizing the famous Eversman fully automatic leveling action.
• Balanced engineering — the Eversman Model 1012 gives you the correctly engineered length, width and weight to match your standard tractor available and the size of your farming operation.
• Economical investment—no special equipment need be purchased to make this a complete leveler and short-haul dirt mover.
• Versatility, transportability, adjustability — designed to operate under all soil conditions and to perform all land forming jobs.

NEAR TRAGEDY of an end of a two weeks vacation for Minnesota and Wisconsin families, occurred Friday in a collision. A trailer-truck turned a huge truck away from a Lincoln, which was pulling a housetrailer, driven by Charles Nelson, Minneapolis. The Nelson car slowed up at a truck stop, near the Marston intersection when it was given a glancing blow by an ABF truck, driven by Fred Wadlington, Cape Girardeau. The car and housetrailer are at right. The tractor-trailer is shown at left.

Collision in Rain Mars Vacation

MARSTON -- Minnesota and Wisconsin families, returning from a two weeks vacation on the Gulf coast, narrowly escaped serious injuries in a collision at Roy's Truck Stop, near here Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson, Minneapolis, driving a new Lincoln and pulling a trailer, had slowed down at the intersection of highways 61 and 62 during a rain, when the house trailer was struck by an ABF Truck, causing heavy damage to the rear of the trailer, and ramming the trailer hitch under the Lincoln.

The driver of the Tractor-trailer, Fred Wadlington, Cape Girardeau, averted a serious wreck when he pulled his trailer to the side to prevent a solid impact.

Slightly injured in the car were Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Guy Pardun, Danberry, Wis., complaining of a whiplash, while the two Nelson children, Jackie and Scott, were uninjured, as was the driver of the Lincoln.

The vacationers left Hayti at 7:30 a.m. The highway patrol investigated the accident shortly after 8:30 a.m.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

He said to Thomas, "Put your finger here, and see my hands, and put out your hand, and place it in my side; do not be faithless, but believing." (John 20:27, RSV)

PRAYER: Father, as we think today of our Lord's nail-scarred hands and feet, His thorn-crowned brow, and His pierced side, may we hear Him say, "Yes, for you!" In His lovely name we pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: For years I have been hearing gruesome tales about the menopause. Now at last, I am learning, first hand, what the menopause really means.

It means a woman has reached the time of life when she feels that her 25-year-old furniture should be thrown out and the sunken mattresses replaced.

It means the house needs a little fresh paint and new wallpaper and those appliances which were wedding gifts aren't worth fixing any more.

It means that lazy buck she is married to should wake up and realize that his wife can't hit on 16 cylinders night and day and he ought to take her on a little vacation before she drops in her tracks.

I could say a lot more on this subject but your column isn't long enough. Just sign me -- THE CHANGE IS HERE AND I COULD USE ONE.

Dear Lady: If you had written more, the column WOULD have been longer. I'm sorry you didn't because you have something useful to say -- and you know how to say it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our three-year-old daughter has no one to play with. We live in an apartment building which houses mostly childless couples and retired people.

Last month I enrolled Annabelle in a nursery school three afternoons a week. My mother insists that I've done a terrible thing. She said, "In MY day mothers enjoyed their children. They didn't try to get rid of them in every way possible."

I told her I'm not trying to get rid of Annabelle. I feel it is important for children to be with youngsters their own age and not spend their pre-school years in an adult world.

Am I wrong? My mother is making me feel guilty. --RO-15.

Dear Ro: You are right. An exclusive diet of adult company is unhealthy for children. Don't argue with your mother--and don't feel guilty. Let her know that you will use your own judgment in these matters and that further discussion on THIS subject is pointless.

Dear Ann: Yesterday a group of secretaries was discussing broken engagements. There was some heated disagreement over what happens to the ring.

One of the secretaries said the girl keeps the ring if the fellow breaks the engagement, as payment for the time she spent on him. She also said if the girl breaks the engagement it is good manners to give the ring back. Right or wrong? --CARBON PAPER DOLLS

Dear Dolls: When the fellow calls it quits, tradition says the girl is permitted to keep the ring. Speaking for myself, I could never understand why a girl would WANT the ring of a fellow who didn't want her.

When the girl breaks the engagement it is traditional that she return the ring. In SOME states it goes beyond tradition--it's the law.

Confidential to BEAN POLE: You need psychiatric help to learn how to cope with real problem. It's not his height.

Nurse Program Among Projects

Sikeston's Licensed Practical Nurse training program, held in the public schools administrative office, is one of 14 projects on which 505 Missourians will receive training under the Manpower Development and Training Act, the departments of Labor and Health Education and Welfare announced today in Jefferson City.

The program was begun in Sikeston in 1963. Since then, two classes have graduated and a third of 18 persons is scheduled in July.

The program supplies nurses to the Missouri Delta Community and the Dunklin County Memorial hospitals.

Mrs. C. F. Eisenbach is coordinator.

All trainees will be referred by the Missouri Employment Service.

No Upsets In Elections

CARUTHERSVILLE -- There were no upsets in Pemiscot municipal elections Tuesday.

In the Caruthersville contest with opposition, Roy Smith ran best but lost to Dee Barnes, 258 to 204, for the Ward 4 councilman position. Barnes is the incumbent.

Others running unopposed were Mayor B. F. Rogers, 931 votes; City Treasurer James A. Jeffress, 734; Police Judge W. D. Byrd, 735; City attorney John R. Fowlkes, 722; Mrs. Obye Coker, city assessor, 845; and Ward 1 Councilman Gilbert Hazel, 81; Ward 2 Councilman Wyman Dillman, 200; Ward 3 Councilman Leslie Knott Sr., 171.

Voters approved a 10 cent levy hike for schools, 438 to 230.

Trucker Escapes Serious Injury

BENTON -- Hardy Young of Jackson, Miss., escaped serious injury Thursday morning when his tractor-trailer truck went out of control on Interstate Highway 55 east of here, crossed the median strip and overturned. He received cuts on his arm.

He told officers the wheels of the rig locked as he was heading north in the MPI vehicle, throwing it across the highway and into the ditch adjacent to the southbound lanes.

Two wreckers were unable to remove the truck in early efforts. Traffic was blocked for a time as they sought to free the big vehicle, which rested on its side.

The hippopatamus is almost extinct in Egypt.

IS FREEDOM ONLY KID STUFF?

Sure, freedom is kid stuff. Mainly because of that marvelous simplicity kids have. Cathy Roberts, Grade Two, can reduce freedom to three sentences. That puts us non-kids at a disadvantage. Because we know that freedom is more complicated than that. We know that freedom is never something that has happened. Rather, it has to happen every day.

You have to make it happen every day. In everyday ways. From taking a few minutes to read your congressman's letters to spending half an hour writing him a letter if you think he's not on the ball. Participating in a local political organization. Putting away education money regularly for the Cathys in your family so they'll be better informed citizens. Things that take more caring than time, such as "adopting" a war orphan by mail. Things that take a whole chunk of time, say giving up an evening each week to help out at a local boys' club.

Oh, it's not as easy as writing a Grade Two essay, this business of keeping freedom a going thing. But just between us, who in this whole wide world knows better than we do that freedom is worth it? At twice the price.

Freedom: the more you use it, the longer it lasts

A group of friends delightfully surprised Mrs. M. M. Beck Friday with a covered-dish luncheon. The occasion was Mrs. Beck's birth anniversary.

Jimmy Nall, son of Toots Nall, is critically ill with pneumonia and intestinal influenza, at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lon Nall, on Malone Avenue.

G. B. Greer had a severe attack with his heart at midnight Wednesday night and was in a serious condition for many hours. Early Thursday morning he was thought to be resting easier and friends and acquaintances are hoping that he will soon regain his usual health.

The body of Charles Moore was found Wednesday morning lying doubled up near a small bridge on a rural road a short distance west of Wolfe Hole ditch. The place is in the Big Opening community of New Madrid county and three miles east of the Gables night club.

NEAR TRAGEDY of an end of a two weeks vacation for Minnesota and Wisconsin families, occurred Friday in a collision. A trailer-truck turned a huge truck away from a Lincoln, which was pulling a housetrailer, driven by Charles Nelson, Minneapolis. The Nelson car slowed up at a truck stop, near the Marston intersection when it was given a glancing blow by an ABF truck, driven by Fred Wadlington, Cape Girardeau. The car and housetrailer are at right. The tractor-trailer is shown at left.

Collision in Rain Mars Vacation

MARSTON -- Minnesota and Wisconsin families, returning from a two weeks vacation on the Gulf coast, narrowly escaped serious injuries in a collision at Roy's Truck Stop, near here Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Nelson, Minneapolis, driving a new Lincoln and pulling a trailer, had slowed down at the intersection of highways 61 and 62 during a rain, when the house trailer was struck by an ABF Truck, causing heavy damage to the rear of the trailer, and ramming the trailer hitch under the Lincoln.

The driver of the Tractor-trailer, Fred Wadlington, Cape Girardeau, averted a serious wreck when he pulled his trailer to the side to prevent a solid impact.

Slightly injured in the car were Mrs. Nelson and Mrs. Guy Pardun, Danberry, Wis., complaining of a whiplash, while the two Nelson children, Jackie and Scott, were uninjured, as was the driver of the Lincoln.

The vacationers left Hayti at 7:30 a.m. The highway patrol investigated the accident shortly after 8:30 a.m.

The Prayer

For Today From The Upper Room

He said to Thomas, "Put your finger here, and see my hands, and put out your hand, and place it in my side; do not be faithless, but believing." (John 20:27, RSV)

PRAYER: Father, as we think today of our Lord's nail-scarred hands and feet, His thorn-crowned brow, and His pierced side, may we hear Him say, "Yes, for you!" In His lovely name we pray. Amen.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: For years I have been hearing gruesome tales about the menopause. Now at last, I am learning, first hand, what the menopause really means.

It means a woman has reached the time of life when she feels that her 25-year-old furniture should be thrown out and the sunken mattresses replaced.

It means the house needs a little fresh paint and new wallpaper and those appliances which were wedding gifts aren't worth fixing any more.

It means that lazy buck she is married to should wake up and realize that his wife can't hit on 16 cylinders night and day and he ought to take her on a little vacation before she drops in her tracks.

I could say a lot more on this subject but your column isn't long enough. Just sign me -- THE CHANGE IS HERE AND I COULD USE ONE.

Dear Lady: If you had written more, the column WOULD have been longer. I'm sorry you didn't because you have something useful to say -- and you know how to say it.

Dear Ann Landers: Our three-year-old daughter has no one to play with. We live in an apartment building which houses mostly childless couples and retired people.

Last month I enrolled Annabelle in a nursery school three afternoons a week. My mother insists that I've done a terrible thing. She said, "In MY day mothers enjoyed their children. They didn't try to get rid of them in every way possible."

I told her I'm not trying to get rid of Annabelle. I feel it is important for children to be with youngsters their own age and not spend their pre-school years in an adult world.

Am I wrong? My mother is making me feel guilty. --RO-15.

Dear Ro: You are right. An exclusive diet of adult company is unhealthy for children. Don't argue with your mother--and don't feel guilty. Let her know that you will use your own judgment in these matters and that further discussion on THIS subject is pointless.

Dear Ann: Yesterday a group of secretaries was discussing broken engagements. There was some heated disagreement over what happens to the ring.

One of the secretaries said the girl keeps the ring if the fellow breaks the engagement, as payment for the time she spent on him. She also said if the girl breaks the engagement it is good manners to give the ring back. Right or wrong? --CARBON PAPER DOLLS

Dear Dolls: When the fellow calls it quits, tradition says the girl is permitted to keep the ring. Speaking for myself, I could never understand why a girl would WANT the ring of a fellow who didn't want her.

When the girl breaks the engagement it is traditional that she return the ring. In SOME states it goes beyond tradition--it's the law.

Confidential to BEAN POLE: You need psychiatric help to learn how to cope with real problem. It's not his height.

IS FREEDOM ONLY KID STUFF?

Sure, freedom is kid stuff. Mainly because of that marvelous simplicity kids have. Cathy Roberts, Grade Two, can reduce freedom to three sentences. That puts us non-kids at a disadvantage. Because we know that freedom is more complicated than that. We know that freedom is never something that has happened. Rather, it has to happen every day.

You have to make it happen every day. In everyday ways. From taking a few minutes to read your congressman's letters to spending half an hour writing him a letter if you think he's not on the ball. Participating in a local political organization. Putting away education money regularly for the Cathys in your family so they'll be better informed citizens. Things that take more caring than time, such as "adopting" a war orphan by mail. Things that take a whole chunk of time, say giving up an evening each week to help out at a local boys' club.

Oh, it's not as easy as writing a Grade Two essay, this business of keeping freedom a going thing. But just between us, who in this whole wide world knows better than we do that freedom is worth it? At twice the price.

Freedom: the more you use it, the longer it lasts

Fabick in Sikeston For 25 Years

When the business was established in Sikeston there were 10 employes. Now, there are 44, 11 of whom have been working with the company more than 20 years.

Charles Stamp is manager.

There are eight Fabick sales facilities in Illinois and Missouri -- three in St. Louis, one each in Sikeston and Jefferson City.

Illinois outlets are: Salem, Marion and Crossville.

The company was founded by John A. Fabick, Sr., who died shortly after the opening of the Sikeston plant, which was the second sales outlet for the company.

The first branch in Salem, Ill., will soon have been in operation 50 years.

Ground for the Sikeston building was broken in November of 1940.

Operations began April 8, 1941.

The 10-county area served by the Sikeston branch: New Madrid, Scott, Mississippi, Pemiscot, Dunklin, Stoddard, Wayne, Butler, Bollinger and Cape Girardeau.

President of the company is John A. Fabick Jr. of St. Louis.

Francis Fabick is secretary-treasurer and Joe G. Fabick is vice president. Both live in St. Louis.

The 10-foot long, 3-foot thick tube had been hauled up by the recovery vessel Petrel.

Then -- and only then -- was it definitely identified by serial number as the hydrogen bomb which spilled from a B52 disintegrating after colliding with a refueling tanker six miles above Spain's coast Jan. 17.

On Friday the bomb was being displayed like valuable pirate treasure before newsmen and Spanish officials who could assure Spain's peasant folk the nuclear intruder had at last been apprehended.

The exact price of the unprecedented operation -- unique not only from a technical standpoint but also because of volatile security and diplomatic aspects -- may never be known. The Navy acknowledges the cost runs into the millions of dollars.

The sea search involved 18 vessels and 3,200 men.

It is a rather sweet bit of irony, then, that with this vast force at work, the bomb was first found by the tiny Alvin -- creeping backward down a 70-degree sea slope.

"The sub couldn't go forward down the slope because at that angle the crew couldn't see over the nose," an official explained.

The Alvin had its work to do all over again when the line broke during the shifting maneuver in March.

During the nine days the sub passed within six feet of its object before once again pinpointing the bomb.

Then, an unmanned electronic device operated like a robot was called into action. This unit called CURV- cable -controlled underwater research vehicle -- used mechanical arms to snag two hook - equipped nylon lines 4,700 feet long in the bomb's parachute lines.

Like a dead fish the bomb was reeled up.

Navy officials said Friday that the H-bomb will be returned from Spain to the United States on the ship Cascade for intensive study.

corner on that one.

"The trend of farm and food prices for the rest of this year ought to be leveling out or possibly declining."

In a move against inflation, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler urged bankers to "turn down or scale back" speculative and less-productive loans.

He said banks have to curb their lending activities because the growth of credit "threatens inflation."

He added that it is better to weed out the "less-deserving" loan requests than to have skyrocketing interest rates bar some borrowers.

The Chase Manhattan Bank of New York commented: "The best way to cure inflation is to bring public spending into line with our public resources."

It said a reduction in federal spending is preferable to raising taxes because "tax increase, in the short run at least will not be accompanied by an equivalent reduction in private spending."

Several more big corporations agreed to heed Johnson's request to trim expenditures for new plant and equipment as a means of warding off inflation.

Service for Victim of Road Crash

ADVANCE -- Services for Jerrell Mitchell Ladd of Sturdivant were Saturday at 2 p.m. at Baluch Church near Zalma. The Rev. Paul Grant officiated and burial was in the church cemetery with Morgan Funeral Home in charge.

Ladd was killed Thursday morning in a truck-motocycle collision on Highway 51 at Zalma. The highway patrol said his motorcycle struck a two-ton gravel truck as the truck turned off a gravel road onto the highway. The motorcycle slid under the truck, troopers said.

Ladd was born Aug. 13, 1945, in Bollinger county and was employed by his father in a timber business.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Finis Ladd, Sturdivant; two brothers, Glen Ladd, Sturdivant; and James Ladd, Advance; and the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Luvada Cato, Sturdivant.

Fabick in Sikeston For 25 Years

Yesterday marked the 25th birthday of Fabick Brothers Equipment in the Sikeston area.

When the business was established in Sikeston there were 10 employes. Now, there are 44, 11 of whom have been working with the company more than 20 years.

Charles Stamp is manager.

There are eight Fabick sales facilities in Illinois and Missouri -- three in St. Louis, one each in Sikeston and Jefferson City.

Illinois outlets are: Salem, Marion and Crossville.

The company was founded by John A. Fabick, Sr., who died shortly after the opening of the Sikeston plant, which was the second sales outlet for the company.

The first branch in Salem, Ill., will soon have been in operation 50 years.

Ground for the Sikeston building was broken in November of 1940.

Operations began April 8, 1941.

The 10-county area served by the Sikeston branch: New Madrid, Scott, Mississippi, Pemiscot, Dunklin, Stoddard, Wayne, Butler, Bollinger and Cape Girardeau.

President of the company is John A. Fabick Jr. of St. Louis.

Francis Fabick is secretary-treasurer and Joe G. Fabick is vice president. Both live in St. Louis.

The 10-foot long, 3-foot thick tube had been hauled up by the recovery vessel Petrel.

Then — and only then — was it definitely identified by serial number as the hydrogen bomb which spilled from a B52 disintegrating after colliding with a refueling tanker six miles above Spain's coast Jan. 17.

On Friday the bomb was being displayed like valuable pirate treasure before newsmen and Spanish officials who could assure Spain's peasant folk the nuclear intruder had at last been apprehended.

The exact price of the unprecedented operation — unique not only from a technical standpoint but also because of volatile security and diplomatic aspects — may never be known. The Navy acknowledges the cost runs into the millions of dollars.

The sea search involved 18 vessels and 3,200 men.

It is a rather sweet bit of irony, then, that with this vast force at work, the bomb was first found by the tiny Alvin — creeping backward down a 70-degree sea slope.

"The sub couldn't go forward down the slope because at that angle the crew couldn't see over the nose," an official explained.

The Alvin had its work to do all over again when the line broke during the shifting maneuver in March.

During the nine days the sub passed within six feet of its object before once again pinpointing the bomb.

Then, an unmanned electronic device operated like a robot was called into action. This unit called CURV- cable -controlled underwater research vehicle — used mechanical arms to snag two hook - equipped nylon lines 4,700 feet long in the bomb's parachute lines.

Like a dead fish the bomb was reeled up.

Navy officials said Friday that the H-bomb will be returned from Spain to the United States on the ship Cascade for intensive study.

corner on that one.

"The trend of farm and food prices for the rest of this year ought to be leveling out or possibly declining."

In a move against inflation, Secretary of the Treasury Henry H. Fowler urged bankers to "turn down or scale back" speculative and less-productive loans.

He said banks have to curb their lending activities because the growth of credit "threatens inflation."

He added that it is better to weed out the "less-deserving" loan requests than to have skyrocketing interest rates bar some borrowers.

The Chase Manhattan Bank of New York commented: "The best way to cure inflation is to bring public spending into line with our public resources."

It said a reduction in federal spending is preferable to raising taxes because "tax increase, in the short run at least will not be accompanied by an equivalent reduction in private spending."

Several more big corporations agreed to heed Johnson's request to trim expenditures for new plant and equipment as a means of warding off inflation.

Service for Victim of Road Crash

ADVANCE -- Services for Jerrell Mitchell Ladd of Sturdivant were Saturday at 2 p.m. at Baluch Church near Zalma. The Rev. Paul Grant officiated and burial was in the church cemetery with Morgan Funeral Home in charge.

Ladd was killed Thursday morning in a truck-motocycle collision on Highway 51 at Zalma. The highway patrol said his motorcycle struck a two-ton gravel truck as the truck turned off a gravel road onto the highway. The motorcycle slid under the truck, troopers said.

Ladd was born Aug. 13, 1945, in Bollinger county and was employed by his father in a timber business.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Finis Ladd, Sturdivant; two brothers, Glen Ladd, Sturdivant; and James Ladd, Advance; and the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Bertha Luvada Cato, Sturdivant.

FROM THIS SLIGHT SEED

Easter holds many spiritual wonders. Not the least among them is the almost miraculous way in which a few short sentences in the Bible carry the Easter story from generation to generation.

Read this brief story again. There are other references in the Bible, parallel in their content, but this version is from the Gospel of John and was translated into modern English for the gospel issued as a booklet, "One Way for Modern Man," by the American Bible Society:

But on the first day of the week, Mary of Magdala arrived at the tomb, very early in the morning, while it was still dark, and noticed that the stone had been taken away from the tomb. At this she ran, found Simon Peter and the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and told them, "They have taken the Lord out of the tomb and we don't know where they have put him."

Peter and the other disciple set off at once for the tomb, the two of them running together. The other disciple ran faster than Peter and was the first to arrive at the tomb. He stopped and looked inside and noticed the linen cloths lying there but did not go in himself. Hard on his heels came Simon Peter, who went straight into the tomb. He noticed that the linen cloths were lying there, and that the handerchief, which had been round Jesus' head, was not lying with the linen cloths but was rolled up by itself, a little way apart. Then the other disciple, who was the first to arrive at the tomb, came inside as well, saw what had happened and believed. (They did not yet understand the scripture which said that he must rise from the dead.) So the disciples went back again to their homes.

But Mary stood just outside the tomb, and she was crying. And as she cried, she looked into the tomb and saw two angels in white who sat, one at the head and one at the foot of the place where the body of Jesus had lain.

The angels spoke to her, "Why are you crying?" they asked.

"Because they have taken away my Lord and I don't know where they have put him!" she said.

Then she turned and noticed Jesus standing there, without realizing that it was Jesus.

"Why are you crying?" said Jesus to her. "Who are you looking for?"

She, supposing that he was a gardener, said, "Oh, sir, if you have carried him away, please tell me where you have put him and I will take him away."

Jesus said to her, "Mary!"

At this she turned right around and said to him, in Hebrew, "Master!"

"No!" said Jesus, "do not hold me now. I have not yet gone up to my Father. Go and tell my brothers that I am going up to my Father, and your Father, to my God and your God."

And Mary of Magdala went off to the disciples with the news, "I have seen the Lord!" and she told them what he had said to her.

These simple words are the foundation truths on which the entire structure of Christianity has been built and which over the centuries have brought hope and courage to a multitude of Christians in the world.

The sentences do not multiply although they have been the inspiration for literally billions of written and spoken words since they were written. Still the words seem to grow in strength and bulk with each year's repetition of the familiar procession of old winters departing and new springs arriving, just as the roots of a giant tree spread and swell with sturdy might, piercing ever deeper into the soil as these same years pass.

FIFTY YEARS AFTER THE TROUBLES

Two weeks of ceremonies commemorating the 50th anniversary of the 1916 Easter Monday uprising in Ireland begin on Sunday (April 10).

FLAGS WILL BE FLOWN, speeches will be delivered, and soldiers will march to the tune of The Soldier's Song. Sure and there'll be fine words about Charles Stewart Parnell and Daniel O'Connell and Padriac Pearse and James Connolly and Constance, Countess Markiewicz, and all the other Irish patriots. And, the Lord willing, there shan't be a bomb.

For the Irish this April is a time to be both merry and sad -- it was G. K. Chesterton who said of the Irish, "All their wars are merry, all their sons are sad." Beginning on Easter Sunday the Emerald Isle will be awash with a fortnight of ceremonies dedicated to that merry and sad abortion, the Easter Rebellion of 1916. The proper anniversary is that of Easter Monday, which 50 years ago fell on April 24, but the Irish can be forgiven for beginning a tiny bit early.

On that Easter Monday half a century ago a "Provisional Government of the Irish Republic" was declared, and the Irish Revolutionary Army was founded. The British government quickly put down the uprising after heavy fighting. The outburst had been organized by the Irish nationalist Sinn Fein party with German encouragement.

Some 3500 men and women were arrested, and the British made the great mistake of executing 15, who promptly became martyrs. Among the leaders was the American-born Eamon de Valera, who today is President of the Irish Republic.

"DEV" was sentenced to death, reprieved, was then released. He was reimprisoned in 1918, and in the following January, still in jail, was elected President of the newly proclaimed Republic.

The formal partition of Ireland, with the six northern counties remaining in the United Kingdom by choice, was expedited by the Irish Free State Treaty of 1921, negotiated only after further clashes between the IRA, the military force of De Valera's Sinn Feiners, and troops of the Crown, reinforced by "black-and-tans" and other military cadets.

Parts of the treaty were "distasteful" to De Valera, who resigned from the Presidency, split the Sinn Fein, and plunged Ireland into civil war. "We made it possible for the British government to rule Ireland," De Valera boasted, "and we can make it impossible for an Irish government working under British authority to rule Ireland."

IN THE CIVIL WAR some 10,000 IRA Irregulars were imprisoned, and some 50 executed. De Valera in 1923 ordered his followers to lay aside their arms. In 1925, however, the IRA cut free from De Valera; in 1931 it was proscribed in a public safety act. Meanwhile De Valera reorganized his party and in 1927 went into Parliament. He was elected President of the Executive Council in 1932. The new Republic became completely free of Britain only in April 1949.

The underground IRA announced that its terror raid of 1961 was its finale. The blowing up of the Dublin pillar dedicated to Lord Nelson last March 8 was an act of violence resented by a good many Irish patriots.

A Belfast poet and clergyman, W. R. Rodgers, writing in the N. Y. Times recently, foresees eventual reunion between North and South Ireland. Everyone may hope for this kind of peaceful resolution, for just as Paris is everyone's second city, Ireland seems to be everyone's second country.

ROCKY ORIGIN

The site now occupied by Little Rock, Arkansas, was named by a French explorer, Sleur Bernard de la Harpe, in 1722. The explorer picked the name to distinguish the site from a larger rocky formation farther up the river. The town was started in 1820 after the spot had been chosen for the capital.

100 YEARS OF A.S.P.C.A.

Henry Bergh, the American pioneer in animal protection, had reason to rejoice 100 years ago. Badgered by Bergh and his supporters, the New York state legislature granted a charter of incorporation to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on April 10, 1866. In honor of the centennial, April has been designated A.S.P.C.A. Charter Month.

Bergh was said to resemble Don Quixote--and his efforts on behalf of maltreated animals seemed quixotic indeed to his contemporaries. The wealthy ex-diplomat, always impeccably attired, often startled New Yorkers by delivering impromptu curbside sermons on the evils of beating horses. But public scorn turned to concern after Bergh told an audience at Clinton Hall in February 1866 of the various cruelties inflicted on animals.

Now that the carriage horse has gone the way of the celluloid collar, A.S.P.C.A. and its allies have turned their attention to the welfare of household pets. Petnaping appears to have become a lucrative and growing, though furtive, enterprise. Large numbers of unleashed cats and dogs have been snatched off suburban streets and sold to laboratories for medical research. Because they are usually well fed and inoculated, pet animals command higher prices than undernourished, parasite-ridden strays.

But petnaping's days may be numbered. The House Agriculture Committee has reported a bill to outlaw the practice, and the Senate Commerce Committee is expected to follow suit. Related bills, which would regulate the treatment of laboratory animals, are unlikely to get anywhere. As Bergh discovered a century ago, lawmakers place a higher value on the medical benefits of animal research than on the comfort of the affected animals.

Because people are inclined to take for granted everything they possess or can buy, this small daily, as are all others, isn't as much appreciated as it should be.

Under Jack Stapleton, a member of one of Missouri's newspaper families, the Kennett newspaper has won a reputation for having an outstanding editorial page and for thorough, well balanced and impartial coverage of the news in the Bootheel. There are few if any small dailies in Missouri or in the United States, published in communities the size of Kennett, which can compare with it.

Many small dailies have abandoned the editorial page and no longer speak out with opinions about community, state, national and international affairs. A newspaper without an editorial page also is a weak spokesman for a community because its brain and voice both are muted and its function cannot be to lead but only to record the day's events.

It is doubtful if many small dailies mold opinion through the editorial page but those which carry editorials do stimulate a thought.

Letters to the editor are evidence of this but reflect only a fraction of the citizen thought generated by opinion and comment on public affairs.

There are others.

The small daily, which publishes regardless of demand for advertising space on any given day, is providing a flexible service for both its readers and its advertisers. News can be accomodated while it is still fresh and interesting. Advertisers can be obliged with the same flexibility.

Moving perishable items is easy in a daily newspaper where it is difficult for a newspaper less frequently published.

There are many other reasons why the daily's flexibility better meets the needs of the advertiser, who also can offer merchandise for sale at the time of the greatest interest and buying appeal.

It also is true that the merchant can advertise more often and more effectively in a daily.

This, of course, produces greater revenue for the newspaper but the important thing is the greater service and sales potential that it gives the advertiser. If this weren't so fewer advertisers would be using newspaper space with such great frequency. The proof is in the cash register.

The small daily newspaper publisher has problems. It isn't all gravy. He uses more paper, ink and electricity. He must employ more people to put out his high speed newspaper with daily frequency. His machinery wears out faster. His repair bills are greater. He must have more equipment and enough in reserve to take care of breakdowns so that the newspaper will not be delayed in reaching readers.

There are many issues of a daily newspaper that aren't nearly as profitable as the single issue of a weekly newspaper.

The daily newspaper publisher must accept philosophically the narrow profit margin or even lack of profit of a paper on a low advertising day. He does so with the knowledge that the averages will save him and with the idea that he is performing a useful, flexible convenient public service.

That's what the Dunklin Democrat is doing every day and what every successful small daily is doing.

AGAIN AND AGAIN AND AGAIN

ADVERTISING IS like everything else--there's very little new.

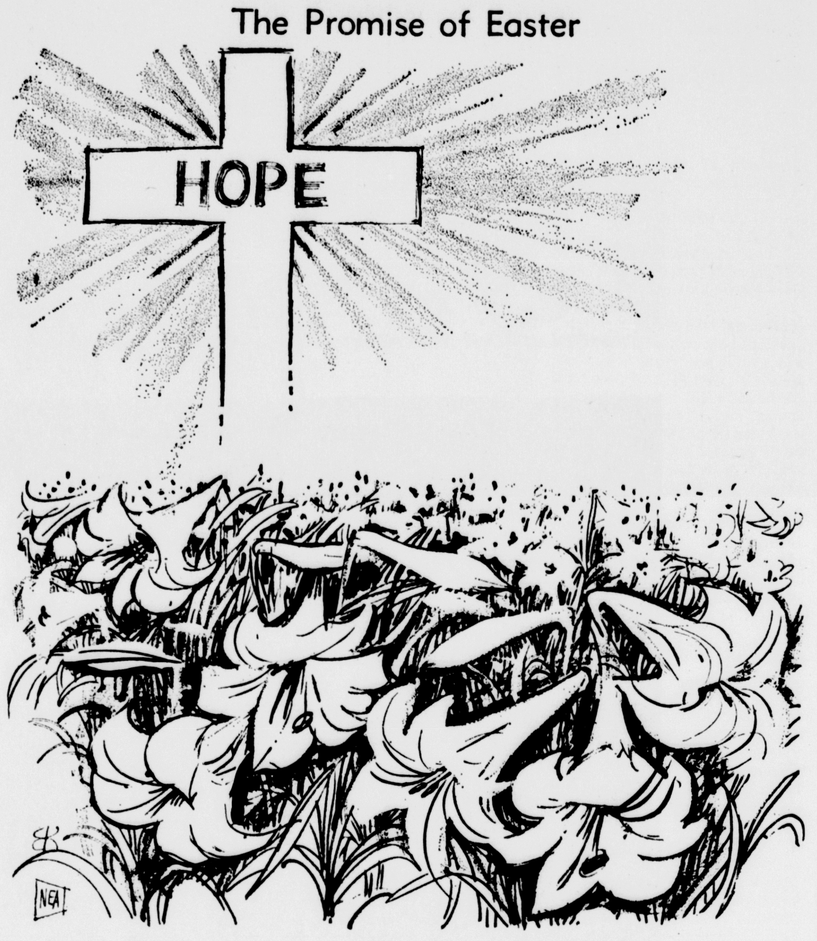

But like the gospel, advertising just has to be preached and preached and preached.

Make your advertising effective. Tell the story again and again and again.

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ

"Freedom -- When?" by James Farmer. A national leader has written on the role of the Congress of Racial Equality in the civil rights campaign--its past accomplishments, present efforts and future plans. In part, this book is autobiographical. CORE began with over-optimistic hopes about the immediate achievement of freedom. Now James Farmer and most of the membership realize the complexities of the problem. Without giving up non-violent demonstrations where appropriate, CORE has turned to other methods such as community programs and political action. CORE helped to organize the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party, and is doing likewise elsewhere. All in all, the author presents a strongly dramatic narrative of the work of a significant organization.

WANT A JOB? HERE'S A TIP

Looking for a job?

Planning your future?

Then you may be interested in a little pamphlet the U.S. Labor Department has produced.

By ruthless pruning, the government experts have compressed into a mere 862 pages their educated guesses on the employment outlook in the next decade.

What it boils down to is that your best bet to latch on to a job and climb the ladder of success is to become one of these:

A scientist, mathematician, electronic maintenance worker, computer programmer, teacher, repairman, librarian, air-conditioning and refrigeration mechanic, construction craftsman, health or welfare worker--or, of course, a government employe, especially on the state or local level.

The forecasters believe you'll be betting on a long shot if you settle for unskilled work in industry or on the farm. Even semiskilled labor doesn't look too hot. (Automation and the technology boom, you know.)

This would seem to suggest to the job seeker or career planner that he:

1. Go to school or vocational training classes or do anything else to learn as much as he can.

2. Ask his wife or mother to please use one of those miracle detergents that washes whiter than white. (For the white collar wearer, it seems to be true, will land a job faster than the man who wears blue.)

All this may not be exactly the way some of us would prefer it to be. But it seems to be the surest path to pay check and progress.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

WASHINGTON -- Attorney General Nick Katzenbach has sent a considerable number of federal registrars to enroll Negro voters in the south, but there is one county where registrars are as scarce as water on the Sahara -- Sunflower County, Miss.

This happens to be the home county of "Big Jim" Eastland, cigar - chomping, genial chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee, who as such rules on many justice department problems.

The fifth circuit court of appeals has unanimously ordered new elections in all but two towns in Sunflower county. Elections were held last year, and so few Negroes voted that the court essentially ruled new elections must be held after a reasonable number of Negroes were qualified to vote.

This puts it right up to the justice department. It knows that 93 per cent of the white population of Sunflower county is registered, as against only 7 per cent of the Negro population. In the rest of Mississippi outside Sunflower county, 43 per cent of the Negroes are registered. In Sunflower county 65 per cent of the population is Negro.

Meanwhile, kindly Attorney General Katzenbach has sent no federal registrars to Sunflower county, the home of Sen. Eastland. He did send them last year to Bolivar county, which adjoins the rear of Sen. Eastland's plantation. But after only one day he yanked them out. You can guess who protested.

The attorney general, of course, is not unaware that a very hot election campaign is going on in Mississippi with big John Eastland running scared. In fact, he is running for his political life.

Lined up against him are Rep. Prentiss Walker, only Republican congressman elected from Mississippi, who is backed by a coalition of John Birchites, Republicans and new Negro voters. Negro voters don't love Walker, but they love Eastland less. They figure that with Eastland removed as chairman of the judiciary committee, his reactionary hand would be removed from the wrist of the justice department.

If the attorney general sent federal registrars to Sunflower county, Congressman Walker would raise the hue and cry that "Eastland can't control the justice department anymore." So, while 65 per cent of the population in Sunflower is Negro and 11 per cent is registered to vote, no registrars are sent to Sunflower county.

Note - If Eastland should be defeated, Negroes won't get much of a break on the judiciary committee. Next in line to succeed him is John McClellan of Arkansas, who shares Eastland's race views; then Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina with similar views. After that comes Sen. Tom Dodd of Connecticut, who is for civil rights but has other problems.

FROM NBC TO WHITE HOUSE

Robert E. Kintner, former president of the American Broadcasting Company and former chairman of the National Broadcasting Company, attended his first cabinet meeting the other day as LBJ's Secretary of the Cabinet.

He sat at the large oval cabinet table as the president went the round, calling on each member of his official staff, pointedly asking questions about problems which obviously he knows as much about as the cabinet members themselves.

It was a meeting presided over by a man who never forgets a fact, has a steel trap mind and expects fast action. When it was all over, one member of the cabinet asked Kintner: "Well, what did you think of it?"

"My God!" exclaimed the somewhat dazed new secretary of the cabinet, "I've never seen anything like it."

Then headed, "you know, he could run a pretty big company."

STUDENT VACATIONS

In contrast to the thousands of students who crowded into Daytona Beach for the Easter vacation, here is what some other students have done with their vacations, both past and present.

Last Christmas, the Christian association of the University of Pennsylvania sent a delegation of students to Tribbett, Miss., to build a community center. They raised most of the money necessary for the lumber and materials, spent their vacation as carpenters.

Last Christmas, the United States National Student Association raised money, sent several hundred students to the south to work with other college students improving race relations.

This Easter, 32 students from Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, are moving into the Youngstown slum areas to work with the Neighborhood Youth Corps and high school dropouts.

Another group of Ohio University students, from foreign countries, is working in the Youngstown slum areas, painting, repairing and cleaning up houses where local residents have long been asking the city planning commission for help but not getting it. These foreign students, working in American slums, come from Nigeria, Viet Nam, Sweden, England, Brazil, Peru and Sierra Leone, the tiny Republic in West Africa.

Note -- Founder of this Ohio program is David Steeds, a graduate of Cambridge University in England, now doing graduate study at Ohio University.

FROM THIS SLIGHT SEED

Easter holds many spiritual wonders. Not the least among them is the almost miraculous way in which a few short sentences in the Bible carry the Easter story from generation to generation.

Read this brief story again. There are other references in the Bible, parallel in their content, but this version is from the Gospel of John and was translated into modern English for the gospel issued as a booklet, "One Way for Modern Man," by the American Bible Society:

But on the first day of the week, Mary of Magdala arrived at the tomb, very early in the morning, while it was still dark, and noticed that the stone had been taken away from the tomb. At this she ran, found Simon Peter and the other disciple whom Jesus loved, and told them, "They have taken the Lord out of the tomb and we don't know where they have put him."

Peter and the other disciple set off at once for the tomb, the two of them running together. The other disciple ran faster than Peter and was the first to arrive at the tomb. He stopped and looked inside and noticed the linen cloths lying there but did not go in himself. Hard on his heels came Simon Peter, who went straight into the tomb. He noticed that the linen cloths were lying there, and that the handerchief, which had been round Jesus' head, was not lying with the linen cloths but was rolled up by itself, a little way apart. Then the other disciple, who was the first to arrive at the tomb, came inside as well, saw what had happened and believed. (They did not yet understand the scripture which said that he must rise from the dead.) So the disciples went back again to their homes.

But Mary stood just outside the tomb, and she was crying. And as she cried, she looked into the tomb and saw two angels in white who sat, one at the head and one at the foot of the place where the body of Jesus had lain.

The angels spoke to her, "Why are you crying?" they asked.

"Because they have taken away my Lord and I don't know where they have put him!" she said.

Then she turned and noticed Jesus standing there, without realizing that it was Jesus.

"Why are you crying?" said Jesus to her. "Who are you looking for?"

She, supposing that he was a gardener, said, "Oh, sir, if you have carried him away, please tell me where you have put him and I will take him away."

Jesus said to her, "Mary!"

At this she turned right around and said to him, in Hebrew, "Master!"

"No!" said Jesus, "do not hold me now. I have not yet gone up to my Father. Go and tell my brothers that I am going up to my Father, and your Father, to my God and your God."

And Mary of Magdala went off to the disciples with the news, "I have seen the Lord!" and she told them what he had said to her.

These simple words are the foundation truths on which the entire structure of Christianity has been built and which over the centuries have brought hope and courage to a multitude of Christians in the world.

The sentences do not multiply although they have been the inspiration for literally billions of written and spoken words since they were written. Still the words seem to grow in strength and bulk with each year's repetition of the familiar procession of old winters departing and new springs arriving, just as the roots of a giant tree spread and swell with sturdy might, piercing ever deeper into the soil as these same years pass.

FIFTY YEARS AFTER THE TROUBLES

Two weeks of ceremonies commemorating the 50th anniversary of the 1916 Easter Monday uprising in Ireland begin on Sunday (April 10).

FLAGS WILL BE FLOWN, speeches will be delivered, and soldiers will march to the tune of The Soldier's Song. Sure and there'll be fine words about Charles Stewart Parnell and Daniel O'Connell and Padriac Pearse and James Connolly and Constance, Countess Markiewicz, and all the other Irish patriots. And, the Lord willing, there shan't be a bomb.

For the Irish this April is a time to be both merry and sad -- it was G. K. Chesterton who said of the Irish, "All their wars are merry, all their sons are sad." Beginning on Easter Sunday the Emerald Isle will be awash with a fortnight of ceremonies dedicated to that merry and sad abortion, the Easter Rebellion of 1916. The proper anniversary is that of Easter Monday, which 50 years ago fell on April 24, but the Irish can be forgiven for beginning a tiny bit early.

On that Easter Monday half a century ago a "Provisional Government of the Irish Republic" was declared, and the Irish Revolutionary Army was founded. The British government quickly put down the uprising after heavy fighting. The outburst had been organized by the Irish nationalist Sinn Fein party with German encouragement.

Some 3500 men and women were arrested, and the British made the great mistake of executing 15, who promptly became martyrs. Among the leaders was the American-born Eamon de Valera, who today is President of the Irish Republic.

"DEV" was sentenced to death, reprieved, was then released. He was reimprisoned in 1918, and in the following January, still in jail, was elected President of the newly proclaimed Republic.

The formal partition of Ireland, with the six northern counties remaining in the United Kingdom by choice, was expedited by the Irish Free State Treaty of 1921, negotiated only after further clashes between the IRA, the military force of De Valera's Sinn Feiners, and troops of the Crown, reinforced by "black-and-tans" and other military cadets.

Parts of the treaty were "distasteful" to De Valera, who resigned from the Presidency, split the Sinn Fein, and plunged Ireland into civil war. "We made it possible for the British government to rule Ireland," De Valera boasted, "and we can make it impossible for an Irish government working under British authority to rule Ireland."

IN THE CIVIL WAR some 10,000 IRA Irregulars were imprisoned, and some 50 executed. De Valera in 1923 ordered his followers to lay aside their arms. In 1925, however, the IRA cut free from De Valera; in 1931 it was proscribed in a public safety act. Meanwhile De Valera reorganized his party and in 1927 went into Parliament. He was elected President of the Executive Council in 1932. The new Republic became completely free of Britain only in April 1949.

The underground IRA announced that its terror raid of 1961 was its finale. The blowing up of the Dublin pillar dedicated to Lord Nelson last March 8 was an act of violence resented by a good many Irish patriots.

A Belfast poet and clergyman, W. R. Rodgers, writing in the N. Y. Times recently, foresees eventual reunion between North and South Ireland. Everyone may hope for this kind of peaceful resolution, for just as Paris is everyone's second city, Ireland seems to be everyone's second country.

ROCKY ORIGIN

The site now occupied by Little Rock, Arkansas, was named by a French explorer, Sleur Bernard de la Harpe, in 1722. The explorer picked the name to distinguish the site from a larger rocky formation farther up the river. The town was started in 1820 after the spot had been chosen for the capital.

100 YEARS OF A.S.P.C.A.

Henry Bergh, the American pioneer in animal protection, had reason to rejoice 100 years ago. Badgered by Bergh and his supporters, the New York state legislature granted a charter of incorporation to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals on April 10, 1866. In honor of the centennial, April has been designated A.S.P.C.A. Charter Month.

Bergh was said to resemble Don Quixote--and his efforts on behalf of maltreated animals seemed quixotic indeed to his contemporaries. The wealthy ex-diplomat, always impeccably attired, often startled New Yorkers by delivering impromptu curbside sermons on the evils of beating horses. But public scorn turned to concern after Bergh told an audience at Clinton Hall in February 1866 of the various cruelties inflicted on animals.

Now that the carriage horse has gone the way of the celluloid collar, A.S.P.C.A. and its allies have turned their attention to the welfare of household pets. Petnaping appears to have become a lucrative and growing, though furtive, enterprise. Large numbers of unleashed cats and dogs have been snatched off suburban streets and sold to laboratories for medical research. Because they are usually well fed and inoculated, pet animals command higher prices than undernourished, parasite-ridden strays.

But petnaping's days may be numbered. The House Agriculture Committee has reported a bill to outlaw the practice, and the Senate Commerce Committee is expected to follow suit. Related bills, which would regulate the treatment of laboratory animals, are unlikely to get anywhere. As Bergh discovered a century ago, lawmakers place a higher value on the medical benefits of animal research than on the comfort of the affected animals.

Because people are inclined to take for granted everything they possess or can buy, this small daily, as are all others, isn't as much appreciated as it should be.

Under Jack Stapleton, a member of one of Missouri's newspaper families, the Kennett newspaper has won a reputation for having an outstanding editorial page and for thorough, well balanced and impartial coverage of the news in the Bootheel. There are few if any small dailies in Missouri or in the United States, published in communities the size of Kennett, which can compare with it.

Many small dailies have abandoned the editorial page and no longer speak out with opinions about community, state, national and international affairs. A newspaper without an editorial page also is a weak spokesman for a community because its brain and voice both are muted and its function cannot be to lead but only to record the day's events.

It is doubtful if many small dailies mold opinion through the editorial page but those which carry editorials do stimulate a thought.

Letters to the editor are evidence of this but reflect only a fraction of the citizen thought generated by opinion and comment on public affairs.

There are others.

The small daily, which publishes regardless of demand for advertising space on any given day, is providing a flexible service for both its readers and its advertisers. News can be accomodated while it is still fresh and interesting. Advertisers can be obliged with the same flexibility.

Moving perishable items is easy in a daily newspaper where it is difficult for a newspaper less frequently published.

There are many other reasons why the daily's flexibility better meets the needs of the advertiser, who also can offer merchandise for sale at the time of the greatest interest and buying appeal.

It also is true that the merchant can advertise more often and more effectively in a daily.

This, of course, produces greater revenue for the newspaper but the important thing is the greater service and sales potential that it gives the advertiser. If this weren't so fewer advertisers would be using newspaper space with such great frequency. The proof is in the cash register.

The small daily newspaper publisher has problems. It isn't all gravy. He uses more paper, ink and electricity. He must employ more people to put out his high speed newspaper with daily frequency. His machinery wears out faster. His repair bills are greater. He must have more equipment and enough in reserve to take care of breakdowns so that the newspaper will not be delayed in reaching readers.

There are many issues of a daily newspaper that aren't nearly as profitable as the single issue of a weekly newspaper.

The daily newspaper publisher must accept philosophically the narrow profit margin or even lack of profit of a paper on a low advertising day. He does so with the knowledge that the averages will save him and with the idea that he is performing a useful, flexible convenient public service.

That's what the Dunklin Democrat is doing every day and what every successful small daily is doing.

He sat at the large oval cabinet table as the president went the round, calling on each member of his official staff, pointedly asking questions about problems which obviously he knows as much about as the cabinet members themselves.

It was a meeting presided over by a man who never forgets a fact, has a steel trap mind and expects fast action. When it was all over, one member of the cabinet asked Kintner: "Well, what did you think of it?"

"My God!" exclaimed the somewhat dazed new secretary of the cabinet, "I've never seen anything like it."

Then headed, "you know, he could run a pretty big company."

STUDENT VACATIONS

In contrast to the thousands of students who crowded into Daytona Beach for the Easter vacation, here is what some other students have done with their vacations, both past and present.

Last Christmas, the Christian association of the University of Pennsylvania sent a delegation of students to Tribbett, Miss., to build a community center. They raised most of the money necessary for the lumber and materials, spent their vacation as carpenters.

Last Christmas, the United States National Student Association raised money, sent several hundred students to the south to work with other college students improving race relations.

This Easter, 32 students from Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, are moving into the Youngstown slum areas to work with the Neighborhood Youth Corps and high school dropouts.

Another group of Ohio University students, from foreign countries, is working in the Youngstown slum areas, painting, repairing and cleaning up houses where local residents have long been asking the city planning commission for help but not getting it. These foreign students, working in American slums, come from Nigeria, Viet Nam, Sweden, England, Brazil, Peru and Sierra Leone, the tiny Republic in West Africa.

Note -- Founder of this Ohio program is David Steeds, a graduate of Cambridge University in England, now doing graduate study at Ohio University.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1965, Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox, ending the Civil War.

On this date

In 1682, La Salle named Louisiana for King Louis XIV of France.

In 1792, the Pennsylvania Legislature granted a charter for the Lancaster Turnpike, the first in the United States. It joined Lancaster with Philadelphia.

In 1833, the first free public library in the United States maintained by a town and supported by public tax was established in Peterboro, N. H.

In 1966, the Civil Rights Act was passed over President Andrew Johnson's veto. It was the first federal statute to define citizenship and to safeguard civil rights within the states.

Ten years ago -- A White House statement declared the United States would observe its commitments to support the United Nations peace mission and would aid any nation in the Mideast which might be subjected to aggression.

Five years ago -- British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan flew to Canada for discussions with Canadian officials following his conference with President John F. Kennedy on world problems.

One year ago -- The firing of small, solid - fuel rockets aboard the communications satellite Early Bird put this first commercial spacecraft into an almost circular orbit about 23,000 miles above the earth.

APPOINTED

Mr. E. J. Roessel, Vice-President Sales, International Shoe Company has announced the appointment of two new Sales Executives.

Mr. Robert B. Hanson is appointed to the new position of Assistant General Manager Women's Shoes. He is assistant to Mr. Ed Gralnick, General Manager Women's Shoes, and is specifically assigned to supervise the Miss Wonderful and Personality Division.

Prior to joining International, Mr. Hanson had been with Brown Shoe Company since 1955.

Cold northern winds generally slowed fishing in all Missouri and Arkansas impoundments, however, those anglers who braved the elements met with fair to good success. It looks like this is the year for Table Rock, Bull Shoals, and Norfolk with a number of lunker bass in the 7 to 10 pound class being reported taken the past week. Wappapello, generally known as a crappie lake, has produced some outstanding bass catches the past few days, the largest being an 8-pound 14-ounce lunker, taken from the dam area, on a Bomber. The Missouri streams for bass are closed until May 30. However, float fishermen are taking a good number of perch and goggle-eye on flyrods. All streams are clear and low.

STEERING A NEW COURSE

LOOMING BIG, AS ALWAYS

WISHING WINDFALL—Alan Nagao, 4½, the Hawaiian boy who is the 1966 Easter Seal child, beams over a mass of pennies, nickels, dimes, quarters and half-dollars yielded up by a wishing well. The well, an eight-foot pool in the Luray Caverns of Virginia's Shenandoah Mountains, was dredged for the first time since 1960 and the more than $21,000 in coins tossed in by tourists went to the Easter Seal campaign.

(NEA Telephoto)

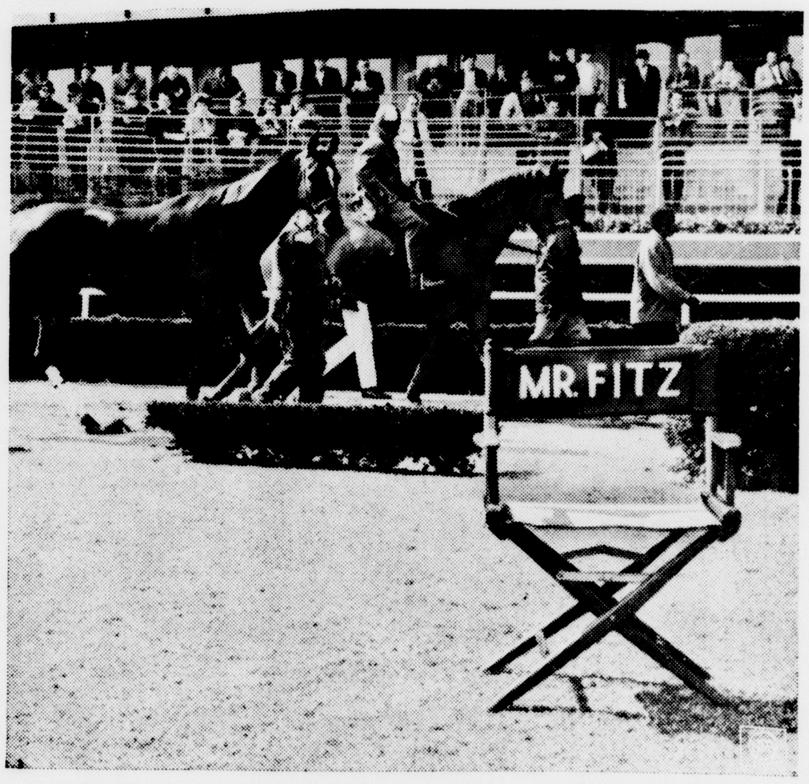

WANTED—The picture of Michael Roy, Elizabeth, N.J., police chief is going out across the country in the search for a murderer. Witnesses said the chief, wearing stage make-up, closely resembles the man who stabbed to death Wendy Wolin, 7, on an Elizabeth street.

YOUNG MAN'S FANCY—For David (Peewee) Maddox of Birmingham, Ala. spring is no time for girls. Just baseball, as his adoring sweetheart, Jan Moore, learns.

EYES RIGHT—Even the thoroughbred being led to the paddock seems to know something is missing and turns in a kind of military "eyes right" salute toward the chair of the late thoroughbred trainer, James E. (Sunny Jim) Fitzsimmons. The chair stands as a tribute to the famed trainer in the paddock area of New York's Aqueduct Track.

BELLY WHOPPER—Gump Worsley, goalie for the Montreal Canadiens, heads for the ice, stomach first, to prevent a score in fast action around the Montreal net.
